Air Canada Strike Talks Set

MONTREAL (CP) — Labor department officials called Air Canada executives to Ottawa today to discuss plans by the airline's 1,500 pilots to strike next Monday.

William Kelly, assistant deputy labor minister, said the session was arranged before Labor Minister John Munro received a telegram from Air Canada president Claude Taylor to intervene in the conflict.

"Following these talks we might well have the pilots in," Kelly said in a telephone interview.

Munro issued a statement saying the meeting in Ottawa didn't constitute formal intervention in the dispute. He said labor department officials would assess the issues before deciding on a course of action.

"I'm obviously concerned about the effect of a possible strike, especially at this time," said Munro. "My main aim is to assist in finding a solution and to keep the planes flying."

Taylor's request for government assistance was contained in a telegram to Munro delivered today, an airline spokesman said.

Results of a strike vote by the Air Canada contingent of the Canadian Air Line Pilots Association (CALPA) were released Monday and showed 92 per cent in favor of a walkout.

The pilots, if they go ahead with their threat, will walk out at 3 a.m. Monday.

The strike, which would be the first ever for CALPA over a contract, would coincide with the end of Quebec's St. Jean-Baptiste holiday weekend and the peak travel

Racquet Club To Pay

By PAUL MOSS
Times Staff

The Racquet Club of Victoria will have to pay full property taxes after all, a B.C. Supreme Court judge ruled Monday.

Judge Alan Macfarlane allowed an appeal by the B.C. Assessment Authority and Saanich municipality against an earlier assessment cut granted by the provincial assessment appeal board, which reduced the assessment on the club's buildings from $462,000 to $100.

Victoria lawyer Alan Emery, who represented the club in the recent Supreme Court hearing, said today he still has not received a written copy of the judgment.

But he said he understands Macfarlane found that at the time the assessment level was cut back an assessment freeze was in effect.

Last year the Racquet Club's total property tax bill was $51,480, on land assessed at $125,620 and improvements (buildings) at $464,230.

A Saanich tax official said today that had the reduction been in effect last year the club would have paid only about $15,500.

Slot-Machine Loto 'Death to Charities'

By AL FORREST
Times Staff

Loto Canada is starting a slot-machine type instant lottery in B.C. in November that could put the Provincial and the Express out of business, Provincial Secretary Grace McCarthy said today in an interview.

"They are going to flood the market with these machines and there is no way we can compete," she told the Times.

"The 275 non-profit organizations in B.C. with a total of 800,000 members are going to lose a vital source of financing."

The Loto machines provide instant prizes. The player pays an attendant $1 and then types six numbers into the machine. The numbers range from zero to 99.

A receipt comes out saying thank you for the dollar — or announcing a prize.

The player can type in as many numbers as he can afford to pay for at $1 each.

Loto Canada is already in B.C. looking for sites for the machines and making arrangements for the necessary telephone cables.

Prizes would be similar to the Express except the winning numbers would change every week. Top prize would be $500,000. But if the top prize is not won during the week, the prize would grow by $250,000 weekly until it was frozen at a top level of $1.5 million.

The receipt would indicate the amount won (if anything) and players could cash their receipts any time they wished, up to one year.

McCarthy said the federal government is forcing a slot machine atmosphere on the people of B.C. without consultation and in violation of agreements made between Ottawa and the provinces.

"There are serious moral questions about the instant lottery. This is like having a slot machine on every corner."

Several hundred telegrams and letters of protest have already gone to Ottawa and thousands more are expected. Protest rallies will be organized across B.C. in July.

Mrs. McCarthy said the Olympic deficit, the original reason for Loto Canada, will be paid in full by the end of 1979 and after that Ottawa will be in the lottery business simply as a form of taxation at the expense of thousands of charitible organizations across Canada.

Nine of the ten provinces, including Quebec, are opposed to the lottery machines for moral and financial reasons, Mrs. McCarthy said, with Nova Scotia the only province that wants them.

"In 1976 the federal government promised it would not continue the lottery after Dec. 31, 1979 without consulting the provinces. They consulted, we said 'no' and they are still going ahead with this."

Mrs. McCarthy said she has heard of reports from the United States, where the machines have been consumer-tested, of players planning to buy just one ticket and ending up spending as much as $38.

"This is an example of the moral question raised by the machines," she said.

Loto Canada began as the Olympic Lottery in 1976 to pay for the Olympic Games. After the Games, Loto Canada was formed to pay for the deficit. Loto Canada has no relationship to the Quebec

BIG DOGS NO PETS FOR CHILDREN: MDS

WINNIPEG (CP) — Large dogs, especially German shepherds, should not be kept as family pets, the Canadian Medical Association said Monday.

The CMA's general council also recommended that because of the increase in bite injuries small children never be left alone with large dogs.

Dr. W. J. Corbett, chairman of the CMA's community health council, said the public must be warned of the dangers of leaving small children alone with large dogs.

"We are not suggesting these magnificent animals be destroyed," he said.

But too many surgeons have had to repair the faces of small children who have inadvertently tangled with the family's pet dog, he added.

Incidence of reported dog bites in both the United States and Canada, the council said, is about 700 for every 100,000 people.

Dr. B. M. Cochrane, an Ottawa physician, said a recent study conducted in New Brunswick showed German shepherds were responsibile for one-third of 30 dog-bite cases reported.

Aide's Fees Queried

Premier Bill Bennett's $36,000-a-year communications adviser appears to have collected more expense money than entitled when he first came on the government payroll in 1976.

During questioning at the Public Accounts Committee meeting today, it was revealed Dave Brown claimed a $25 per diem expense fee for 84 days over a three-month period when he actually only worked 63 days in the fall of 1976.

And while a memo from Bennett to the comptroller-general said Brown was not to claim any expenses after Oct. 31, Brown claimed 22 days expense money in the month of November.

Brown said today he has no immediate explanation for the charges and said if he is in error he will have to compensate the government.

Brown was questioned by Lorne Nicolson (NDP — Nelson-Creston) who pointed to the fact that Brown, a public

FISH TALKS SNAG

OTTAWA (CP) — Talks to settle the Canada-U.S. fisheries dispute resumed Monday and immediately hit a snag—the United States hoped to have a suspended fishing agreement re-instated while Canada wanted to work towards a final settlement.

The prospect for a settlement this year should become clearer today when special negotiators tell reporters what progress they've made toward settling disputed maritime boundaries and reaching agreement on a resumption of reciprocal fishing between the two countries.

It will be the first news conference for the negotiators since they were appointed last summer by Washington and Ottawa to seek agreement on four overlapping maritime boundaries arising from the 200-mile fishing limits.

U.S. negotiator Lloyd Cutler said at the start of the talks Monday "the earliest feasible resumption of such reciprocal fishing will improve the prospect for reaching the kind of long-term agreement we seek."

But Canadian negotiator Marcel Cadieux and Fisheries Minister Romeo LeBlanc said Canada considered a comprehensive settlement the main priority. Some reciprocal fishing deals might be worked out.

Cadieux told a briefing the talks are "not for re-establishing or restoring the interim agreement."

Dollar Plunges To New Low

Times News Services

The United States dollar plunged to a new low on Tokyo money markets today, closing at 211.575 yen, four yen below Monday's closing rate.

In Europe, the dollar also declined against most of the major European currencies, but only slightly.

In New York, the Canadian dollar was down 1-10 at 89.14 cents U.S. Pound sterling was up ¼ at $1.8380.

More Feds On Payroll

OTTAWA (FP) — The federal government's payroll and manpower strength continues to climb despite restraint measures.

New Statistics Canada figures reveal the government and its enterprises, including the armed forces, had 583,567 employees as of March, 1978. That's an increase of 21,460 from the previous March.

The gross payroll (including overtime and retroactive payments) for the first quarter of 1978 was $2,406.6 million, an increase of $390.7 million over the same period in 1977.

Statistics Canada noted that the major reason for the increase in the number of public servants between March, 1977, and March, 1978, was the addition of new government enterprises—mainly Petro Canada, de Havilland Aircraft, Canadair and Connaught Laboratories.

Meat Plants Close Down

Canadian Press

A strike begun Monday by about 2,000 employees of Swift Canadian Co. at five plants will affect about 4,000 employees of Canada Packers Ltd., who will be locked out later this week in the cities where both companies have plants.

Murray Stewart, public relations manager for Canada Packers Ltd., said that company will lock out its workers in Toronto, Winnipeg, Edmonton and Lethbridge, Alta., at 12:01 a.m. local times Thursday and at its Vancouver-area plant at 12:01 a.m. Friday.

Members of the Canadian Food and Allied Workers union, which represents workers in both companies' meat-packing plants, are on strike at Swift Canadian Co. plants in those five cities seeking better wages and pensions.

Stewart said the lockouts were necessary because any settlement reached between the union and Swift would also be binding on Canada Packers Ltd.

He said the union began bargaining with Swift after breaking off negotiations with Canada Packers.

"We feel we should be part of the negotiating process and settlement."

John Dampsy, another Canada Packers spokesman, said he doubts that the shutdown of plants will cause meat prices to rise at the supermarket level.

"What we are talking about is two companies at five locations," he said. "There are many other companies and we would expect they would probably step into the breach next week."

Workers at the Swift Canadian Co. plants voted 81 per cent in favor of strike action last Wednesday.

Twister Wipes Out Manitoba Community

AUBIGNY, Man. (CP) — This small community about 30 kilometes south of Winnipeg was nearly destroyed Monday evening by tornados that swept through the region, killing one person and injuring numerous others.

Dead is David Waller of Portage la Prairie. RCMP said he was in a Canadian National Railways bunk car on a siding near Ste. Anne when the car was lifted from the tracks and thrown back down. One other person was injured in the derailment.

The train was sitting beside a fertilizer plant that was destroyed.

Most of the 14 reported injuries were minor, many of them cuts from flying glass. However, two people injured when their car was thrown out of control by the tornado on Highway 75 are in guarded condition.

But in Aubigny, all is in ruins. The predominantly French-speaking community bore the brunt of the tornado which destroyed nearly 75 per cent of the community of about 300 people.

Jack Murray, the mayor of Morris, about 10 kilometres to the west, was one of many people who went to the community Monday evening to try to help. He said the damage was "horrendous" and only the hand of God prevented any Aubigny residents from being killed. Nine were injured.

"The village had services, a store, post office, credit union, caisse populaire," said Murray. "But that's all gone now. The only thing left of the caisse populaire is the safe."

The actual number of tornado touchdowns has not been confirmed but houses, stores and other buildings were flattened; trees, hydro and telephone poles and automobiles were thrown through the air like leaves. A church steeple was toppled. One bus was carried more than 60 metres before it was dumped less than three metres from the side of a house.

Many residents escaped injury by hiding in basements as the houses above them were destroyed.

"I'd say there's thousands and thousands of dollars of damage there," he said. "There were machines, sheds, a barn 200-300 feet long, just flattened. There was a house with a television beside it. The house was gone, I don't even know where it was."

The reeve of Morris, Alvin Remple, said the residents of Aubigny could possibility rebuild many of the homes.

Grounded Ship Plundered

Armed Panamanians pillaged the grounded schooner Freelance while her crew stood by helplessly after the 100-foot vessel went aground on a reef off the San Blas Islands.

A co-operative effort will be made today to refloat the tall ship purchased by the provincial government for a youth sail training program.

The U.S. army will assist a private tug company in righting the vessel.

Panamanian authorities meanwhile advised the seven-man Vancouver Island crew not to interfere with the natives who have looted almost every portable item from the ship including sails and navigation equipment.

The crew has set up a camp on a nearby island and although they have suffered hardships, none has been injured, Recreation and Conservation Minister Sam Bawlf said Monday.

Details of the grounding are still sketchy but Bawlf said the vessel rammed the reef at night during torrential rains.

The reef is off the east coast of Panama in the Caribbean about 70 miles from the port of Cristobal, the ship's destination the night of the accident.

The iron hull has not been pierced, but the ship took on a lot of water through the top hatches and has listed dangerously to starboard.

Two U.S. army landing craft will straddle the Freelance and try to swing her onto a safe axis.

It is feared that the Freelance will capsize when pulled off the reef if enough water can't be pumped out.

Panamanian authorities have managed to get some of the loot back including the radio. Negotiations are under way to recover other stolen goods.

The vessel was purchased in Antigua for $58,000 U.S. but it would cost a million dollars today to build one like her from scratch, he said.

The ministry and the Quest Star Society which arranged purchase and delivery and would likely operate her in B.C. are keeping their fingers crossed that she can be refloated and refitted, Bawlf said.

relations executive, was based in Vancouver when appointed to Bennett's office by cabinet order Sept. 1, 1976.

For September, October and November, Brown travelled back and forth between Vancouver and Victoria and claimed expense money while in Victoria.

Nicolson produced vouchers to show Brown worked most weekdays, averaging 21 days a month in Victoria while staying at the Empress, and collecting a per diem rate of $25.

But on several occasions, vouchers were duplicated and on Oct. 1, three different vouchers were presented for $75.

The meeting broke up with Socred MLA Lyle Kahl delivering an obscene gesture to committee chairman Gary Lauk, (NDP-Vancouver Centre).

Kahl, the MLA for Esquimalt, stood up, announced that he was "disgusted" by the way the meeting was being conducted and said he was leaving.

As he walked from the room, Lauk cracked: "The nurse's office is just down the hall".

Nicolson also raised the matter of the memo in which Bennett said Brown was not to receive expenses starting Nov. 1 because by that time he was to have moved to Victoria.

Brown said he thought the date on the memo was in error and that he was authorized to claim expenses until Dec. 1. But he said if he is wrong he would pay the money back.

Brown said the three-month period in the fall of 1976 was a transition one. A new government had just taken over and he was working a lot of seven-day weeks in both cities.

The 84 days for which Brown claimed a per diem rate for adds up to $2,755, Nicolson said. And that doesn't include all his expenses such as air flights.

An official from the comptroller's office, going over the vouchers with Brown at the meeting, said it is possible the vouchers were never paid and that might explain duplications. But he said he would have to investigate more fully.

to discuss any future plans," he said.

RICH ART AUCTION

LONDON (AP) — The most valuable single private art collection ever to be auctioned goes on the block today in a week-long sale.

The Robert Von Hirsch collection, estimated to be worth $14.5 million, is being sold by auctioneers Sotheby Parke Bernet on orders from Hirsch, 94, who died Nov. 1 in Switzerland.

Hirsch said he wanted his treasure trove sold because he looked forward to the battle between collectors. He told friends he wanted other collectors to have the same sense of competition and achievement he experienced in his 70 years of buying.

The first lots today include an Albrecht Durer watercolor and five Rembrandts.

No Book Undercutting

OTTAWA (CP) — The government Monday put a stop to the situation where foreign-produced books of Canadian authors were being sold in Canada at bargain prices, undercutting the authors' own income.

State Secretary John Roberts announced stores will be prosecuted if they sell books under Canadian copyright which were printed and published abroad. Such books put up for sale would be seized.

The government acted in response to a long-heard complaint from authors that they receive no royalties from these foreign-produced books. The sale of them by book stores cut into sales of Canadian-produced books that did pay a royalty.

Roberts said in an interview the loss suffered by well-known authors was substantial.

He said although the federal government previously prohibited these books being sold in Canada in direct competition with Canadian editions, it was left to authors to initiate court action.

The costs of such action were too high.

Because of increased vigilence by customs officials in recent months, Roberts said he does not think there are any of these foreign-produced books currently on store shelves.

He said he does not anticipate any retaliatory action from the United States, where most of the books are produced.

While Canadian authors will benefit from the move, consumers will lose. The foreign-produced books were usually sold at cheaper prices than their Canadian counterparts.

Lalonde, Chevrier Linked To Sky Shops Scandal

MONTREAL (CP) — Two prominent federal Liberals — Marc Lalonde and Lionel Chevrier — inquired about a lease extension on the duty-free shop run by Sky Shops Export Ltd. at Dorval airport, a former transport department official testified Monday.

Under cross-examination at the trial of Liberal Senator Louis Giguere, Eric Winsor, former director-general of airports, said Lalonde wrote to O.G. Stoner, then deputy minister of transport, on June 29, 1970.

The letter, introduced as evidence, was written on stationery of the prime minister's office. Lalonde, currently minister of federal-provincial relations, had not yet been elected to the Commons and worked in the prime minister's office at the time.

"Thank you for your memo of June 23 and for your personal attention to this matter," Lalonde wrote, adding that "the conclusion you arrived at seems eminently reasonable."

The "conclusion" was a decision not to extend the lease at Sky Shops beyond Nov. 30, 1975, although the company had requested an extension to 1979.

Giguere is charged with conspiring with three men to obtain and accept a benefit of $95,000, gained through the buying and selling of shares in Sky Shops, in return for the exercise of political influence to have the lease extended.

The people named in the charges with Giguere are Clarence Campbell, former National Hockey League president, businessman Gordon Brown of Freeport, Bahamas, and the late Montreal businessman Louis Lapointe.

Previous testimony has shown that the lease was eventually extended to 1980, and that Giguere bought 5,000 Sky Shops shares for $1 each and sold them shortly afterward for a profit of $95,000.

Asked on whose behalf Lalonde was inquiring, Winsor said he could not recall exactly, "but I assume it was Lapointe."

Another document presented as evidence said Lionel Chevrier, minister of transport in the Louis St. Laurent government in the 1950s, met with Winsor in July, 1970, and had "discussions with him relating to the duty-free shop at Dorval."

Winsor added there were "both oral and written communications and representations on behalf of Mr. Lapointe" from Chevrier.

Winsor also said representations were made by "the minister of economic development, or at least a staff member from that department."

He added that the minister he was refering to was Jean Marchand and his staff. Last week, Carmel Carriere, Marchand's former executive assistant, testified that she had sent two memos to transport department officials inquiring about the Sky Shops lease.

But Winsor, the first defence witness called in the trial, testified that he was never aware of any representation on behalf of Sky Shops from Senator Giguere.

The representations made by Lalonde and Chevrier came in 1970, but the charges against Giguere specify that the alleged conspiracy took place between July 1, 1971, and Nov. 30, 1972.

Between the two of them, defence lawyer Bruno Pateras and Crown prosecutor Bernard Beaudry presented 15 letters and memos as evidence Monday.

Questions Offend Trudeau

OTTAWA (CP) — Prime Minister Trudeau has refused to answer a series of written questions by Conservative Tom Cossitt on the grounds that they are ironical, rhetorical, offensive and contain innuendo, satire and ridicule.

That decision angered the MP from Leeds who complained in the Commons Monday that only Speaker James Jerome has the power to rule questions out of order.

Cossitt's questions, submitted last October, asked whether Trudeau, during a trip to western Ontario last fall, said Canadians are too concerned with summer homes in the country and two cars in the yard.

If this was so, Cossitt asked, had the government, in the name of restraint, adopted a policy to close the prime minister's summer residence at Harrington Lake near Ottawa and to sell one of Trudeau's two $85,000 Cadillacs? If not, why not?

Trudeau declined to respond, citing parliamentary rules banning questions that are ironical, rhetorical, offensive, or contain epithet, innuendo, satire, ridicule, or inferences.

Jerome suggested that Cossitt resubmit his questions and said he will rule on their propriety then.

Cossitt didn't have much more luck with another question that Trudeau did answer.

Was it true, he asked, that during a February, 1978, meeting with British Columbia labor leaders, Trudeau said to them: "Do you think we are out to screw the Canadian people?"

"What is the full explanation of what the prime minister meant by this remark? Is the Prime Minister prepared to immediately produce evidence to Parliament showing that he is not out to 'screw' the Canadian people?" the Conservative MP asked.

Avoiding any mention of whether the question was satirical or ironical, Trudeau replied simply that he had not met labor leaders during his visit to B.C.

Treu Contracts Not Secret

OTTAWA (CP) — The NATO contracts which Montreal engineer Peter Treu received during his secret trial under the Official Secrets Act were not classified confidential, Prime Minister Trudeau told the Commons Monday.

Former Progressive Conservative leader Robert Stanfield (Halifax) asked how Treu could have received NATO contracts while he was facing charges of illegally possessing classified NATO documents.

"I am glad the honorable gentleman asks the question," Trudeau said. "I wish those who were writing so abundantly on that had thought of asking questions too.

"The simple answer is that the contracts received from NATO during that latter period were not classified confidential."

After the first secret trial in Canadian history, Treu was convicted April 28 of two counts under the Official Secrets Act and was sentenced to two years. He now is free on bail pending an appeal of his conviction.

Trudeau said he did not know whether Treu was informed that his security clearance was revoked when he left Northern Electric to set up his own consulting firm in December, 1973.

Opposition MPs and some press reports have suggested that Treu was not informed of his clearance revocation and did not know he was not supposed to have classified documents.

Bill Jarvis (PC—Perth-Wilmot) called on Trudeau to make public the criteria by the department of supply and service's industrial security branch to determine who is a security risk. The director of this branch revoked Treu's clearance.

"As it appears that there may not be an appeal from either a refusal to pass security clearance or a revocation of a previous security clearance, it makes the criteria doubly important," Jarvis said.

Trudeau said he did not recall the cabinet approving any such criteria, but would see whether they exist.

MAGUIRE CASE RECALLED

OTTAWA (FP) — Stanley M. Jenkyns, the federal official who revoked Dr. Peter Treu's security clearance in 1973, took part in another case in 1977 involving the loss of security clearance.

Jenkyns was the official ordered, on the instructions of Prime Minister Trudeau, to show portions of his personal file to Bernard Maguire. Maguire lost his job with CN Telecommunications in the Yukon three years ago because the RCMP allegedly considered him a security risk.

Jenkyns, security advisor for the department of supply and services, met Maguire in Edmonton, where the latter lives now, on May 25, 1977, an Ottawa union official told The Journal.

But Jenkyns denied Maguire a look at the complete dossier held by the government, the official said.

The partial look at the file followed a plea from Maguire's union, the Canadian Brotherhood of Railway, Transport and General Workers, to Trudeau, asking the reasons for Maguire's dismissal as a CN employee.

This Wednesday, Baldwin, and officials of the CBRTGW are holding a press conference on the Maguire case.

Maguire, according to union officials has made many efforts to clear his name, but so far far has been unsuccessful.

He now works as a bus driver in Edmonton because he can't find work in the telecommunications field.

Who Said That?

So Education Minister Pat McGeer has jumped on the Proposition 13 bandwagon!

He told North Vancouver Socreds last weekend that he is thinking about bringing back the referendum system for school district operating expenses, some variation of a system that was in effect for the last few years of the W. A. C. Bennett government but was removed by the NDP within weeks of their taking office.

That system, it should be explained, did not go as far as the California proposition and contained a number of built-in checks and balances to ensure that at least a minimum level of funding for schools would be maintained. It did not require referendum approval for all school operating expenses, only for those above a certain level, calculcated individually for each school district on the basis of a complicated mathematical formula.

Looking at McGeer's "new" idea, we can only think what a difference a few years make! To throw a little perspective on the situation, let's examine some quotes from Hansard, the fall session of 1972:

"I want to say to the new members of the House, for heaven sakes, speak up in support of the minister of education (then Eileen Dailly) and what she's trying to do. Because I think some damaging attitudes have been let loose on the land in British Columbia — that we've lost sight of the forest for the trees in education.

"My reasons for saying that is that we have 23,000 teachers in British Columbia. They use up about 80 per cent of the budget for primary and secondary education. Again and again we've heard words issued from the former (Social Credit) government to the fact that education would break the people of British Columbia. We've got a work force of almost 900,000 people. We have 70,000 unemployed that are seeking work. And those that are providing the education and taking up the educational budget are only 23,000. There just isn't any way at all that they can make a significant dent in the wealth of British Columbia and its ability to pay taxes.

"There is no way that those 23,000 teachers — and they are not paid generously, they're paid reasonably — there is simply no way that those people can put the finances of this province in jeopardy. It was complete irresponsibility on the part of the former government ever to put that suggestion in the heads of British Columbia, because it has done more to damage our educational system than anything that's happened in the history of our province.

"We know, of course, that property taxes which are used to finance far too much of the educational costs in this province are the most unpopular taxes of all. I dare say that at any time in our history, had we invited the taxpayers to take a kick at education in order to save a few dollars on this very unpopular tax, they would have done so.

"Again, it has been complete mischief to say that there is a taxpayers' revolt against the whole concept of education. What we are attempting to do is to raise a generation of British Columbians with the kind of opportunity in the world of knowledge that those who went before never had. To imbue them with the kind of attitudes that will lead to a better quality of life in British Columbia, that will make for better economic opportunity. And if we are to do that job, and to do it well, we have to put behind forever the kind of insanity that has dictated the educational budgets year after year after year after year in this province."

Yes, the speaker of those words was none other than Dr. Patrick McGeer, then Liberal MLA from Vancouver-Point Grey. And the NDP's bill which he was praising so fulsomely was none other than Bill 7, An Act to Amend the Public Schools Act, a bill which had as one of its main points the removal of the referendum requirement for any school district operating expenses. (A second bill to remove the requirement for a referendum on any capital expenses followed a year later.)

We couldn't have said it better ourselves.

He Just Goes Round and Round

Human Resources Minister Bill Vander Zalm hid from opposition critics and didn't appear in the legislature Monday to face question period criticism of his authoritarian plan to ship welfare recipients back to the boondocks.

No wonder. As a spokesman for the Downtown Eastside Residents' Association in Vancouver pointed out, Vander Zalm's policy, if such a word can be applied to the minister's off-the-top out loud thoughts, has come full circle.

Two years ago he said employable people could not collect welfare if they remained where there were few jobs, that is, communities in areas such as the Gulf Islands, the Slocan Valley, the Queen Charlottes, the Okanagan.

Now, having driven the young unemployed to Vancouver where their prospects were better (and besides, didn't the minister's GAIN program promise jobs for all who were willing?) Vander Zalm proposes a new wacky scheme to force them back to the small towns and Indian reserves from which they were forced in the first place because there were no jobs.

What the dickens is going on? Does the minister engage his brain before he opens his mouth? Is there no one in his department trained to provide him with at least a semblance of intelligent comment and opinion that keeps him current with his own department's policies? (An inherent impossibility, perhaps; trying to reconcile all of Vander Zalm's sayings would probably be like building the Parliament Buildings out of feathers and toothpicks.)

How much longer will Vander Zalm be allowed to continue terrorizing the poor and unfortunate with such asinine proposals?

RICHARD GWYN

Inflation Becomes Chronic

OTTAWA — Walking along a quite average Ottawa street the other day, I became aware of a curious, almost continuous, hum. House after house, I realized, had protruding from the window of an upstairs bedroom, an air conditioner. Most were new.

A friend who has just bought one of these machines explained why. He slept properly on hot nights. The thing didn't use all that much electricity. Then he gave his real reason: "What the hell, next year it'll cost at least 10 per cent more."

The headlines this week blared the news that the consumer price index jumped nine per cent in May and the cumulative rate over the past three months is 11 per cent.

Full-time Migraine

Finance Minister Jean Chretien called the increase "disappointing." It was due, he said, mainly to the meat. Chretien is right. Inflationary increases, however, always are due mainly to something or other: once it was food in general, then energy, then high wage settlements, then the speculative spiral of housing prices, then dollar devaluation, now meat. The "special circumstances" change; all that stays the same is that inflaton goes up and up.

The real story about inflation is that it now has become something we've never experienced before, no longer an occasional fever but a permanent migraine.

Inflation as a permanent condition makes people "disoriented and confused," as Judith Maxwell of the C.D. Howe Research Institute has put it. Some deliberately go deeply into debt, knowing they'll be paying off in devalued dollars. Some splurge today — last winter's exodus of eastern Canadians to Florida, for instance — in order to save on tomorrow's higher prices. Some simply forget what things are supposed to cost any more — a good example is the jump in chicken prices which have come about not because of production cost increases but because supermarkets calculate, correctly no doubt, that since beef prices are higher, consumers will take for granted that chicken prices ought to be up as well.

In late 1975, at the start of the wage and price controls program, the government set a target for the 1978 inflation rate of four per cent. The figure this year instead will be double that, or eight per cent.

The point here isn't that the government was wrong, but that it was living in a dream world and still is. Inflation rates of four per cent or less will return at about the same time that buggy whips come back into fashion. Today's rate, which brings us to the threshold of double-digit inflation, is happening despite the most determined anti-inflation program we've mustered since the war, and despite mass unemployment which discourages union militancy.

MILTON FRIEDMAN
. . . double digit next year

The realization that governments lack the means, but much more important the will, to do anything about inflation, is inspiring the experts to make some really scary predictions. A fortnight ago, the eminent U.S. economist Milton Friedman forecast that inflation would hit the double-digit mark in the U.S. in 1979, and so make a recession in 1980 "inevitable." This week, Barry Bosworth, director of the U.S. president's Council on Wage and Price Stability, said: "If we don't do something this year about inflation, we are going to go back into a recession. I give the economy no more than six months."

In Ottawa, official attitudes are different. No one's making gloom-and-doom forecasts. Instead, no one is doing anything.

Once wage and price controls were ended, said the government in its 1977 policy paper, Agenda for Co-operation, it would set up a "monitoring agency . . . to draw attention to cost and price changes that are not justified . . . with a view to influencing them."

That brave idea died at the first ministers' conference in Ottawa last February. Since governments hate to be seen to be doing nothing, the show still had to go on. Last week, in accordance with the premiers' wishes, the new alternative agency was set up. Its name is the Centre for the Study of Inflation and Productivity (CSIP). It would not, explained Economic Council chairman Sylvia Ostry, "hassle anyone." It would, instead, do studies.

Back to Dreams

Oh dear, dear, dear. No subject, except just possibly prairie freight rates, has been more studied by government than inflation has been. Let's accept that CSIP will do some useful work, even though to do it, the council's budget will be increased by more than 50 per cent, which is pretty inflationary in itself. It's back to a dream world, though, to suppose that genteel academic studies will make the slightest difference to inflation.

Mind you, the finance department has found a way to make a difference to the inflation rate. Officials explain that if you look, not at the official Statistics Canada figure but at the "underlying rate of inflation," which excludes the effects of the special cases of food and of energy, you'll find that inflation is down to a cozy six per cent.

That's great. If Canadians just would stop eating, heat their houses with wood and throw away their air conditioners, inflation soon will be wrestled to the ground.

Tour Guide Wanted

Mrs. Grace McCarthy, minister responsible for the travel industry continues to amaze and boggle the mind. Last year's financial litmus test for the industry displayed a crimson red. Despite the continued gum-banging this year, I'm not so sure things are much better. Some of the minister's schemes and hoaxes are getting a bit too bizarre.

1978 might be the year for the discovery of British Columbia. Amazing Grace, the woman who gave us the smile button, has really spent the bucks to promote that British sea captain who dropped anchor for a few days, dated the local girls and took off again. This dubious hero has given us all an excuse to rediscover our own boundaries and hopefully he will seduce the much needed, mad-spending hordes of tourists to our great land.

We, fellow readers, are presently being rescued from obscurity. British Columbia, formerly known as God's country, is suddenly in vogue. A chorus of angels sway on spine tingling melodies while idyllic scenes of the "Super, Natural" adorn the screen. The action is here, so stay home and enjoy. There aren't any slot machines, Waikiki beaches, Disneylands or pie in the sky, but we have got oil wells, historic parks, massive earth-filled dams, room for everybody, plus countless little Mother Earth creatures living off the land while avoiding leghold traps. How foolish we are to fly off for some sun in Hawaii, go for a cruise in the Carribean, or jog around Europe absorbing culture.

Statistics Canada shows so far this year that we prefer to go to the United States or overseas. Despite the fact that the dollar went spelunking, British Columbians are not travelling in their own home province. What is worse, out of province people are not coming in.

Perhaps, now that everyone has to pay $4 per night in the people's parks, this is where some of the magical revenue is coming from. The signs say $2 camping fee, $2 surcharge. I'm really not sure what surcharge is? Is it like a salt tax?

Oh, has anyone forgotten the provincial barge fleet? If my memory hasn't completely fogged with government financial statements, the rates were doubled not so long ago. And who did that?

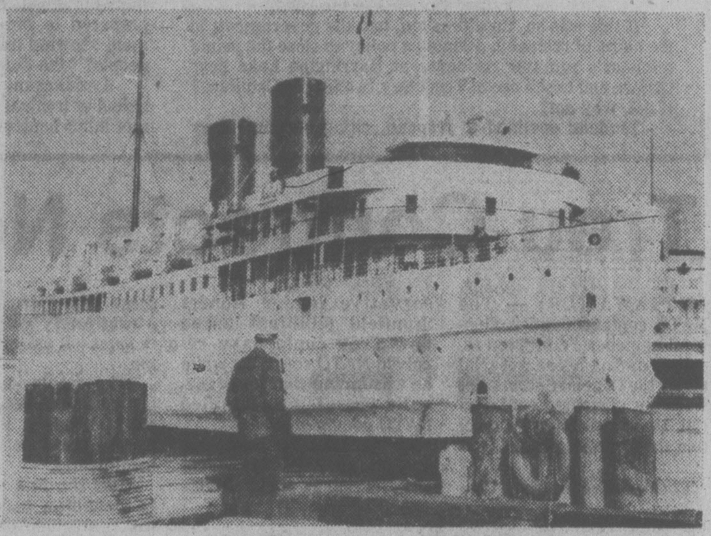
Revenues unrealized, resources squandered. It is time for the bumbling to stop. The travel industry is presently in need of a sensible and competent manager. Attention Canada Manpower. — Gary Anaka, Nanaimo.

Labor History

As the recently elected B.C. trustee of the Pacific Northwest Labor History Association, I want to do what I can to aid in founding B.C. chapters of this association.

Its objective is to foster a greater knowledge and awareness of labor history, not only among its own members but the general public and relevant institutions where it has been sadly neglected. Much of this history is in scattered accounts, some only in the memory of aging participants, both in danger of disappearing as time takes its toll.

In its first 11 years most of the emphasis of the PNWLHA has been on events in Oregon and Washington states. Both are rich in labor history and much has been done in its promotion. But B.C. is every bit as rich, if not richer, in labor history. But its history is even more unknown than its American counterpart. It is a situation I hope can be reversed before it is too late. I ask all those who would be interested in forming B.C. chapters of the Pacific Northwest Labor History Association to contact me so we can soon expedite the matter. — Larry Tickner, 589 Nora Place.



Would B.C. take over Princess Patricia to keep her running to Alaska?

Princess Patricia

Our group has recently asked the aid of Alaska Senator Bill Ray in helping keep the Princess Patricia on duty in Alaska waters. She is in good physical and mechanical condition, and is capable of giving many, many additional years of trouble-free operation. Perhaps Ray might be able to assist along a few possible lines of activity which could see the Princess retained.

☐ It is possible that the Princess Patricia could be chartered by the state of Alaska to work as a passenger-only Alaska ferry between Seattle and Skagway, calling en route, for example, at Ketchikan, Wrangell, Petersburg, Juneau and Haines. Such a passenger-only operation would help reduce the long waiting lists for cabins on the ferries Columbia and Malaspina

The Canadian Pacific steamers are exempt from the Jones Act by reason of "grandfather rights" which extend back at least to 1890, well before the Jones Act was passed, and at the time that Canadian Pacific and predecessor companies provided much local service along the southeast Alaskan coast.

As envisioned, the Patricia would then be operated by Canadian Pacific under contract to the state of Alaska; and in so doing, would keep alive the "rights" to be exempt from the Jones Act, which does not allow foreign-built ships, or foreign companies to conduct business between two U.S. ports.

☐ The Alaska congressional delegation might seek to have the Princess Patricia, and her sister Princess Marguerite on the Seattle-Victoria run, exempted from the holding tank requirements which are the issue forcing retirement. This requirement can well apply to new ships, but it is a hardship for all concerned to require such tanks in older ships. Capt. Hudson of the Princess Patricia recently told us: "We are being legislated out of business."

☐ Ray and others active in public life may be able to persuade Premier Bennett to purchase the Princess Patricia to add to the B.C. fleet which already includes the Princess Marguerite. This would make financing of holding tanks an easier proposition.

The Princess has been enormously popular, and stimulates affection and positive emotional responses which few other ships do in our day. She seems to enhance the lives of all who come in contact with her, and is deserving of every effort to have her working life continued at this time of uncertainty and peril. — Glenn Lee, Princess Patricia Committee, 101 W. Olympic Place, Seattle.

A Clarification

I would like to clarify some points that have arisen in connection with the project with which I am currently associated, namely the proposed affiliation between the Victoria Conservatory of Music and Camosun College in order to offer jointly a two-year diploma program in music.

It is intended that this program train students for a career in music, either in performance or in private music instruction.

A misconception has arisen out of the press reporting of the June 8 Camosun council meeting where this proposal was discussed.

It could be interpreted from the wording in the newspaper that the proposal, in its defence of the need for such a program, inferred that the university music program concentrates on academic pursuits at the expense of a concentration in music. Such is not, however, the case.

As a recent graduate of this program, I can personally attest to its intense emphasis on the learning of one's chosen instrument which amounts, with performance majors, to approximately 50 per cent of the total credit value of the course over four years. The university music student supplements this focus with courses in music history, theoretical subjects, and composition, as well as at least one course per year in a non-music area.

The proposed Camosun/Conservatory program likewise offers the student an intense concentration in the playing of his or her instrument with private instruction, ensemble work, and other related aspects of music. It also offers courses specifically designed to enable the student to instruct in his instrument.

The program does not, however, include the same range of "written" music and non-music courses as does the university program. This is consistent with the different objectives and philosophical approaches of the two institutions.

I would like to take this opportunity to state that both Rudolph Komorous, head of the music department at the university, and Dr. Peter Smith, the dean of fine arts, have been most helpful in the researching of this proposal, and have both expressed support for it, agreeing that it represents no conflict of interest.

I thank them for their time in this regard on behalf of the Victoria Conservatory of Music and Camosun College, as well as myself, and to apologize for any misunderstanding that the reports in the papers may have produced. — Denis Donnelly, 1041 Queens Avenue.

The Making of a Criminal

By NIGEL HAWKES
London Observer

Criminals are not like you and me. They lie, they cheat, they swindle their friends; they are devious, manipulating, bullying, and self-obsessed. They are, in a word, bent.

Or so claims a survey of the criminal personality recently published in the United States to a reception divided between horror and joy. The two authors of the survey, psychiatrist Samuel Yochelson and psychologist Stanton Samenow, have dared challenge the conventional view that criminals are made by poverty and poor social conditions.

On the contrary, says Yochelson and Samenow, criminals choose their way of life and are not driven to it by circumstances. It is a claim which has split the criminology world like a cleaver. On one side are the hard men, policemen and prison warders, who applaud the rediscovery of truths they have long known; on the other, academics and social workers who mutter about a betrayal of scientific method and liberal values.

Even the search for a "criminal personality" is a mistake, according to the conventional view of things. No such object exists, and to search for it is simply to retrace the errors of the 19th century, when scientists like the Italian Cesare Lombroso spent years measuring the skulls of criminals, to no useful result.

The irony is that Yochelson and Samenow would almost certainly have agreed with this view when they started their survey. That they finally came to quite different conclusions is either a tribute to their open-mindedness or, if you prefer, the perversion of mind which comes from chatting to criminals for 16 years.

The method they used was that of extended interviews with men who had committed crimes but had been found not guilty by reason of insanity. Over the years more than 250 such people were intensively interviewed, some for thousands of hours, and their responses recorded.

The first thing they discovered was that these supposedly insane criminals were by no means mad in a clinical sense. Most of them had long ago learned how to respond to prison psychiatrists with pat answers which quickly confirmed them as deranged. In fact, almost all were contemptuous of psychiatry and regarded psychiatrists as the easiest people in the world to con. "Doctor, if I didn't have enough excuses for crime before psychiatry. I sure do now," one of them said.

But the method Yochelson and Samenow used, though typical of psychiatry, did leave them open to scientific criticism. There were no controls, no interviews with normal people with which to compare the criminals, and the descriptions of what the criminals said were too subjective. There were no women in the sample.

As a result, many academics consider the work beneath contempt. "Baloney" was the description applied to the work by one academic psychiatrist quoted boldly but anonymously in Science. The hospital where Yochelson and Samenow worked, Saint Elizabeth's in Washington, D.C., tried to stop their book being published and when it was, banned it from the library.

Neither now works there; Yochelson died in November, 1976, before his work was published, and Samenow resigned last week to set up in private practice. In an interview in Washington, he defended his work and Yochelson's from the academic criticisms.

It was not intended, he said, to be an experimental study, but an attempt to generate theories of why criminals behave as they do. "What have we got to show for the existing theories?" he asked. "They don't work. With hardened criminals, nothing works. So what are we supposed to do? Lock them up and throw away the key?"

Volume One of Yochelson and Samenow's book, The Criminal Personality (Jason Aronson, New York) provides a portrait of the full-time criminal, gleaned from the hours of interviews. Criminals start young, many rejecting affection as small children. Some do come from broken homes, as in the conventional stereotype, but just as many come from stable families.

Childhood is spent in search of excitement, avoiding normal life which criminals describe as boring. Lying soon becomes habitual even when it can serve no useful purpose. What seems to matter is getting away with the lie, however trivial it may be.

Criminals establish few relationships not based on sexual dominance or a mutual interest in crime. Even the loyalty of one criminal to another is a myth; the study shows that double-crossing is the norm. Criminals are excessively interested in how they appear to others, terrified of being 'put down' and highly sensitive to criticism.

They are also amazingly active, avoiding rest and relaxation and moving restlessly from one thing to another. Although criminals often have their sentimental side, it has little effect on their behavior; a criminal can help a blind man across a road and then steal his wallet.

When he first started at St. Elizabeth's, Yochelson attempted to treat the criminals in a conventional psychiatric manner. The results, he thought, were good; the criminals seemed to enjoy the sessions and to benefit. After four years, they threw a party for Yochelson as a token of appreciation. All the food and drink was stolen from the hospital.

"He thought he had done so much," says Samenow. "In fact, he hadn't done a thing." Yochelson realized that changing the behavior of criminals would require a much more difficult and intensive therapy, which he and Samenow call "the changing process."

It starts, ideally, when the criminal is at his lowest ebb, when he has failed as a criminal and is back in jail or prison hospital. Instead of the normal gentle approach of the understanding therapist, Samenow is tough and critical. Instead of asking questions, he will make a series of statements about the criminal, making it clear that he doesn't particularly like him or the life he has led.

Surprisingly, says Samenow, no criminal has ever threatened violence or walked out during this attempt 'to enhance self-disgust.' The criminals are offered three choices: continued crime and its consequences, suicide, or change. If they opt to continue with the therapy, it continues for an hour a day for a year, on average, an unusually intensive treatment.

So far, of the 30 criminals who have embarked on the process, 13 have emerged as successes by the demanding standards Yochelson and Samenow set. It is not enough merely to avoid rearrest, the criterion adopted by many correctionl programs. Successes must behave impeccably, hold a job and advance in it, and not even think of crime. Their progress is monitored by a series of interviews after their release.

Is this triumph or failure? "Remember we're dealing with the toughest imaginable group, hardened criminals who have resisted any attempt at reform," Samenow says. Conventional psychiatric treatments, he says, produce criminals with insight, while conventional rehabilitation produces criminals with jobs; but they still think like criminals and will sooner or later return to crime.

In general, the nearer people are to criminals the more enthusiastic they are about the study. "Everything spoke absolutely to my soul," says Professor Robert Mills of the University of Cincinnati, who has spent eight years working in a prison psychiatric clinic.

Others have condemned it because it does not attempt to look at causes of crime, or because of its rather casual organization and lack of controls. "It's an opinion, not a study," says Professor Seymour Halleck of the University of North Carolina. Its best feature, he says, is that it is a beautiful description of the self-serving personality — but it says nothing useful about crime.

A chosen way of life?

Japan's Hidden Underside: the Urban Poor

Prosperous Japanese . . . not the whole story

By ANDREW H. MALCOLM

TOKYO — Women in colorful kimonos attending parties in celebration of plum and cherry blossoms. Scrubbed children gambolling off to school in bonnets and pressed shorts. Well-heeled businessmen in polished cars. And well-kept lanes lined with private gardens. Affluent Japan, 1978.

Tiny rooms shared by humans and vermin. Hallways where paint peels off raw, rusting metal. Aging bodies sleeping in the warm spring sunshine. Impoverished Japan, 1978. The same nation. Two different worlds. Both are real. But one is hidden.

Poor Japanese, especially poor urban Japanese, do not fit the stereotype of an energetic, innovative people, more than 92 per cent of whom consider themselves middle class, according to opinion surveys. Their presence is an embarassment to a society with a gross national product last year of close to $700 billion and a per capita income of $6,036 — an economy so booming that last week the governor of the Bank of Japan said he doubted Japan would be able, as hoped, to sharply reduce its huge trade surplus in fiscal 1978. But statistics do not tell the full story.

Officially, only 1.4 per cent of Japan's 113 million persons are on welfare. Many other poor persons, it is believed, have not signed up out of ignorance or, more likely, pride. In the traditions of the countryside, poor people were carried along by extended families. It is the post-war decline of this traditional grouping that has marked the growth of Japan's modest welfare system. The era of rapid economic growth, roughly from 1960 to 1973, drew millions of farmers and farmers' sons to jobs in the cities.

The heady boom days ended with the energy crisis of 1973, and a time of greatly slowed growth has ensued. Industry has yet to make many of the painful, necessary adjustments, but some have reduced hiring and even laid off employees, primarily from among the less-skilled or the higher-paid older workers. This has punched holes in Japan's much-hallowed "lifetime" employment system. The future looks worse, at least for those at the bottom. Unemployment ranks are growing; the jobless rate for March was 2.12 per cent, up from 1.94 per cent a year earlier. The figures seem slight by North American standards, but not to the Japanese who have lost their jobs. "Of course, we can't know the precise time lag," said Takuo Suzuki, director of a city welfare centre, "but we must expect that the number of poor will increase."

With the erosion of traditional ties that accompanied urbanization, the poor have nowhere to turn but to the government, which has been dominated by conservatives for all but a few months of the last three decades. Their policies, attuned more to industrial and financial development, resulted in a grudging development of welfare that, for instance, has yet to devise a program of pensions for the elderly. Currently, welfare payments and administrative expenses cost the national government $3.8 billion a year. Municipalities pay the remaining 20 per cent of the welfare tab. But increases are hard to achieve even though the Japanese cost of living is among the world's highest.

Every day about 150 men visit Suzuki's welfare office in the heart of Sanya, a notorious Tokyo slum whose name is synonymous with street derelicts. Officials say a typical case is an unskilled man in his mid-forties; if married, he is now divorced. A few of the men obtain day construction jobs for $16 per day. Since the inns are closed by day, others lie around the streets. When younger, some of these poverty victims join gangs which make profits from illegal gambling, drugs, protection and prostitution. Experts estimate that two-thirds of the country's gangsters come from the poor homes of Korean of Burakumin families. The latter are Japan's own "untouchable" caste, but both groups still feel the heavy hand of discrimination.

A growing number of welfare recipients are elderly, handicapped or ill. Few have the college education that has been a ticket to success in Japan. While national health insurance covers most medical costs, the simple expenses of daily living are too much. One such case is the Ichiro Taniguchi family, whose name is changed here at their request. Three years ago, Taniguchi fell ill. He is not sure why, but his wife confides that he is dying of lung cancer.

Taniguchi left his father's farm in the 1950s for a construction job in Tokyo. "I was foreman of 20 men," he says. Unable to work, however, he was forced out of his home and now lives with his wife, their four children and a stray pet pigeon in a 48-square-foot room in a charity's dormitory for poor families.

Each month they receive 162,000 yen in welfare payments, the equivalent of something over $700 at today's inflated exchange rates. Of that, 14,000 goes for utilities. The city also gives them a bus pass and 180 free tickets to a public bath: that amounts to 30 baths a year for each member of the family.

The case is typical, say social workers, and the family's situation will worsen when the father dies, possibly next year. Then, their welfare allotments will be cut. And they will have to move. "Life in affluent Japan is fine so long as you're in the mainstream," said one slum worker, "but once you get crosswise of the rigid system, then you don't bounce back."

Pumping Quarters

russell baker

Knowing nothing about gambling and being eager to cut a suave figure in Atlantic City, I went to Reno for instruction under a man named Ernie.

"We'll start you out on slot machines," said Ernie, which seemed appropriate since the entire city of Reno seemed to be one gigantic slot machine. He took me to one that seemed suspiciously small. "Just put your money in the machine," he said.

I objected. When I put money into a slot machine, I expect it to give me back 30 pounds of damp laundry. This machine was too small to wash two pairs of socks.

"It's not supposed to wash things," said Ernie.

Did I get a candy bar?

"Of course not."

I put in a large sum of money quickly. The machine gobbled the money with a series of satisfied clinks and belches, and stared at me like a machine that wanted more.

"This machine is broken, Ernie. Let's report it to the management."

Ernie said not to behave like a greenhorn. The machine was designed to keep most of the money put into it so there would be enough in it for some lucky person to whom it took a fancy.

What could I do to make it like me?

"Put in more money," said Ernie.

I did. This apparently angered the machine. It was a machine whose affections could not be bought.

Could I not have saved myself from the humiliation of rejection, in addition to the costs of a trip to Nevada, by taking my week's salary to the 59th Street Bridge and dropping it into the East River?

"True," said Ernie, "but you would have missed the thrill of gambling."

All around us for blocks and blocks thousands of people were enjoying the thrill of gambling. Most of them, people of advanced years, were pumping their Social Security cheques into machines with an intensity of purpose and a glassiness of eye that would have appalled their life insurance agencies.

"You don't have the dedication it takes to make a great slot-machine player," said Ernie. "You're probably a roulette man."

He pointed to a large wheel and a small ball engaged in counter-rotation. All around it sat people surrendering money in return for the right to see where the ball would come to rest on the wheel.

I had never been interested in watching balls come to rest on wheels.

"Of course not," said Ernie. "That's because you don't have a week's pay riding on a bet that the ball will come to rest on a number you like. Try it."

A quick look at the wheel indicated that the ball had a choice of something like 35 or 40 numbers to come to rest on. I didn't like any of them. I put down a large sum on number one because it reminded me of Richard Nixon, who seemed to make money at whatever he did.

"Don't be paranoid," said Ernie. "There are almost 40 numbers that ball can choose from. When you choose one, it means you got almost 39 chances to lose against only one chance to win."

Then why didn't I bet on myself to lose, since it was almost a sure thing?

"Because that's what the house bets," said Ernie, "and under the rules you've always got to bet against what the house bets."

It sounded as if the house could never lose.

"Practically never," Ernie said.

And what it could never lose was my money?

"You don't understand the thrill of gambling," said Ernie. "The thrill of gambling is what happens to you that big night when you prove to the house that nobody — even you — can be a sap 100 per cent of the time."

* * *

How long did it take to experience this thrill?

"You're probably a poker man," replied Ernie.

It seemed unlikely.

"A dice player," Ernie said.

I said I preferred the laundromat. You hardly ever lost more than a few socks.

"You've got no sense of public responsibility," said Ernie. "Do you realize that Nevada needs your money to avoid bankruptcy? That Atlantic City needs your money so it can quit being a crummy, rundown dilapidation and become the Queen City of the Eastern Seaboard?"

I proposed sending a month's salary to the governor of Nevada and another to the mayor of Atlantic City.

"That would look like you're trying to corrupt public life," said Ernie.

I didn't want to corrupt public life. I found a slot machine that despised me and pumped a quick fortune down its maw, and after that my shirt. It was thrilling.

Canada Honors Cypriot

NICOSIA — Canadian External Affairs Minister Donald Jamieson on Monday presented his country's Star of Courage to the widow of a man who died while trying to save a Canadian soldier in a United Nations peacekeeping unit from drowning last year.

The award, described by Jamieson as "one of the great honors of our nation," was presented to Tassoula Kariolou.

Her husband, professional diver Andreas Kariolou, had drowned while helping Sgt. Andre Dupont of Quebec, whose air supply had run out 30 metres down off the southern coast of Cyprus.

Kariolou gave the dying Canadian soldier oxygen from his own tank, before he himself finally succumbed. Jamieson said Monday night it was a "most gracious and generous act of courage."

Canadian troops have been serving with the UN peacekeeping force in Cyprus since it was set up 14 years ago, and Kariolou instructed many of them in diving techniques.

ROYAL SNUB FOR CHARLES' EX?

LONDON — Prince Charles has refused an invitation to the wedding of Princess Caroline of Monaco next week.

A spokesman at Buckingham Palace said today the prince has "a very full work load and could not find the time to go."

Caroline, 21, daughter of Prince Rainier and Princess Grace, was once tipped as a possible bride for Charles, who will be 30 in November. She is marrying French businessman Philippe Junot, 17 years her senior.

The palace comment followed news media enquiries after early editions of the tabloid Daily Mirror said Charles had "snubbed" the Rainiers. It said that when the wedding takes place, Charles will be at a meeting which "could not be postponed" — a meeting with his private secretary to plan his activities, engagements and duties for the next six months.

MOBILE, Ala. — A teenager risked his life, jumping in front of a runaway pickup truck to try to save an old woman. She died. And the courageous youth must remain anonymous because he is serving time as a juvenile offender and Alabama law forbids release of his name.

He was on a day outing with probation officers and several other young offenders last Friday. They had had a picnic lunch and he strolled over to a bridge where two women and a man were fishing.

He saw out of the corner of his eye a red pickup truck, rolling toward them down an incline. It had no driver. He realized it was going to hit one of the women, who was sitting with her back to the truck. He acted.

"I didn't have time to think," he says now. "I just did it."

He moved in front of the truck. It struck the boy and the woman, pinning the woman to a bridge guard rail. She had no chance to move. He had put his hands on the truck but had no chance to stop it. One of his legs was momentarily trapped.

Other youths quickly ran to the scene, helped push the truck away and began treating the woman, 68-year-old Sara Sanders, for shock. She died later in hospital.

"He literally risked his life for her," says the youth centre superintendent, Gary Hazelton.

The boy faces between six months and two years in detention programs because of a recent shoplifting case, but Hazelton says of his actions last Friday: "We think it reflects his character."

SAN FRANCISCO — Patricia Hearst's mother today termed "totally ridiculous" a report in Newsweek magazine that her daughter plans to marry a former bodyguard.

TOKYO — King Juan Carlos and Queen Sofia of Spain arrived in Kwangchow in South China's Chekiang Province Monday afternoon, the Chinese Hsinhua News Agency said.

DOYLESTOWN, Pa. — Actress-comedienne Judy Carne, recovering from a neck fracture, has been removed from the serious condition list at Doylestown Hospital, and is in fair condition, said a nursing supervisor.

That's right, that's 18.

Two of the Burns's 20 children — Kathy and Eileen — live out of state and couldn't make the celebration.

"Thanks gang," Burns said after the choral greeting.

The Burns's kids range in age from one to 26. Fifteen of them live at home, sharing the seven bedrooms and four bathrooms.

SUSSEX, Wis. — Residents may have thought the truck was roaring off to a fire. But it was Corky Curtis, his bride Janet and their wedding party roaring through town in a fire truck after a wedding.

Curtis wanted to surprise his bride, so he had two old fire engines waiting outside when they left the church Saturday.

The new Mrs. Curtis could almost have expected it. Her husband is a Sussex volunteer fire fighter. Her father Robert Schlei is a fire captain. One of her uncles, Arne Peterson, is the chief, another uncle, Charles Zimmerman, is assistant chief and most of the 40 members of the fire department were at the wedding.

Fine Liners Try for Third

A comparatively new amateur theatre group which has recorded initial success with two productions raises the curtain on a third Wednesday at 8 p.m.

Holiday is the name of the three-act play by Philip Barry, which will be performed nightly except Sunday through June 29 at the Eric Martin Theatre, 2334 Trent.

The Fine Line Players is a group comprised of friends, relatives, staff and associates of the Day Hospital Program at the Eric Martin Institute. After experiencing the exhilaration of sold-out performances for their first production, The Last Analysis, by Saul Bellow, the Players launched a program of two Theatre of the Absurd one-acts — The Dumbwaiter, by Harold Pinter and The Pawnshop, by Guy Hamel. Subsequently Tom Smith, who played Gus in The Dumbwaiter, was awarded Best Actor in the South Island Zone Drama Festival held this spring.

May Mack, assisted by Smith, is the director of Holiday which concerns the pleasure and discomfiture generated by a family's reverence for wealth and social status.

Huddle Tonight On Skate Bowl

Residents of the Anderson Park district of Esquimalt will meet tonight to review their earlier support of a proposed $14,000 skateboard bowl to be built under the Nighborhood Improvement Program.

Esquimalt council Monday received a petition from G. R. Banfield, a member of the NIP advisory board, and 20 other residents requesting a meeting with the NIP co-ordinator to discuss matters such as parking and other effects upon the neighborhood.

Earlier, council approved in principle about 20 projects, the Anderson Park skatebowl included, to be undertaken in the current phase of neighborhood improvement. Aldermen agreed to table the matter until after tonight's meeting of citizens, members of the advisory committee and co-ordinator Ed Alexander.

In other business, council accepted the high bids of R.F. Tull, 650 Beach, tendered for two municipally-owned lots near the Gorge waterfront, one for $43,000, the other $40,000.

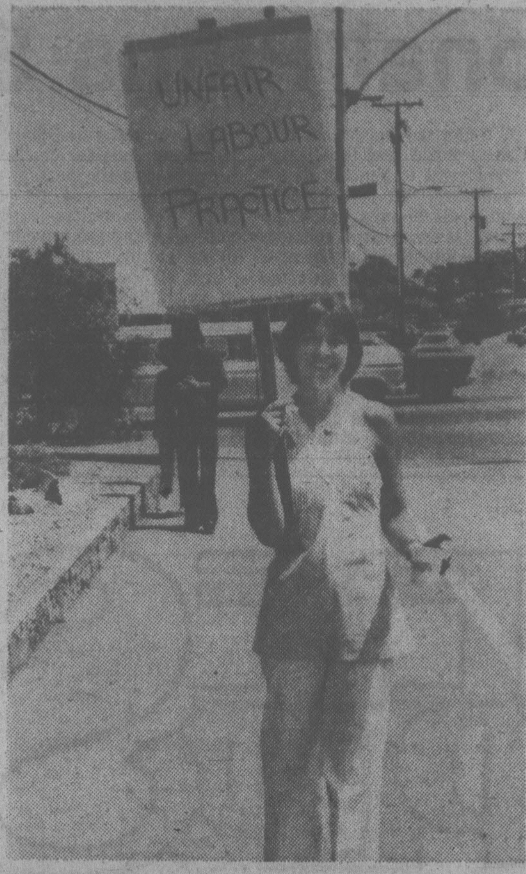
Council last year expropriated the land from Concord Development Corp. in order to secure a right of way for sewerage. After waterfront provision for underground works was made, the lots were offered for resale, minus the waterfront strip, with bids ranging upward from $22,000.

Tahsis Probe

Health Minister Bob McClelland said Monday his ministry will investigate reports that 17 per cent of workers at the Tahsis pulp mill on the west coast of Vancouver Island are suffering work-related lung damage.

"We'll look into it, I'm sure," McClelland said. "But it doesn't look like an extremely scientific study with only one person doing it."

Dr. Theodore Sterling of Simon Fraser University said last week the workers' decreased lung functions appear to be connected with their exposure to sulphur compounds within the mill.



PRETTY PICKET Debbie Lomas, 20, went public Monday to express her feelings about Denny's Restaurant at Douglas and Finlayson. She paraded in front of the restaurant to protest what she said was an immediate layoff Friday as soon as she had given two weeks' notice. A decision on her case is to be made after the district manager hears details of the story today. Debbie says she'll settle for an apology. (Bill Halkett photo)

Sooke Vote Delayed

A referendum scheduled to be held Saturday in Sooke has been postponed indefinitely because of last-minute complications.

Residents of the Sooke Fire Protection District were to have voted on whether they wanted to authorize borrowing up to $200,000 for the purchase of land for a Sooke community services centre.

Charles Perkins, Capital Regional District director for Sooke, announced the postponement Monday, saying the CRD has been denied an option on a key property within the proposed community centre.

An advance poll was to have been held Wednesday for those unable to vote on Saturday.

"Without an option on this property it would be impossible to proceed with the concept as it has been outlined to the people of Sooke," Perkins said.

Okay Coming for Mobiles

Sidney council is expected to approve a land-use contract for a multi-million dollar mobile home park on 33 acres of land between Canora and the Pat Bay Highway.

The majority of residents who attended a public hearing in the Sidney firehall Monday appeared to approve of the project, to be built by Leisure Villa Estates Ltd. of Vancouver.

Sidney Mayor Dick Leigh said council will make its decision next Monday.

The development calls for 249 mobile home lots on 24 acres of the 33-acre parcel.

The land until recently was in the agricultural land reserve.

Sidney Ald. Jerry Tregaskis, a regional director, led the struggle to remove the land from the reserve to permit the development.

The Capital Region planning staff, as well as several directors, opposed the project.

Officials Study Pilots' Issues

Air Canada normally handles about 37,000 customers a day at this time of year. A company spokesman said Monday a contingency plan was being implemented to try to place passengers with other airlines where possible, and to prepare for a possible shutdown.

The main issue in the dispute is first-class travel privileges for the airline's 1,500 pilots, who have been without a contract since the end of January.

In 1971, the pilots received a letter of intent from Kent Davis, then Air Canada's vice-president for flight operations, confirming that flight crews would fly first class when travelling to an assignment or coming home from one.

CALPA contends that the airline acted illegally in March, 1977, when it removed the right of first and second class officers to "deadhead" to and from assignments in the first-class section. Captains continue to travel first class.

"Air Canada can't just take certain privileges away without us reacting to it," Roger Burgess-Webb of CALPA said Monday.

"So we're ready to go on strike unless Air Canada comes up with something worth listening to."

He added, however, that the union is willing to wait until Sunday night before issuing a final strike order.

Air Canada, for its part, expressed "dismay that its pilots would consider striking over the issue of first class flying privileges."

A conciliation commissioner recommended recently that the two parties submit the dispute over deadheading to an arbitrator. The parties agreed to do this, but could not agree whether to negotiate the balance of the contract while the arbitrator is studying the dispute.

The company insists negotiations for a new contract should continue while the matter is under arbitration, but the pilots refuse to consider arbitration within the context of the current negotiations. They contend it would prejeudice their bargaining position.

Slot-Machine Loto 'Death'

government as it is federally-run and controlled.

Ottawa has been taking 82 per cent of the net proceeds from Loto Canada and the provinces have been dividing up the remaining 18 per cent.

Mrs. McCarthy said she understands that by the end of 1979 Ottawa will have taken in far more than the amount needed to clear the Olympic deficit.

Various cabinet ministers in 1976 said Loto Canada would not operate beyond Dec. 31, 1979, without consulting the provinces.

Mrs. McCarthy said Ottawa is now in violation of this agreement.

She said Ottawa is thrusting a new contract on the provinces against their wishes.

Under the new formula the federal government will get 50 per cent of the net proceeds and the remaining 50 per cent will be divided up among the 10 provinces.

The amount of revenues coming to B.C. will not begin to make up for loss of revenues which will be suffered by the 275 non-profit organizations which will be affected if the Express and Provincial are forced out of business.

Mrs. McCarthy said the high-pressure sales tactics of Loto Canada have already cut into the B.C. lottery market and there would be little hope that the Express and Provincial could survive the expensive advertising campaign planned by Loto Canada for their machines.

While Ottawa has said it will share half the proceeds, there would be no control over costs of the machine lottery, she said.

For example, it is reported Ottawa has already bought the machines in the United States and no bidding procedure was used.

"This is no way for a government to be operating."

Mrs. McCarthy said the B.C. government is planning several lines of attack:

—B.C. would ask Ottawa to live up to its 1976 agreement to end Loto Canada at Dec. 31, 1979.

—Protest rallies and telegrams of protest are planned.

—If the federal government does not listen to the provincial protests, B.C. will try to take legal steps to bar the machines.

She said a provincial government and the people should be consulted before such a major step is contemplated.

She said the Express lottery is a more reasonable gambling device because people buy a ticket and then wait for the draw.

"They have something to look forward to and it is not costing very much. With these machines, there is no limit to what could be spent."

Constitutional Plans Spelled Out

OTTAWA (CP) — Prime Minister Trudeau took steps Tuesday to transform the Senate and Supreme Court of Canada and to give the country a set of national aims and guaranteed human rights.

Introducing legislation to rewrite the British law that serves as Canada's constitution, Trudeau laid out plans that would remake the Senate into a 118-seat "House of the Federation" with power only to delay — not veto — legislation passed by the elected Commons and to ratify appointments to the Supreme Court and some government agencies.

The court would be enlarged to 11 from nine, described formally in the constitution. Now, there is no mention of the high court in the 1867 British North America Act which serves as the country's underlying law. The enlarged court would be enshrined as the arbiter in constitutional power-sharing disputes between the 10 provinces and the federal government.

Under the legislation, Trudeau would give up his current right to appoint all 104 senators, letting provinces pick half the members of the new, larger House and federal political parties the rest.

And he would give the country its first formal set of constitutional aims and rights, including guaranteed French and English language rights.

The governor-general would be given more power, but Canada would remain a constitutional monarchy headed by the Queen.

Trudeau reiterated that he has set a one-year deadline for parliamentary passage of the legislation, and set out plans for committee study and talks with the provinces in the interim.

It is his third major effort at constitutional reform during his 10 years as prime minister, and the 11th in the last half century. Past attempts to renovate the BNA Act and make it a Canada law have collapsed in disagreement, mainly over ways of dividing power between federal and provincial governments.

Under the bill, the House of the Federation would be made up of 58 members selected by the Commons, 58 by the provinces and one each from the Yukon and Northwest Territories.

Membership of the new chamber would be partly reshuffled after each federal or provincial election. The members selected by the Commons, for example, would be rearranged in line with party standings in the elected House after each general election. Each province's representatives would be similarly shuffled to conform with party divisions in the provincial legislature after an election there.

Negatory! Too Many Good Buddies

Bill Halkett photo

By DEREK SIDENIUS
Times Staff

The Happy Wanderer's looking glum.

"Danged thing," he says twirling the dial of his Citizen Band radio.

"Used to be I could switch on and talk to anybody I wanted. But not now."

Static-laden voices swirl from the speaker in his car.

"The other day I picked up a couple of guys talking from somewhere down in Texas. Texas! And I can't even get a break to modulate with that trucker who just passed us."

He's incredulous. He's sad. But the Happy Wanderer is not alone.

Waits of half hour to an hour are not uncommon. And after 3 p.m. when schools are out, forget it!

Little wonder it's reached this stage.

For three years the sales of CB sets were nothing short of spectacular.

It reached fever pitch late last summer when the Canadian government announced that after Jan. 1 it would no longer approve licences for mass-produced 23-channel sets that failed to meet new standards. The deadline was later extended to this July.

Prices plummeted as dealers scurried to unload their stocks. Sets were sold at cost, and even below, in supermarkets, department stores and service stations.

Everyone had a bargain — except the manufacturers. They ended up bankrupt.

Since February sales have dwindled inexorably.

A year ago CB sales accounted for 40 per cent of his business. This year he'll count himself lucky if the figure reaches 15 per cent.

Larry Reid, district manager of Communications Canada in Vancouver, believes the decline is due partly to a saturated market, and partly to a general tightening up of money and the sluggish economic situation.

There's also the hard fact 40-channel CB sets which now are replacing the 23-channel models cost a great deal more — about $150 compared with $40 to $50.

It's impossible to tell how many sets are in use.

Reid says there are about 40,000 CB licence holders in the Vancouver area and 22,000 more on Vancouver Island, in both cases more than triple the number of only two years ago.

Add to that the illegal unlicenced users. Reid estimates they could account for another 15 to 20 per cent.

There's little argument about the effect of the CB-buying frenzy — monumental congestion.

The problem is aggravated by skip-jumping, a phenomenon that occurs when the CBs sky wave signal bounces off the ionosphere and returns to earth 1,000 to 1,500 miles from its point of origin.

The radiation from the sun causes increased ionization of the ionosphere which acts as a reflecting plate for the radio waves.

This explains how it is possible for CB sets in Victoria to pick up signals originating in southern United States and Mexico.

It's against the law to "talk skip" or communicate over the sky waves, but of course it happens, all the time.

"I get a lot of complaints about the congestion," says Hodgson.

He says some CBers have simply switched off their sets, waiting for better days. Others are trading in for 40-channel sets, with which it's still possible to find an open channel.

Still others, less scrupulous, are overcoming the problems by attaching amplifiers which boost the ground signal by as much as 15 times the set's accredited 30-mile range. The ampliers obliterate all other signals and cause serious disruption to normal radio and TV reception. They're illegal, and persons caught with them face a maximum $1,000 fine.

To combat the boosters, the federal communications department is purchasing tracers, at $15,000 a crack, to locate amplifier-equipped sets. One is expected to go into operation in the Vancouver area before the end of the year.

The CB congestion has probably hit boaters harder than anyone else. At first, the CB was seen as the answer to cheap ship-to-shore communications. But now an increasing number of boaters are painfully realizing the old adage you only get what you pay for.

Ken Chatfield, manager of Ball & Shemilt Electonrics here, says there's a swing towards VHF (very high frequency) equipment. Even though VHF sets are considerably more expensive ($500 and up), he says, they offer a much higher degree of safety. They operate on more channels — 55 — and are the only radio frequencies monitored and used by the coast guards.

"No one fools around on VHF," he says. "But CBs, that's another story. There's too much playing and not enough control to ensure if you're in trouble you'll get help."

Chatfield feels, however, CBs have their place and their popularity, as evidenced by the massive buying spree in recent years, will return.

"What we're in now is a levelling-off period," he says. "But wait another 12 months . . ."

OTTAWA LENDS $6 MILLION

160 Jobs Predicted At New Plane Plant

The federal government will loan Trident Aircraft Ltd. $6 million to operate an aircraft-assembling plant at Pat Bay airport, creating 160 new jobs.

The announcement was made Monday by federal Trade and Commerce Minister Jack Horner and follows more than one year of negotiations with Trident president Dave Hazelwood.

In a separate interview, Hazelwood said the company will begin work Aug. 1 in an existing hangar at Pat Bay airport with 20 employees and this will quickly rise to 160 workers before year's end.

The B.C. Development Corporation will construct a building of about 85,000 square feet and lease it to Trident, Hazelwood said.

The company will assemble the amphibious Trigull 320, a small plane selling at about $105,000.

Trident has firm orders for 43 planes and reservations for 25 more.

Ottawa one year ago indicated it would support the project but waited 12 months to see if Trident could get orders for the planes before agreeing to provide advance financing.

BCDC has provided $700,000 to help with the venture.

Plane parts will be constructed in various centres, including Vancouver, and the planes assembled at Pat Bay.

"The Sidney area is ideal for us," Hazelwood said, "because we can test the planes right there on land and water."

The BCDC is negotiating now with the ministry of transport to obtain land for the permanent Trident building.

If land can't be found on federal property inside the airport, a site will be obtained just outside the property line, Hazelwood said.

"There is some urgency in this because construction of our permanent building will have to be under way before the end of the year."

He said the work force might eventually rise to the range of 200 within two or three years, depending upon the number of sales.

He said a figure of 200 immediate jobs referred to by Horner in his announcement included about 40 jobs in the Vancouver area with subcontractors for Trident.

Sales for the planes are to U.S. markets but overseas customers are hoped for in the near future, Hazelwood said.

A U.S. firm, Grumman Aircraft Corporation, is providing financing and technical assistance.

Trident started up at Pat Bay one year ago with a staff of 28 but had to let 22 go because the expected federal loan did not materialize. The remaining six were sent out to get orders for the plane to demonstrate to Ottawa the project was viable.

In Victoria, Municipal Affairs Minister Hugh Curtis said he has urged various cabinet ministers to consider the plane when they are making future purchases. For example, it might be suitable for the ministry of health as an air ambulance.

Curtis said federal and provincial funding authorities had suggested Hazelwood consider a Vancouver site for his plant but Curtis said both he and Hazelwood campaigned for the Pat Bay site.

Transit HQ Coming Here

Victoria has been selected as the site of the Urban Transit Authority's head office, Municipal Affairs Minister Hugh Curtis announced Monday.

The authority, which will supervise municipal bus operations across the province, will employ between 50 and 60 at head office, Curtis said.

"This means a net gain of about 40 jobs for Victoria."

The remaining employees are already in the city.

Under B.C. Hydro, the head office for transportation was in Vancouver.

Curtis said no construction will be necessary for the Victoria office because the city already has a good supply of spare office space.

The new transit authority will plan and coordinate activities of transportation services, which become the responsibility of municipalities next year.

Curtis said Victoria was selected as the headquarters site because the authority should be as close as possible to the various ministries involved in transportation.

The head office will handle planning and administration and will be the core of the province-wide network of transportation services.

FRAUD FALLOUT

'Pyramid' Auction

More than $30,000 worth of goods seized in connection with a million dollar pyramid sales and fraud scheme in Greater Victoria last year will be auctioned June 27.

The auction will begin at Lunds, 926 Fort, at 7 p.m.

The goods were seized by Victoria Sheriff Bill Lee following the conviction last December of 31-year-old Lauren Gail Phillips on 19 counts of fraud.

Saanich police described the fraud as a massive pyramid sales operation.

At the time of her arrest, Phillips had orders for $4.5 million worth of merchandise and had received $750,000 from persons who thought they were buying goods at cut-rate prices through estate sales.

Among the items up for auction are several pieces of oak furniture, appliances, stereo equipment, golf clubs, paintings, 10 lots of reference books on antiques and 30 lots of stamps.

The money derived from the auction will be turned over to claimants in the case on a pro rata basis.

Phillips was sentenced to two years less a day in jail in January and based on parole guidelines could be released as early as December.

Camosun Contract

The architectural firm that designed the University Centre at the University of Victoria has been awarded a contract by Camosun College.

The Wade Williams Partnership will be involved in a college project to renovate extensively its Lansdowne campus and to add a new multi-purpose complex.

North Saanich Backs Region Appointments

North Saanich council has come out narrowly in support of legislation that would see regional board members appointed by councils rather than elected by voters.

The bill was tabled in the legislature earlier this month

Mayor George Westwood and Ald. Eric Sherwood voted against it while Ald. Lawrence Fast abstained.

Westwood, in an interview today, said he is unhappy with the result and noted three of the four aldermen who approved the new legislation were defeated at the polls in last November's election of Capital Regional Board directors.

Westwood, who represents North Saanich on the board, said he feels Curtis acted prematurely in proposing the change as a special committee formed to review the functions of the CRD has not yet completed its report.

"It casts some doubt on what the minister feels about the value of regional boards," Westwood said.

He said appointees to the board should be elected by the people because they deal with a considerable amount of taxpayers money and should be answerable.

Marina Meet

A public meeting of the North Saanich Advisory Planning Commission won't be held tonight as reported in the Times Monday, but next Tuesday, June 27.

The meeting, called to review an application for a housing and marina development at Tsehum or Shoal Harbor, will be held at Parklands Secondary School.

The Happy Politician

That being the case, Saanich Mayor Mel Couvelier should be happier than most.

On May 9 Couvelier told reporters from the Times and Colonist he'd been disturbed by the "low-slung" dress Trisha MaryMoon, a representative for the Victoria Rape Relief Centre, had worn to an intermunicipal committee meeting.

A month later, however, the mayor had a different story to tell.

Couvelier had first indicated his disapproval of MaryMoon's blouse during the meeting, and when the reporters asked him to clarify his position he forged ahead without hesitation.

"Did you see her blouse for God's sake! The thing was down to here," he said pointing to his midriff.

The mayor went on to say he didn't like the idea of any woman appearing before school boys lecturing about rape when she was dressed in such a manner. (Rape Relief workers lecture in Victoria schools when requested to do so.)

But today Couvelier's recollection of those remarks has all but faded away. What he can remember is foggy indeed, as evidenced by a recent letter he sent to Victoria Labor Council secretary-treasurer Larry Ryan. (Ryan has been critical of the mayor's "uncalled-for" comments.)

Couvelier told Ryan his remarks were made in a whispered aside to Victoria Mayor Mike Young. He made no mention of the fact he talked to reporters about it.

Couvelier also said a picture of MaryMoon that had appeared in the newspapers had shown her dressed differently.

Not so. MaryMoon wore the same dress, the same "low-slung" blouse for the press photographer that she'd worn for the intermunicipal committee.

If politicians with short memories do indeed lead happy lives then Couvelier must have been laughing when he wrote that letter . . . the reporters who'd been at the committee meeting certainly laughed when they read it.

About That Gold . . .

Last week the Times carried an article about a prospector, Bev Hopton, who claimed to have discovered gold in downtown Victoria.

It now appears he was by no means the first.

According to old clippings in our library, a certain William Miles of Port Alberni became similarly excited back in 1897 when he noticed flecks of yellow in rock outcroppings beside the road at the Government-Courtney intersection.

Miles promptly staked his claims and tried to obtain permission from city council to begin excavations . . . for a shaft underneath the new Post Office!

Unfortunately for him, the officials ruled that the gold was not nearly as valuable as the surrounding real estate.

TOWN TALK

Charles and Bertha Holt came here from Toronto to live eight years ago and during those years Mrs. Holt has been writing their six grandchildren in Toronto and Thunder Bay, telling them about life in Victoria.

A writer, Mrs. Holt has put a collection of the letters in a book called Grandmother's Stories to Grandchildren, that is now available at several city stores.

In her 70s, Mrs. Holt says her book has provided employment for six local people.

The book was illustrated by Dale Hitchcock and published by Robinson Press.

One observer of the Japanese Tall ships sail training exercise was a bit puzzled.

How come hundreds of Victorians with Japanese cameras are photographing a Japanese ship to celebrate Capt. Cook? he asked.

Is the way to a politician's vote through his stomach? Some people think so.

The representative for a developer recently called up Victoria Ald. Bill McElroy and offered to take him out to lunch. He wanted to explain to McElroy just what his client's position was on a proposed major new development.

But McElroy declined the invitation, explaining that it's been his policy since the day he was elected not to accept free lunches or to hold private conversations with developers over land-use matters.

Monday, however, McElroy said he's been giving some thought to changing that policy slightly.

"I'm so poor these days I should start taking more of those free lunches, but I think maybe I'll just start asking for food hampers instead," he said.

McElroy is a full-time alderman, having quit his regular job last year when he won his seat. An alderman is paid about $8,000 a year in salary.

Still with signs at the Victoria Law Courts: The building got new front steps amid all the renovations when two floors were added. The old ones were getting chipped.

The steps look great. Except when it rains. Then the unwary (and it has happened) can take a tumble.

Someone realized something should be done, so on the door is posted a small sign saying "stairs very slippery when wet."

Just great — except the sign can't be read by anyone coming in, only going out. Why not fix the steps before a broken leg and lawsuit occur?

Toronto

TORONTO (CP) — The Toronto stock market was fractionally lower in active trading at mid-afternoon.

A halt continued in shares of Q Broadcasting Ltd. It last traded at $8⅞.

Among other industrials, Hudson's Bay Co. fell ⅛ to $21½, Bow Valley Industry ¼ to $29, Canadian Pacific ⅛ to 19, Ashland Oil ¼ to $22¼ and Bell Canada ¼ to $56¾.

New York

NEW YORK (AP) — The stock market lost ground, as traders expressed concern over interest rates, inflation and the value of the U.S. dollar.

Analysts said trades, who in recent months had been indifferent to higher interest rates, now appeared concerned. The Federal Reserve met in Washington Tuesday, and most experts believed the board would tighten credit in an attempt to rein the growth of money supply.

Although the board rarely announces its decision, money-market specialists usually can spot changes of policy within a day or two.

Montreal

MONTREAL (CP) — Prices were mixed in moderate afternoon trading on the Montreal Stock Exchange.

Volume at 2:30 p.m. EDT was 455,200 shares traded, compared with 556,800 shares traded up to the same time Monday.

Husky Oil was up ⅜ at $50⅛, Toronto-Dominion Bank ⅜ at $20¼, Bank of Montreal ¼ at $22¼ and Inco A ⅛ at $18⅞. Bell Canada was off ⅛ at $56¾, Brascan A ⅛ at $16¾, Royal Bank ⅛ at $33 and Celanese Canada five cents at $3.65.

London

LONDON (Reuter) — Prices eased in light trading as the market continued to react to inflation worries and the possibility of a general election, dealers said.

The Financial Times index of 30 industrials closed at 463.4, down 3.6.

However, government bonds reduced initial falls to show net losses of up to ¼ on the day, while falls among equities were pared following some higher than expected results, dealers added.

RivTow

RivTow Straits Ltd. reports net profits of $737,000 or 31 cents a share on gross revenues of $78.1 million during 1977 and president Cecil Cosulich forecast modestly improved earnings this year.

Cosulich, reviewing the main commodities moved by the company's coastal tug and barge fleet at the annual meeting, said lumber traffic was very good, gravel was poor and industrial activity was medium to good.

The annual meeting voted to permit a contraction of the board, following the withdrawal of Ronald L. Cliff, G. B. McKeen and H. M. Gale. The three resigned in May following sale of a block of 840,307 shares—34.7 per cent of outstanding shares—to Cosulich family interests.

Five directors—Cecil Cosulich, Norman Cosulich, Lucille Johnstone, Arthur Christopher and John Pearson—were re-elected to the board.

Toronto Sun

Prior to a public share offering, profits of Toronto Sun Corp. for the fiscal year ended April 29, 1978, were $2,257,000, or $1.50 a share, compared with $1,671,000, or $1.18 a share, for the previous year.

Revenue was $30.24 million compared with $23.52 million the previous year.

The company attributed the improved profits to an increase in advertising linage and circulation in the Toronto market.

The company said it anticipated a loss for the first year of operation of a newspaper which began publication in Edmonton April 2. Start-up costs for Edmonton Sun amounted to about $400,000.

On June 7, 1978, the company received $5.75 million from the issue of 500,000 common shares representing 25 per cent of the outstanding shares.

Technology 'Stagnating', Opportunities Exhausted

TORONTO (CP) — The Western World has entered a period of technological stagnation and its economic growth is suffering accordingly, Senator Maurice Lamontagne said Monday.

The Liberal senator from Quebec told a research conference that technologies developed since the Second World War appear to have peaked and investment opportunities have become largely exhausted.

In Canada, for example, there are signs that the primary industries have ceased to be a major contribution to new investment and employment opportunities, he said.

The "agricultural frontier is closed" and the development of new energy resources will be costly, Senator Lamontagne told delegates to the International Federation of Operational Research Societies conference.

He said plant obsolescence, rising costs and increasing competiton in world markets are affecting Canada's forest and mining industries.

Population growth, traditionally favorable to economic expansion, is another discouraging sign in Canada, he said.

The average annual rate of population growth in Canada was 2.7 per cent in the 1950s, 1.7 per cent in the 1960s, 1.3 per cent in the first five years of the 1970s and one per cent in 1976 and 1977, the senator said.

"While the post-war baby boom has ceased to stimulate long-term economic growth, it now contributes to worsen the unemployment picture."

Senator Lamontagne also said western societies are deeply divided and unstable.

Certain factions involved in the division and instability are suffering from "the guilt transfer complex" and governments have become the scapegoats, he said.

"It's not really the fault of governments if technological stagnation leads to declining private investment opportunities, if new technologies destroy more and more jobs, if fewer children are born."

Nor is the fault of government if people ask for more than they contribute if they want to use their rising incomes to buy foreign products, to travel abroad and to save more; if the baby-boom adults are now reaching the labor market and if more women decide to join the working force he said.

Yet governments are blamed for the consequences of those troubles, he said. As a result, political instability has developed throughout the Western World.

"The whole social climate has become confused, uncertain and even inimical to the risk-taking that is required to sustain rising private investments and long-term growth."

MINING VALUE UP 17.4%

TORONTO (CP) — The total value of Canada's mineral production in 1977 was $18.1 billion, an increase of 17.4 per cent over the previous year, the Mining Association of Canada reports.

In the 1978 edition of Mining In Canada, the association said the gain does not reflect the trend of shipments and sales "but is due, in part, to an increase in the value of unsold inventories held by producers."

"Overall, the Canadian mining industry continued to be adversely affected by a slow and spotty recovery of world mineral markets from the severe recession of 1975-76."

It said exploration in the industry was at a low historical level becauseof lower world demand and prices, "coupled with a discouraging investment climate in Canada."

Total mineral production includes crude petroleum and natural gas.

The 60-page booklet also shows that production value of metals, non-metals, structural materials and coal in 1977 was $8.8 billion, an increase from $7.9 billion.

DOUBLE TROUBLE for Northwest Baseball League rivals is what Victoria Mussels hope will be provided by brothers Frank (left) and Vito Lucarelli. Mussels make league debut tonight in Bellingham and bring professional baseball back to Victoria Wednesday night at Royal Athletic Park in another clash with Bellingham. Frank is expected be starting pitcher Thursday here against Bellingham.

Poles Ask Switch

BUENOS AIRES (AP) — The Polish soccer team wants Argentina to play its World Cup game Wednesday in the afternoon instead of at night.

Up to now the national team has played its matches at night, unlike the other competing squads, to enable the nation to view the match on television without closing down shops and factories.

While Argentina's games are in progress, the streets of Buenos Aires are empty. You don't see a car, or anyone on the sidewalks. People are at home in front of their screens.

After the game the city goes mad. Thousands turn out of their homes and march down the main avenues banging drums and blowing trumpets, shouting and singing, carrying girls on their shoulders, waving Argentina's blue and white colors.

It's all good fun. But if Argentines were cheated of their night's entertainment it would be like taking St. Patrick's Day away from Irishmen.

There is some logic behind the Polish protest, which has been sent to the International Soccer Federation (FIFA). Argentina and Brazil are racing neck and neck for top place in Group B, and Wednesday's games will decide which team wins the group and gets a place in the final.

Brazil is set to play Poland Wednesday afternoon, and Argentina faces Peru in the evening. If Brazil and Argentina are still even on points, the team with the better goals record goes into the final.

The argument is that Argentina will go on the field knowing the result of Brazil's game and knowing exactly how many goals it must score.

Brazil thought of filing a protest but dropped the idea after consulting an FIFA official. The Poles decided to go ahead.

Wednesday's games in Group A, involving all European teams, both start in the early afternoon. The main clash is at Buenos Aires' River Plate Stadium between Holland and Italy, joint leaders with three points each.

Holland, which has a much better goals record than its rivals, needs only a draw to reach the final.

West Germany, the defending champion, has two points and plays Austria. The Germans could still get to the final, but they would need to beat the Austrians by five goals or more and it would be necessary for Holland and Italy to tie.

Mussels-Builders Face Inaugural League Test

Whoever said winning isn't everything obviously never played pro sports. When the money goes on the line, pal, you win or clear out.

That's the bottom line this summer for Victoria Mussels' braintrust, Lynn and Jim Chapman and Don Rogelstad. They're gambling a budgeted $100,000 they can make a go of professional baseball here after a 24-year absence. And you can bet they're not letting the bankroll ride on a bunch of humpty-dumpties.

They've had only seven weeks to put a team together and they'll get an inkling if they've done the job tonight when the Mussels open their 72-game schedule against manager Bob Didier's defending champion Bellingham Mariners in Bellingham. The two clubs return to Athletic Park for the start of a two-game series tomorrow evening at 7.

Operating without benefit of a major league affiliation, Rogelstad and the Chapmans took the obvious tack — go for experience. Accordingly, three of Mussels' four starting pitchers have played professionally.

Rogelstad, the club's 29-year-old pitching coach who came out of the New York Yankee farm system, isn't taking chances. He's named himself to start tonight's game, which will be broadcast on CJVI (900) starting at 7:30.

And he's picked his second-oldest pitcher, Dave Cheadle, 26, to start tomorrow night in the home opener, which will be preceeded by a short ceremony beginning at 6:30. Cheadle, the lone lefty among the four starters, begins his seventh year in organized baseball.

The only rookie in Rogelstad's starting rotation is Frank Lucarelli, 21, who was 11-3 with Western Washington University the last two seasons. He gets the nod here Thursday night against the Mariners, who have former Yankee mound great Mel Stottlemyer as a pitching coach.

Another experienced pro, Bobby Watkins, 22, completes the starting cast and will pitch Friday when the Mussels' and Mariners return to Bellingham. They clash there again Saturday and complete their six-game series back at Athletic Park Sunday.

Watkins, another righty, hails from San Diego and was drafted three years ago by Montreal Expos. He pitched with Lethbridge in the rookie class A Pioneer League and Jamestown in the New York-Penn League (class A) before being released this spring by Memphis of the Southern League (AA), where Victoria's Mike Finlayson is playing.

Rogelstad and shortstop-manager Jim Chapman are making sure they don't short-change themselves on the mound. There are nine pitchers on the 21-man roster.

The bullpen is made up entirely of first-year pros, including long reliever Roy Moretti, a 22-year-old fireballing righthander from Victoria. Other long relievers are lefty Mike Carey, 23, from the University of Washington and righty Dale Mahorcic, 21, from Cleveland, Ohio, State. Carey also hits well and will bat in the designated hitter's slot tonight.

Short relievers are Brian Peterson, 23, a righthander from the University of Oregon, and Scott Harding, 21, a southpaw from Hayward State College in California.

The plate power should come from Carey, catcher Vito Lucarelli, first baseman Mark Hildebrand and third baseman Dan Gans. Hildebrand, 24, a high school teacher and baseball coach in the off-season at Stendel, Ind., whacked 14 home runs for Salem Senators in the Northwest League last year. Gans is a switch-hitter with power from Carlbad, Calif.

Boomer's Thwarted Bat Finally Breaks Through

By Canadian Press

You can fool all of the sluggers some of the time, but not all of the sluggers all of the time.

George Scott, for instance.

Boston Red Sox first baseman had gone down on strikes his first three times up against New York Yankee pitching Monday night. Then came the eighth inning.

"When you strike out three times in a row," said Scott, "the law of averages is in your favor. Sooner or later, you're going to make contact."

The "Boomer" finally lived up to his nickname, smashing a tie-breaking single that triggered a six-run rally and started the Red Sox to a 10-4 victory.

The meeting was the first of the 1978 season for the rivals of the American League East Division.

In other American League games, Oakland A's edged Texas Rangers 2-1; Kansas City Royals nipped Cleveland Indians 6-5 and Seattle Mariners beat Chicago White Sox, 7-4. In the only National League game, Chicago Cubs trimmed Pittsburgh Pirates 6-4 in 10 innings.

Carlton Fisk, who keyed a three-run fourth inning with a single, started Boston's game-breaking eighth with a double off the wall against reliever Rick Gossage. Fred Lynn was walked intentionally to bring up Scott. The big slugger fouled off a bunt attempt and then singled to centre, scoring Fisk to snap a 4-4 tie.

Dwight Evans sacrificed and Butch Hobson walked, filling the bases. Rick Burleson singled, scoring Lynn, with Scott also coming around as right fielder Reggie Jackson bobbled the ball for an error. Remy knocked in Burleson with a double and Jim Rice, the AL RBI leader, brought in Remy with the sixth run of the inning with a single.

"We have 90-odd games to go so we can't be overconfident," said Burleson, who had a double and a single, scored two runs and drove in one. "Last year we beat them a lot here and they still won the world championship."

Yankee manager Billy Martin said: "We had hoped to take three straight but now we're going to have to try to win two of three. But even if they win all three here, it's a long season. Its a long way to go."

Steve Renko and two relievers combined on a three-hitter and Jeff Newman hit a tie-breaking homer in the eighth to lead Oakland over Texas and end the A's 11-game losing streak. The blast broke up a pitching duel between Renko and Texas' Jon Matlack.

Renko went seven innings before yielding to Bob Lacey, who required relief help in the ninth from Elias Sosa. Sosa recorded his 10th save of the season after pitching out of a bases-loaded jam in the ninth.

Macs Would Like A Quicker Start

Game time is 8 p.m.

The Bakers were slow getting untracked Monday night and dropped a 20-17 decision to Salmonbellies in New Westminster.

New Westminster opened up a 9-3 lead by the end of the first period. Victoria narrowed the margin to 13-10 going into the final 20 minutes but couldn't catch up despite scoring a season-high of eight power-play goals.

Rob Dalziel set the pace for Salmonbellies with five goals and seven assists. Ross Angelucci and Dan McIsaac added three each and double tallies were contributed by Dean Malcolm and Bill Husband. Singles came from Brian Cowie, Terry Miller, Dan Richardson, Shawn Cahill and Bruce Turris.

Ron McIsaac stopped 49 shots for New Westminster while Mike Duch blocked 58 attempts for Victoria.

New Westminster took 11 of 17 minor penalties and the game's only major.

Botham Sets Test Record

LONDON (Reuter) — Ian Botham bowled England to victory in its second cricket test against Pakistan Monday with a remarkable spell of seven wickets for 14 runs in 13.4 overs at Lords.

The winning margin was an innings and 120 runs—even more one-sided than in the first test—and gave England a winning 2-0 lead in the three-match series.

Botham, 22-year-old all-rounder from Somerset, took eight wickets for 34 runs and became the first man to score a century and take eight wickets in the same test.

Botham scored his century on Friday when England amassed a first-innnings total of 364. After a first-innings total of 105, Pakistan was forced to follow on with its second innings.

Playing without five stars who have signed for Australian professional cricket promoter Kerry Packer, the Pakistanis began the day at 96 needing another 163 runs to force England to bat again.

Botham's eight for 34 was the best haul for an England team since Jim Laker took 10 for 53 in the second innings against Australia at Manchester in 1956.

Dead Heat at Sandown

Sharky The Great and Afton Exhibitor finished in a dead heat for first place during the third race Monday at Sandown Park to set up a pair of the sweeter exactor payoffs of the harness-racing meet.

The exactor paid $85.40 on the Sharky-Afton combination and $114.40 on Afton-Sharky.

It was the second dead heat in the first 10 days of the 57-day meeting.

There was a much larger payoff in the fifth race after Wee General Fuzz came flying at the finish to beat Michaels Derby to the wire and set up a $253.80 exactor.

Joe Hudson, who represented Canada in the 1978 world driving championship, is currently tied for the driving lead with Dave Jungquist.

Both have nine victories to their credit.

But big Jim Mohorich, who finds the comparitively-long stretch at Sandown to his liking, is moving up to challenge the leaders.

In typical fashion, Mohorich came on fast in the stretch to score twice, guiding Senga Logan to victory in the sixth and Nechako Prince in the seventh.

Mohorich now has seven wins to his credit and is tied for fourth spot with Don Bell, one behind Willie Urquhart.

Results and entries are on page 15.

Canuck Eyes on Dallas

VANCOUVER (CP) — Jake Milford, general manager of Vancouver Canucks of the National Hockey League, said Monday he is attempting to arrange a meeting in Dallas, Tex., with multi-millionaire Lamar Hunt regarding the purchase of a franchise in the Central Hockey League.

Milford said he hopes to meet with Hunt next week about the availability of the Dallas franchise and the possibility of stocking the CHL team with players supplied by the Canucks.

Toronto Maple Leafs and Chicago Black Hawks of the NHL, who combined to stock the Dallas team with players last season, have expressed interest in moving their development team to Moncton, N.B., for the 1978-79 season.

Milford said the Canucks, who shared a CHL working agreement the last two years in Tulsa with the NHL Atlanta Flames, are pulling out of Tulsa because the Tulsa building was not always available for practices.

"Young players need all the practice time they can get," said Milford, "and last season the Tulsa building wasn't always available because of basketball games.

Earlier Monday, the Canucks completed the first phase of their rebuilding program by confirming the signing of high-scoring junior centre Bill Derlago to a four-year contract.

Derlago, 19, is the third centre acquired by the Canucks since the end of the 1977-78 season.

Milford has signed four Swedish players, including free agent centre Roland Eriksson of Minnesota North Stars, and now has seven new players under contract, plus two more draft choices apparently ready to sign.

"We've made a lot of changes and now we have some players who will be available for trades," Milford said. "We knew that we had to change the personnel around and we should make even more changes now that we've got a surplus of players."

Eriksson and Thomas Gradin of Sweden join Derlago as the Canucks' new centres. Swedish defenceman Lars Lindgren and Lars Zetterstroem also have signed in an attempt to upgrade the defence.

Randy Holt, a defenceman with a tough-guy reputation, was added last week in the NHL dispersal draft after the merger of Cleveland Barons and the North Stars.

Goaltender Gary Bromley, who helped Winnipeg Jets to the World Hockey Association title, was signed to an NHL contract last month by Milford.

The Canucks have unloaded only four players from last season's team. Goaltender Cesare Maniago retired, forward Mike Walton was traded to St. Louis Blues for a draft choice, defenceman Claire Alexander signed with the WHA Edmonton Oilers and forward Gerry O'Flaherty was released and signed with Minnesota.

"We considered Derlago the top goal scorer in junior hockey last season and we expect him to continue to have that reputation in Vancouver," said Milford. "Derlago and the other additions will give us much more competition for jobs at training camp.

"I think the veterans are getting the message: show up to camp in shape and expect a fight for your job."

It Could Be Big Year For Island Champion

If I were a betting man, and the odds were favorable, I would be tempted to go with Dave Mick as a member of British Columbia's next Willingdon Cup team.

It could be, for Dave, one of those years when everything turns up roses.

Cec Ferguson had one of those summers just before he turned professional. Fergie won the city intermediate, men's amateur, the Island Open and a berth on the interprovincial team. Jimmy Rutledge had one of those summers last year, picking off almost every junior title in sight, and not stopping until he won the Canadian junior.

Mick seems to be mounting the same all-conquering charge. Having already won the city amateur and Island Open titles, Mick made it three-for-three in tournament play by picking off top prize in the Kamloops Open at the weekend.

In a style, I might add, that suggests this is going to be a good year for the Colwood member.

Five strokes behind Vancouver's Bob Cox despite a three-under-par 69 on Saturday, Mick fired a 68 in extremely windy and difficult conditions Sunday to force a playoff with Cox and Muncie Booth. Mick beat both pros in the playoff and Cox went on to defeat Booth for the low-pro honor.

Mick, who hasn't lost a match in the district's inter-club league, now sets his sights on the PNGA tournament at Tacoma July 10-15, and then will make a pitch to return to the Willingdon Cup lineup.

And the way things are going, you have to figure Mick is going to make it.

BITS AND PIECES: The politicians will be swinging at week's end. . .Oak Bay mayor Brian Smith, also a Victoria Club member, will participate in the official opening of the "new" seventh hole at the Oak Bay course. . .The great par three hole becomes a four on Saturday as Victoria and Seattle clubs celebrate the 75th anniversary of their inter-club rivalry, the oldest in North America. . .(Unofficially, Oak Bay members started playing the seventh as a par four today, probably figuring they'll benefit from a week's practice). . .And Bill Bennett, the premier, hopes to prove he has added finesse to the raw power he showed last year when the Chinese Social Credit Association holds its second annual tournament at Uplands on Friday. . .

Blair Wilson recorded his third career hole-in-one on Colwood's seventh hole last week. . .Also scoring aces in recent days were Juanita Turner, on Gorge Vale's 10th; Cliff Maxie, on the 14th at the Gorge; Pat McCarthy, on Uplands' ninth, and Bea Fisher, on the 17th at Uplands. . .Lanny Sawchuck, one of the city's better juniors, is entered in the prestigious World Junior tournament in San Diego in July. . .B.C. participation in the Crown Life Pro Am has ranged from "terrific" to lukewarm and officials have decided to extend the qualifying deadline at some clubs. . .The original deadline was Sunday but golfers now have until next Sunday to participate in the six-year-old event that was expanded this year to include British Columbia. . .All the pros have the details. . .

The McFarlanes obviously relish rising early. . .Bruce McFarlane, scoring 70-7—63, won Oak Bay's annual Dawn Patrol tournament. . .And right behind to claim the runner-up prize was Father Al, 85-21—64. . .A possibility, but not settled, is a summer appearance at Uplands of trick-shot artist Paul Hahn, Jr. . .Winner of Colwood's seniors championship at the weekend was Jack Stokes. . .Don Gowan won low gross honors with a nifty 71-72 — 143 but low net leader Cliff Green won the trophy in the annual Winspear Trophy competition at Glen Meadows. . .

Gorge Vale's Dave Donaldson defeated Murray Vandersteeg of Metchosin on the third playoff hole to win the annual Metchosin Open. . .Both finished the regulation 18 holes with 70s. . .Grant Milliken and Ian Seymour, both of Gorge Vale, and Oak Bay's Bob Gracie picked off the next three spots. . .Esquimalt Sports Centre manager Joe Iannarelli, a Metchosin member, finally laid off the slap shot and swung to victory — smoothly — as the low-net winner. . .Runner-up was clubmate Al Ulmer. . .Cedar Hill's new pro shop is open for business. . .Jason Paukkunen, formerly of Mission, has taken over as the pro at Qualicum Beach's Eaglecrest club. . .One-time Colwood and Uplands member Percy Barradell is heading a group developing a new course near Mission. . .It is scheduled to be opened in 1980. . .

Golf Leaders Play at Home

If home course provides an advantage, Glen Meadows' Inter-Club Golf League team can take a big step forward towards clinching the Willie Park Driver on Wednesday.

Leaders by a three-point margin over Gorge Vale, Glen Meadows players will be at home to a strong Cedar Hill squad in the next-to-last match of the 1978 series.

The advantage won't be there for the final round. Glen Meadows will have to finish up at Gorge Vale the following week. Gorge Vale will play at Victoria while still-contending Royal Colwood visits last-place Uplands in the other matches this week.

Wednesday's matches:

Cedar Hill at G. Meadows

Colwood at Uplands

Gorge Vale at Victoria

Vicettes Maul Junior Squad

Skylarks tripped Butler Brothers 16-1 and Vicettes mauled Strawberry Vale Juniors, 32-1.

Lisa Atkinson set the pace for Skylarks with two hits to drive in a pair of runs and Maxine Stovel also connected for two RBIs.

Mavis Underwood scored the lone run for Butlers on an error.

Sandy Milliken pitched a three-hitter to spark Vicettes and connected three times to drive in two runs.

Lori Nasser and Marilyn Moen set the hitting pace by driving in five runs each.

Roberts Wins Spanish Race

MADRID (AP) — Kenny Roberts of the United States rode his Yamaha to victory in the Spanish Grand Prix 750cc-class motorcycle race at the Jarama Circuit on Sunday, finishing more than 30 seconds ahead of Venezuela's Johnny Cecotto.

Early Barrage Sinks Queens

Gorge Hotel got in some mighty blows during the early going Monday and then cruised to a 12-2 win over Dairy Queen in a Victoria Senior Amateur Baseball League game at Lambrick Park.

Gorge, which moved to within half a game of leading Farmer Construction with the victory, struck for four runs in the first inning and seven in the second frame.

Mark Lum set the batting pace with three hits in four trips to the plate to drive in two runs. Winning-pitcher Rick Shenton also drove in a pair with a two-for-four effort.

New Financing Plan for Olympics

MONTREAL (CP) — A precedent-setting plan whereby the organizing committee for the 1984 Summer Olympics would assume responsibility for any deficits incurred rather than the taxpayers of Los Angeles, was presented to representatives of the International Olympic Committee during a day-long meeting Monday.

Los Angeles was provisionally awarded the 1984 Games last month by the IOC in Athens, but that all hinged on a contract being signed by the end of July.

The crux of the new proposal is whether the IOC will bend its staid rule and award the Games to the committee of businessmen, which makes up the newly-formed organizing committee, rather than follow its normal practice of making the host city totally responsible for the Games and any deficit which may occur.

Representing Los Angeles were members of Mayor Tom Bradley's new organizing committee. Attorney John Argue, who is president of the Southern California Support Committee; Rodney R. Rood, vice-president of Atlantic Richfield; David Wolper, television and film producer; Howard Allen, president of the Los Angeles chamber of commerce; and William Robertson, head of the LA County Labor Federation.

Robert Kane, president of the United States Olympic Committee and Don F. Miller, executive director of the USOC, also attended.

The IOC was represented by executive-director Monique Berlioux and James Worrall of Toronto, Canada's representative on the IOC executive.

A copy of the agreement the Los Angeles group presented had "the LAOC" typed in where the City of Los Angeles had previously appeared.

Neither side would give any indication whether the new arrangement would be acceptable to the IOC. Both sides acknowledged that it will be some time yet, at least three weeks, before an answer will be received from the world body.

"We're hopeful and think it's encouraging that they (the IOC) agreed to meet us," Allen said. "One thing in our favor is the fact we don't have the capital improvements that Montreal had."

He was referring to the fact that Montreal wound up with a $1 billion deficit following gigantic construction projects for the 1976 Games. Allen said the California city already had many of the facilities necessary to stage the Games. The city previously held the Games in 1932.

"We look at it as a sound business investment," he added. "The taxpayers won't be signators to the contract—there will be no liability to them."

Worrall said he wanted to stress one thing—it was not significant that the meeting was held in Montreal. He said the meeting was convened here because it was convenient for all. There had been earlier reports that Montreal was ready to step into the gap and accept the 1984 Games should Los Angeles falter.

Ironically, Mayor Jean Drapeau, father of the Montreal Games, was attending a separate function in the same downtown hotel, but did not visit the IOC meeting.

Worrall said the meeting should not be construed as a negotiating session.

"We simply discussed the proposal which will have to be put to the IOC," Worrall said. "They have suggested that rather than the city being responsible for the financing of the Games that there would be an organizing committee made up of prominent citizens instead."

The Toronto lawyer said he had no mandate to recommend or dismiss the proposal.

Rookie Leo 'Loused Up'

VANCOUVER (CP) — Rookie running back Rod Connors, a dropout from the University of Southern California football factory, was released Monday by British Columbia Lions of the Canadian Football League.

Head coach Vic Rapp of the Lions said Connors had "really loused up in practice" and "we just didn't think he could help us."

Connors saw little action in B.C.'s opening game of the exhibition season here June 13, won 15-9 over Montreal Alouettes, the defending Grey Cup champions.

Rapp used three other rookie backs against Montreal—halfback Larry Key of Florida of fullbacks Calvin Culliver of Alabama and Bill Deutsch of North Dakota. The other offensive back was holdover LeRoy Moss.

The Lions were mainly a passing team in their second-place finish in 1977 in the Western Football Conference and Rapp went to training camp three weeks ago hoping to upgrade the running game. Key and Culliver were in the backfield against Montreal when quarterback Jerry Tagge directed a fourth-quarter march for the winning touchdown.

Tagge, who injured his ankle in training camp, is expected to be 100 per cent fit Wednesday when the Lions play the Rough Riders in Ottawa in the second exhibition for both teams.

Career Record Perfect

VANCOUVER (CP) — Mr. Prime Minister kept his career record perfect at Exhibition Park Monday night, winning the $14,000-added yearling sales stakes for two-year-olds in his third start.

The winning margin, almost four lengths, wasn't as impressive as in his two previous starts. He had the rail post position, but was last coming out of the gate and then ducked left.

In the battle for second, first-time starter Two White Spots took the runner-up spot leaving the backstretch, but was passed in the turn by Leavin' and finished 5 1-2 lengths behind.

Forego Returns to Races

NEW YORK (AP) — Forego came back to the races Monday in top form, blasting down the middle of the stretch to overtake Dr. Patches about 20 yards from the wire and win a $25,000 allowance race at Belmont Park.

The big eight-year-old gelding, horse of the year from 1974-76 and best older horse the past four years, was cheered from the time he showed up in the paddock until he left the winner's circle.

In his first start since winning the Woodward Handicap last Sept. 17, gimpy-legged Forego carried Willie Shoemaker over the seven-furlong distance in 1:21 3-5 for a neck triumph over Dr. Patches.

Gabe Benzur was third, seven lengths back of Dr. Patches and two lengths in front of Hey Hey J. P., the only other horse in the field.

Forego, owned by Martha Gerry, paid $2.60 and $2.10 and earned $15,000, increasing his lifetime earnings to $1,938,957. The all-time money-winner is the retired Kelso with $1,977,896.

Dr. Patches, owned by Tartan Stable, paid $2.10. There was no show betting.

Forego, whose next start is expected to be the 1¼-mile Suburban Handicap at Belmont July 4, carried 122 pounds, the same as Dr. Patches. No horse has beaten Forego at equal weights since he was a three-year-old in 1973, the year Secretariat won the Triple Crown.

Gabe Benzur, ridden by Steve Cauthen, broke on top, but quickly gave up the lead to Dr. Patches, ridden by Angel Cordero. They ran that way into the stretch with Forego third.

Then, with the crowd of 18,659 cheering him on, Forego came down the middle of the stretch to engage Dr. Patches. With Cordero whipping and Shoemaker hand riding, Forego proved the best as he has so many times in his career.

The victory was Forego's 34th in 56 starts. He has been worse than third only six times.

Before the Judge

One of two persons jointly charged in connection with the holdup Friday night of the McKenzie Avenue liquor store was released on $1,500 surety bail Monday in provincial court.

Deborah Jane Mavis Frank, who is 21 today, was released on bail by Judge William Ostler, who remanded her until this morning when the co-accused, 29-year-old Peter Larsen, is to reappear for bail hearing and election of trial method.

The pair, both of 425 Simcoe, were charged with armed robbery, possession of $14,500 in stolen money from the holdup, and unlawful confinement of William James Taylor, manager of the Liquor Administration Board outlet at 1087 McKenzie.

The charges were first read before a justice of the peace Saturday and read again in court Monday.

Lawyer Robert Higinbotham asked for a remand until the afternoon on behalf of Miss Frank while lawyer Dean Wilson asked for a one-day remand for Larsen.

The company's store at 1420 Douglas St. was charged with misleading representation in connection with an advertisement in the Victoria Times Sept. 22, 1977, for boys "down-filled" ski jackets.

Digby Kier, of the federal justice department in Vancouver, argued unsuccessfully that the jackets contained only 54.75 per cent of duck down while the Act permitted only up to 15 per cent feathers in the product.

Janet Randall, a textile chemist for the department of consumer and corporate affairs in Ottawa, testified that an analysis of the materials was made in April and that the sample jacket contained 54.75 per cent down and 45.25 per cent feathers.

However, the judge ruled that the Crown failed to identify the jacket with those advertised in the newspaper.

Allan also said there was a puzzling difference in the Crown's evidence given through James Turpin, an inspector with the department of consumer and corporate affairs in Victoria. Turpin testified he purchased the jacket Sept. 30 but a cash register sales slip tendered in evidence bore the date of Sept. 20.

Lawyer Herb Silber of Vancouver, representing the store, asked for a dismissal on the grounds of no evidence and brought up the discrepancy about the dates. Silber also stated the label said the jacket contained 50 per cent down.

A 23-year-old man was sentenced to four months in jail after pleading guilty to stealing a car Saturday night.

Sonny Nikiya Lightfoot, who had several aliases, entered the plea and told Ostler: "I was really drunk."

Crown counsel Nicholas Lang told the court the owner of the car parked his car on Beaver Lake Road at about 6:30 p.m. with the key still in the ignition. He told police he was going to pick up a friend when he heard his car start and saw Lightfoot take off with it at high speed. The vehicle ended up in bushes a short distance away and Lightfoot was apprehended shortly afterwards heading south on Beaver Lake Road.

Lang said Lightfoot, of 1874 Colville, had a lengthy criminal record including a conviction for auto theft in Trail on Dec. 20, 1972, for which he received a one-year-definite, two-years-indefinite term and a conviction for robbery in Kenora on Nov. 25, 1974, for which he was sentenced to two years.

Ostler also placed Lightfoot on one year's probation and ordered him to accept any Drug and Alcohol Rehabilitation Society or other treatment as directed by his probation officer.

David Patrick Rix, 18, of 2799 Wenger Terrace, was remanded to July 10 for a pre-sentence report and sentencing after pleading guilty to breaking into a storage warehouse on Jacklin Road three times in five days.

Lawyer Brian MacKenzie entered the plea on behalf of Rix, one of three persons charged with three counts of breaking and entering.

Lang said the break-ins were at a storage warehouse at 3100 Jacklin Road and occurred on March 25, 26, and 29.

Ostler imposed a 45-day jail term, to be served on 15 weekends, on 20-year-old Paul Gregory Magee, 868 Phoenix, who pleaded guilty to impaired driving and refusing a breath test demand.

Lang told the court Magee was spotted shortly before 1 a.m. Nov. 11, 1977, heading south on Goldstream. Lang said Colwood RCMP noted Magee's vehicle was travelling 70 kmh in a 60 kmh zone, almost hit an oncoming car and ran a red light before being stopped. Magee handed the officers an expired passport when asked for his driver's licence, Lang continued, and then fled on foot and was found about 10 minutes later.

Lang also told Ostler the young man was convicted of impaired driving on Nov. 20, 1975, and was fined $350 and on Sept. 17, 1977, when he was jailed for 20 days.

Ostler imposed the 45-day sentence for the impaired driving and a six-day, concurrent term for refusing the breath test demand.

Fined for drinking-driving were: Reginald Allan Gurak, 22, of 960 Wilmer, $600; Patti Marlene Rush, 20, of 3710 Carey, $450; Bernard Anthony Police, 30, of 885 Craigflower, $450; Brian Donald Cathcart, 19, of 250 Homer, $400; Helen Alphonse, 63, of 837 Ellery, $350; and Robert Guy Fenn, 20, address not given, $100.

In addition, Mrs. Alphonse was fined $25 for having no valid driver's licence and Fenn was ordered to perform 60 hours of community service work.

CHINA EXPECTS GOOD HARVEST

PEKING (Reuter) — China expects a good harvest this year of hybrid grain, developed by Chinese scientists from wheat and rye, the official Hsinhua news agency reported. It says the grain, called Octoploid Triticale, was sown on 64,300 acres of mountain land and is growing well despite abnotmal weather in the winter and spring.

3 Suits, 5 Lawyers . . . 4 Years Later

A traffic accident near Duncan more than four years ago produced three lawsuits and five lawyers in B.C. Supreme Court Monday.

Mr. Justice Gordon MacKinnon, in what is expected to be a three-day trial, will rule on who, if anyone, was negligent in the head-on collision of a Vauxhall and a Pinto March 17, 1974. Damages would be the subject of a separate trial.

Jo-Anne Pearson of Duncan was the driver of the Pinto, owned by the mother of her cousin, Debra Pearson, 20, of Victoria. Debra Pearson was the sole passenger.

The passengers are suing both drivers, Debra Pearson is suing both drivers and Jo-Anne Pearson is suing Summers. The three actions were consolidated for the negligence trial.

The five lawyers appearing in court were Dean Wilson, Doug MacFarlane, Harold Turnham, Ken Murphy and Don Farquhar.

The collision occurred in the 1400-block Maple Bay Road on a Sunday afternoon with clear, dry road conditions. The Vauxhall crossed the centre line and collided with the Pinto on the wrong side of the road.

Const. Christopher Fernandes of Duncan RCMP, first policeman on the scene, said Summers told him that while he was driving he heard a bang and his steering failed and he swerved into the oncoming lane.

The constable agreed the Pinto could have turned right into a side lane.

He said no criminal charges were laid, partly because of a mechanic's report on the Vauxhall. The point was not elaborated on.

Debra Pearson said she drove to Duncan in her mother's car to visit her cousin. They decided to go for a drive and she offered the driving to her cousin.

While driving on Maple Bay Road, the Vauxhall started to cross the centre line as if it was going straight ahead rather than completing a corner. She yelled to her cousin to stop but she did not react to what was happening.

She said to the best of her knowledge, her cousin didn't brake and she didn't turn the steering wheel. She said there was room for their car on the shoulder and expected her cousin to turn on to it.

Had she been driving, she said, she thought she would have been able to react and would have tried to turn off the road and put on the brakes. Asked if there was sufficient time to do this, said replied "yes."

Brewery Talks Stalled for Now

No further talks are scheduled in B.C.'s brewery dispute following presentation of company proposals Monday to Labatt's workers in Victoria.

Eric Harris, negotiator for Carling O'Keefe, Columbia, Labatt and Molson breweries, said that following presentation of the proposals talks were adjourned "for their consideration."

The offer was the same package rejected Saturday by workers at other breweries.

Harris said he expects talks will resume before the B.C. Labor Relations Board begins a hearing on the dispute later this week.

The board is continuing hearing a union complaint of unfair bargaining practices brought against the companies.

Ray Wainright, president of the Victoria local, said today he is "not too enthralled" with the companies' offer but the negotiating committee will study it in some detail today before making any statement.

He said some progress was made Monday in discussing issues peculiar to the Labatt's plant in Victoria.

Wainright said he expects negotiations to resume in a couple of days.

John Langley, spokesman for the Canadian Union of United Brewery, Flour, Cereal, Soft Drink and Distillery Workers, has said the breweries' offer is totally unacceptable.

Langley said the proposal includes elimination of a cost-of-living allowance clause which the union had in its previous contract.

"It seems the companies are trying to impose an extension of wage controls on us," he said.

Langley added that many of the proposals from the companies are already contained in the old contracts.

Workers went on strike at the Carling O'Keefe plant here last month before the union was locked out June 8 at Labatt's in New Westminster and Victoria, at Molson's in Vancouver and at Columbia Brewery in Creston.

SHOPS HOSTILE

VANCOUVER (CP) — Tony Abbott, federal minister of state for small business, said he was surprised Monday to find an angry and hostile reaction among British Columbia retailers to federal import quotas on shoes and clothing.

"The vigor of complaints here came as somewhat of a surprise," he said after discussing the quota issue with about 15 shoe retailers.

"The reassurance I had was that the quota system was working and that there hadn't been a lot of complaints."

The system, implemented in November through the department of industry, trade and commerce, limits stores to importing 80 per cent of their 1976 volume.

The B.C. retailers have said the Canadian shoe industry, concentrated in Quebec, can't supply them with shoes that are priced or styled to suit popular taste.

WELFARE GRANT UP $7M

VANCOUVER (CP) — British Columbia will get $61 million from Ottawa in the next fiscal year for provincial human resources programs, Monique Begin, federal health and welfare minister, said here Monday.

Begin, who was here to attend a conference, said the grant is up from $54 million received last year because her department decided that provincial programs previously thought unacceptable now will be funded.

MD Dies on Road

Funeral services will be held at St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church at 11.30 a.m. Wednesday for Dr. James Sinclair, who died Saturday in an an automobile accident in Yoho National Park. He was 70.

RCMP said Sinclair, who was alone in his car, may have suffered a heart attack before the accident 18 miles west of Field.

Cpl. James Fitzsimmons of the Golden highway patrol, said Sinclair's car began travelling erratically, crossed the centre line and collided with an oncoming vehicle.

Sinclair worked for many years for the veterans' affairs department. He began practising in Victoria in 1949.

He is survived by a sister, Marjorie Sinclair of California, two nephews, Dr. John Sinclair, of Nanaimo and Donald Sinclair, of Vancouver, and a niece, Majorie Brown, also of Vancouver.

RON CAMPION

The federal government can't be blamed for everything but Ottawa must take the major responsibility for Canada's inflation problems, Ron Campion of Victoria, newly-elected president of B.C. Institute of Chartered Accountants, said.

"The present heavy government deficits are baffling, Ottawa is letting inflation run wild," he said.

"The time has come to take a strong stand against federal spending. Ottawa must first of all restrain the growth of its civil service and then as a second step it must begin to reduce its size."

Campion said part of the problem has been public pressure for more services.

"People seem to want more and more but at the same time they want to contribute less and less."

Campion said no political party has taken a hard line on government spending so citizens should support individual politicians who promise to keep these costs in check.

He said chartered accountants in the past have had a low profile because they phrase their statements in polite, restrained phrases.

"We have lost our capacity to show outrage and indignation. This must change if we are going to protest effectively."

Campion was elected president at the group's annual meeting in Kelowna. He is a partner in Clarkson, Gordon and Co.

PAIR OF PACTS WITH PSAC SET

OTTAWA (CP) — Two retroactive, one-year agreements covering 1,700 employees have been signed by the Public Service Alliance of Canada and the government, it was announced Monday.

A Treasury Board statement said the agreements, retroactive to Dec. 24, 1977, end Dec. 26 this year and provide salary increases of 5.4 per cent for 850 members of the information services group and 5.9 per cent for the 850 communications group members.

The agreement for the information group was the result of an arbitral award and boosts the maximum pay for the largest group level, IS-3, to $22,668 from $21,468. They plan and manage the government's information programs.

The communications group agreement increases the maximum salary for the largest group level, CM-4, to $14,470 from $13,664 and provides for four weeks' vacation for employees with more than 12 years continual employment, the statement said.

The communications group employees operate the government's communications equipment.

Overtime Ban Stays

VANCOUVER (CP) — Members of the Telecommunication Workers' Union employed by British Columbia Telephone have decided to continue their ban on overtime, said union spokesman Doug Harrop.

Harrop said most delegates to the union's convention last week felt the ban has provided "25 new regular jobs and 400 jobs for summer students."

He said the union's council will not authorize overtime as long as unemployment remains at such a high level.

Delicate Ocean Balance Detailed

Changes in the ocean and their disastrous effect on fisheries were described Monday to international scientists attending a four-day meeting at the University of Victoria.

Dr. R.T. Barber of Duke University in North Carolina told how a drift of warm Pacific water across the equator dealt a crushing blow to anchovy production off the coast of Peru.

Barber was the opening speaker at the 41st annual meeting of the American Society of Limnology and Oceanography at UVic.

"What was suprising was the magnitude of the disaster" that occurred between 1972 and 1976, he said.

Production of Peruvian anchovies, the world's largest single-species fishery, fell to less than 2 million metric tons from a peak of nearly 12 million in the 1960s, Barber said.

During that time there were physical and chemical changes occurring between the area of the Galapagos Islands and the South American mainland that caused a decline in the plankton on which anchovy larvae feed.

Success of the anchovy fishery depends on an upwelling of cold Pacific water, which in 1975 was affected by a drift of warm water from across the equator, causing a decline in biological content of the sea.

A decline in food supply for adult anchovies then occurred, as a result of an over-abundance of phytoplankton blocking light necessary for its growth.

Barber said the phenomenon was greater than researchers had thought possible, but with improved knowledge it has been found such massive blooms of a single phytoplankton species are more prevalent, although also more predictable.

He said it was not possible to transfer knowledge from one location to another — for example, the important fishery off the west coast of Africa — because circumstances and conditions vary. Each ecosystem has its own characteristics, but there can be basic similarities.

The plenary session was told that such research, employing physical and chemical oceanographic surveys, illustrates the relationship between these previously independent disciplines and the fisheries biologist. Also, Barber said, data is now being gathered on the scale necessary to be of practical use to environmental managers.

The opening session, the first event to be held in the new acoustic auditorium at University Centre, was attended by most of the 700 delegates who were welcomed by Dr. Ralph Brinkhurst of the Institute of Oceanography and Dr. Art Fontaine of the UVic department of biology.

'It's Tough' Next to Alta.

British Columbia cannot compete on a monetary level with Alberta in offering incentives to companies attempting to win contracts for the Alaska Highway natural gas pipeline, Economic Development Minister Don Phillips said Monday.

However, Phillips said in an interview that the province has other qualities it can offer to encourage industry to develop here and be in a position to win pipeline contracts.

The minister was reacting to statements last week by Ian Gray, president of CP Air, who said Alberta might get the lion's share of economic benefits from the pipeline unless B.C. matches Alberta's concessions to industries.

Gray said the Alberta government is enticing industries with special concessions and also has the advantage of charging no provincial sales tax. B.C. has a five-per-cent sales tax.

"It's tough being next to a rich province," Phillips said.

On the positive side, he said B.C. can offer access to the Pacific Rim market and has a fine climate and rich social and recreational environment.

Phillips said his ministry has hired a special consultant in Vancouver to monitor the progress of the pipeline and to advise the government when the first contracts start to come up for bid.

He also said that a seminar was held last month in which business representatives were invited to learn how to get involved in the pipeline project.

"I don't know what else we could do," he said, adding it's up to the companies involved to be aggressive in chasing contracts.

Men Work Longer

NEW YORK (CP) — The average single man who is 20 and employed can expect to work for 41.5 years, while a single woman of the same age can plan on working 41.2 years.

Tourist Shift Urged

Socred MLA Stephen Rogers says the provincial government should spend more money promoting the province in Europe and Asia.

The Vancouver South member, a former airline pilot, said Monday he feels the government is spending too much of its budget trying to lure tourists from Canada and the U.S. to B.C.

The Social Credit backbencher said many Americans and Canadians have their own campers and therefore don't spend as much as someone from overseas.

NDP WILL SNUB HEARING AGAIN

The NDP has again decided to boycott the special legislative committee to deal with four Social Credit MLAs in possible contravention of the Constitution Act, party house leader Bill King said Monday.

King (NDP—Revelstoke-Slocan) said in an interview the party's decision was based on a matter of principle.

He said the NDP feels that since the vast majority of the special committee will be government party MLAs, the four members in question doubtlessly will be cleared of the charges.

"We do not think that meets any test of common justice and we are not prepared to participate in what, in effect, will be a whitewash," King said, adding the NDP thinks the matter should be settled in a court.

The NDP boycotted a similar committee set up last session to look into allegations that Agriculture Minister Jim Hewitt, Recreation and Conservation Minister Sam Bawlf and George Kerster (SC—Coquitlam) improperly received expense money while serving on a committee not sanctioned by the legislature.

VIA's new Fare For All Plan. Great value and savings for everyone!

At VIA, we're giving you more value for your travel dollars. To do it, we've introduced our new Fare For All Plan. When you're making travel plans, consider us. We've got fares for every occasion and every need, and savings for almost everyone. That's something to cheer about!

VIA's new Fare For All Plan starts with basic fares which are good for travel on any day of the year.

In addition to these new basic fares, our Fare For All Plan includes a package of incentive fares that offers a whole range of ways to save:

Round Trip Excursion Fares. Plan your trip to qualify for a 3-day or 7 to 30-day excursion fare and you will pay only the basic one-way fare, plus one third for your round trip.

3-days – Applies between any two points when the one-way fare is $36 or less. Valid all year, (except for the Christmas and Easter holidays) for going journeys commencing any day except Friday. Good for return any time up to midnight of the third day.

7-30 days – Applies between any two points when the one-way fare is $37 or more. Good every day, September 16 through June 14, except for the Christmas and Easter holidays. Going journeys may commence any day except Friday. Return 7 or up to 30 days from the day you start your trip. And no advance booking restrictions either!

Group Fares. Get together and save. When two or more adults travel together, the first person pays the basic fare and the remainder of the group enjoys discounts of 25% to 40% depending on the number in the group. (It's a great idea for family travel too. Leave the car at home and enjoy your trip.) Two children count as one adult for group rate purposes.

VIAPASS. Enjoy unlimited travel at a fixed cost on VIA trains or CP Rail trains in designated territories. Depending on territory, passes can be valid for 8, 15, 22 or 30 days. They enable you to travel economically at any time and are priced even lower from September 16 through June 14, except for the Christmas and Easter periods.

65 Plus Fares. Under VIA's new Fare For All Plan, people 65 or over may travel for one third off basic one-way rates. These fares are good any day except for the Christmas period.

Children's Fares. Children under five years of age travel free. Children 5 to 11 inclusive pay only half the basic fare. Little people get big savings with VIA.

We've Got Lots of Choices. As you can see, we've got something for just about everyone. As with any special fare plan, some restrictions do apply. But the important thing is, when you're making travel plans, think of VIA. We can show you some exciting ways to save money.

When, Where and How. The Fare For All Plan is in effect NOW. Between all points served by VIA, as well as between points served by CP Rail. Call your Travel Agent today or get in touch with your closest VIA or CP Rail sales office. Until further notice, these new fares will be available for through travel or round trips using only one or other of the two railways' lines.

Be good to yourself, take the train.

FIRM BUILDING ON ESTUARY?

Cowichan NDP MLA Barbara Wallace says a second industry on the Cowichan estuary seems to be breaching a cabinet order banning expansion pending outcome of an environmental study.

In the legislature Monday she asked Environment Minister Jim Nielsen if he is aware Westcan Terminals had been hauling rock fill and dumping it into the north side of the south fork where it enters the bay.

Nielsen said he would look into the matter.

Outside the house, Wallace said it appears Westcan is trying to increase the size of its lease on the estuary.

She said she is also intrigued by the fact that Nielsen issued a cease-and-desist order to Doman Industries telling it to halt dumping logs on May 17, when she understands the company was operating the dump up to May 26.

She said she will continue to pursue the matter.

In late May, Doman said it wasn't defying the order, but was changing procedure.

Realty Law: No Lawyers Required?

Legislation to streamline property transactions and to give citizens a better chance to circumvent lawyers was introduced in the legislature Monday.

Attorney-General Garde Gardom said once the concept of the three acts involved is in place, it should speed up conveyancing, make it easier to deal with the land registry office and greatly facilitate do-it-yourself conveyancing.

The highly technical Land Titles Act, Conveyancing and Law of Property Act and Execution Amendment Act have been in the works for several years.

Gardom said the bills are now ready to be debated and passed into law.

Included in the new legislation is a provision for a homeowner to get a court order if necessary to enter his neighbor's property to do work on his own house.

Gardom said in the past, a feuding neighbor could block a homeowner from working on his house, especially in cases where a house is built close to the property line.

The land registry office is becoming computerized which will lead to satellite offices spread throughout the province.

Land tax certificates will be eliminated. These have been a source of annoyance and caused delays and added to the cost of processing, the attorney-general said.

At present inquiries regarding any tax arrears must be made by the purchaser, but there will be built-in reminders.

Gardom said the legislation will also set up a fund to protect persons requiring land surveys from unreasonable costs.

He cited as an example, a case where one person needs a road surveyed, but a number of people would benefit from it.

The legislation will cut paperwork in areas such as the issuing of duplicated certificates of title. These will no longer automatically be issued, but will be on request.

Campaign Vow Haunts Socreds

Liberal leader Gordon Gibson has added some fuel to the fire he is building under the Socreds to get them moving on referendum legislation.

In the house the Liberal leader read from a 1975 electin brochure where the Socreds promised one of their first steps if elected would be to introduce legislation guaranteeing open debate on any subject if petitioned by 10 per cent of the population.

Gibson has been trying without much success to get the government to proclaim an Act approved by the government in 1919 allowing citizens to petition for legislative changes.

"Have I missed something?" Gibson asked Premier Bill Bennett, "Was this one of the first steps of the government?"

"Yes, Mrs. Speaker, he missed something," was Bennett's reply.

Gibson pursued the matter: "Somehow I don't think I missed much," he said to a laughter-filled chamber.

Gibson said although it is too late to be a first step, was Bennett going to proclaim the legislation into law?

Forest Act Weathers Delay Bid

The controversial Forest Act passed second reading — approval in principle — late Monday.

Opposition members pleaded in vain to have the bill tabled for six months to allow more time for opponents to propose amendments.

The contentious legislation has been opposed by all three Opposition parties and numerous other groups connected with forestry.

Liberal leader Gordon Gibson described the bill in its present form as "the most terrifying opportunity for corruption that I have seen in any bill for a very long time."

Gibson said the legislation gives a forests minister power over licence holders.

"He can squeeze just as hard as he wants and extract whatever kind of concession he thinks is wise."

The act does not provide for any public review of the rollover and replacement sections for licences.

Gibson said he is sure that the public will be protected by the Forest Service but said the temptation and the possibility of ministerial indiscretion is deeply embedded in this bill.

Waterland in wrapping up second reading debate launched into a detailed attack of Gibson's father's logging company in response to Gibson's earlier criticisms that the bill is a sellout to the eight, largely foreign-owned multi-national forest companies.

The Gibson Brothers Logging Co. by 1952 had sold all its shares to the Tahsis Co. which is owned by the East Asiatic Company which is controlled by Danish Royal family, Waterland said.

The minister said it is common knowledge the Gibson millions are tied up in investments in Hawaii.

He said Gibson has a double standard.

"It's okay for his family to get wealthy dealing in Crown assets . . . but it's terrible if the same thing happens through acquisitions by other companies."

Gary Lauk (NDP—Vancouver Centre) said Waterland's personal attack on the absent Gibson was "absolutely disgraceful."

Gibson was in his North Vancouver riding speaking to a high school graduation.

Tory leader Vic Stephen joined with the NDP in opposing second reading of the bill.

Two companion Acts — the Minister of Forest Act and the Range Act — quickly passed second reading unopposed after the Socred majority pushed the main Forest Act through second reading.

The former bill revamps the administration of the forest ministry and the Range Act establishes new regulations for grazing on Crown land.

Waterland said the Opposition to the bill was weak and could come up with only one main criticism even though they had six weeks to study the act — the old bogeyman of Tree Farm Licences which they've always opposed.

But the TFLs have proved the best forest management possible, he said.

He said the Peter Pearse Royal commission which was the base for much of the new legislation saw no fear in foreign ownership, which the opposition members had decried during debate.

During five sittings of debate, numerous MLAs rose to voice their opposition to the pending legislation.

Victoria NDP MLA Charles Barber said the large forest companies will be encouraged to adopt "slothful and indolent practices because they have guaranteed tenure that they don't deserve."

Yet it is the smaller operations that are the most efficient, he added. Sooke Forest Products is more efficient per man than MacMillan-Bloedel, and Victoria Plywood more efficient than Vancouver Plywood, he said.

He called the bill dangerous because "as Canadians we are losing control . . . (and) as British Columbians we most certainly will lose control."

Barber said free enterprise is jeopardized because the bill grants tenure, security and "all sorts of happy and comfortable gifts to the fat enterprises that do not deserve them."

The primary loyalties of those corporations does not lie with B.C., Barber added.

He said he's been warned by retired loggers in the Victoria area that "if you don't watch out, control over the single most valuable, and happily most renewable, natural resource in this province will gradually fall into the hands of people whose fundamental loyalty (and) patriotism, does not lie vested in this province, or even in this country."

Don Lockstead (NDP-Mackenzie) said the bill borders on the classic definition of treason.

In times of war, treason is dealt with very harshly, "yet this government has the gall to come into this legislature with a bill that will alienate forever our major resource to the multinational corporations that are not based in this country."

The Opposition also criticised Waterland for speaking for only 15 minutes on the legislation during debate and for introducing six pages of amendments on 38 ections just before it was to be debated.

IWA Joins New Act's Opponents

The International Woodworkers of America has joined with the Truck Loggers Association in criticizing the provincial government's new Forest Act.

In a joint statement Monday IWA western region president Jack Munro and Dave O'Conner of the TLA announced executives of both organizations were working together to press for changes in Bill 14.

The two forest groups also called on Premier Bill Bennett to hold over the legislation until the fall session.

Other groups calling for the bill to be delayed until the next session include the Coalition for Responsible Forest Legislation, the Sierra Club, and the NDP.

The joint IWA-TLA release states that "Our studies, done independently, agree Bill 14 as written will not intensify degree of manufacture or expand production to provide jobs to replace those lost in modernization. It will not create new jobs, it will threaten existing jobs.

"Moreover, without amendment to Bill 14 there will not be solid foundation of job security based upon modern technology and assured ability to compete in world markets."

Youth Clinic

Youth readers' questions on human relations and sex are answered by a panel of experts: Marion Powell, medical doctor; Blair Shaw, psychologist; Graham Cotter, clergyman; and Bruce Vichert, social worker. Send questions to Youth Clinic, The Victoria Times, 2621 Douglas St., Victoria, B.C., V8W 2N4.

DEAR MR. VIRCHERT:

I am a 15-year-old girl and I act very mature for may age.

I am in love with a 23-year-old guy who is in love with me also.

We have a very good relationship going. I have had sex with him several times.

I feel so guilty about going out with him in secrecy all of the time because I have to lie to my parents.

If they knew how old this boyfriend of mine is they would flip.

What should I do? Break it off, tell my parents about him or keep going the way I am (which I think is wrong)?

ANSWER: I agree that you should not continue doing something which you feel is wrong.

It places your own feelings of self-respect and pride at risk.

I think honesty in this case is the best policy, even though you may run the risk of your parents' disapproval and the loss of your boyfriend.

You should discuss with your boyfriend that you feel guilty about your relationship and that you are going to tell your parents about him.

You can ask your boyfriend to be with you when you talk to your parents.

Or you can tell them by yourself.

Or you may feel that it would be best to terminate your relationship, not mentioning anything at all to your parents.

Of course, you should make sure that your behavior in future does not make you feel guilty.

Though you may act mature for your age, 15 is still a young age and there are limits on what is appropriate behavior for a young person.

I believe that your family should be your priority.

I do not think that you should run the risk of alienating them.

DEAR DR. COTTER:

I am a 19-year-old girl who's been going out with a super guy now for 1½ years. He's 20 and has asked me to marry him.

The problem is that I've never really been out with anyone else.

Although we're very much in love it seems that one side of me is saying that if I do marry him I will some day be sorry that I never went out with other guys.

Meanwhile, the stronger side of me says that I really do want to spend my life with him and I'll never be able to leave him.

Have you any advice for me, Dr. Cotter?

Perhaps I just need time to work out my feelings.

ANSWER: The best help for a thoughtful person like you is to take part in a pre-marriage course.

These are found in many centres now, run by various churches, the YMCA and YWCA and other groups.

They are sometimes on the same night of the week for a number of weeks, and sometimes on one or more weekends.

These courses generally involve discussion in smallgroups as well as some very helpful films and lectures on a wide variety of subjects.

NO EATING

OCEAN BEACH, N.Y. (AP) — Last year, Ocean Beach police issued tickets to people who ate cookies in public. This year they will prosecute ice cream eaters too.

Free for the Asking

If you are planning a trip to a foreign country, you should know how much and what you are allowed to bring back tax free.

The 20-page booklet I Declare recommends that before you leave, have all valuables you plan to take along — such as cameras, expensive jewelry, boats, cars, etc. — identified and listed by a customs officer. This will make things easier when you return.

While you are abroad, keep all receipts for you purchases and accommodation, so that you can show them to Customs as evidence of the length of your stay and the value of the goods and repairs.

The booklet points out that you may send gifts from abroad to friends or relatives in Canada. However, each gift must cost less than $15 and not consist of alcoholic beverages, tobacco products or advertising matter.

The booklet also explains the different personal exemptions to which you may be entitled.

This helpful publication is available from any Canadian Customs Office or from: Public Relations Service, Department of National Revenue, Customs and Excise, Connaught Building, Ottawa, Ont. K1A 0L5.

READ ANY GOOD LABELS LATELY?
A basic guide to the Who, What, Where, When and Why of Shopping Canadian.

Why should you Shop Canadian?
Every time you buy something made in Canada, you help keep a Canadian working. You help keep Canadian money inside Canada. You help to expand and strengthen Canada's economy.
When you think about it, you help yourself.

When should you Shop Canadian?
Whenever you're satisfied that the product or service you need is
(A) made or grown in Canada and
(B) of equal or better value and quality.
That's not just good advice... it's good sense.

MADE IN CANADA
FABRIQUÉ AU CANADA

What is made in Canada?
Just about everything you need to help you live the life you want.
As the saying goes, we have no bananas, but we do have Apples, Bandages, Cranes, Drills, Elevators, Furniture, Glassware, Holiday resorts, Insulation, Jewellery, Kitchen appliances, Lumber, Machinery, Newspapers, Office equipment, Potatoes, Quilts, Rope, Steel, Tires, Umbrellas, Vaccines, Wines, X-Ray equipment, Yarns, and Zippers.
Everything, in other words, from A to Z.

Who should Shop Canadian?
Every day, most of us have the choice. Whether we're buying groceries for the home or supplies for business, farm or industry.
If each of us added only $10 a week to Canadian made purchases, Canada would be over 10 billion dollars better off in just one year.
Who should Shop Canadian?
You should.

Where does it say Made in Canada?
Sometimes it doesn't. Sometimes a sign says "Produce of P.E.I." Or "B.C. Apples" or "Fabriqué au Quebec" or "Made in Manitoba" or "New Brunswick Sardines" or "Grown by Saskatchewan Farmers" or "A product of Alberta" or "Fresh from Newfoundland" or "Manufactured in Ontario" or "Nova Scotia Lobster."
The point is, if you take the trouble to find out, you can usually tell.
And, if it's made anywhere in the ten Provinces or the Territories, it is made in Canada.

dear abby

DEAR ABBY: Can a person get poison oak through his clothes? My boyfriend got the most terrible case you ever saw. (I don't even want to mention where he got it the worst.)

Answer right away, Abby, because if he couldn't have gotten it through his pants, it is all over between him and me. Than you.

MISSY

DEAR MISSY: My medical experts tell me it's not easy to get poison oak through one's clothing, but it's possible. Don't scratch him off your list.

DEAR ABBY: I am married and have two small children. I also have a loving and devoted husband. What more could a wife want, right?

Well, for the last year I have had a secret desire for another man. I never dreamed that such thoughts would ever enter my head, and my husband would die if he knew it.

The other man doesn't know how I feel about him. I see him often (he's a butcher at the supermarket where I trade), and the thrill I get out of just looking at him makes me ashamed. I know he's married and has a family so nothing could ever come of this, but I can't help how I feel.

The Good Book says that to lust after someone is the same as committing adultery. I feel so ashamed and guilty. What's wrong with me?

LUSTING IN MY HEART

DEAR LUSTING: There is nothing "wrong" with you that isn't wrong with the rest of humanity. You are indulging in fantasy, which is normal — and harmless. The guilt feelings over your daydreams are doing you more harm that the daydreams. don't dwell on them.

Now, go scrub the kitchen floor and take a cold shower — you'll feel better.

DEAR ABBY: I have preschool children and a large home to care for, but I schedule my time so that everything gets done. When the children nap, I read, write letters, watch TV or just relax.

However, lately nearly every afternoon a certain neighbor barges in on me. She helps herself to refreshments, then settles down for an endless outpouring of gossip, unasked-for advice and a monologue of opinions on various subjects. She is tiresome, boring and a vicious gossip.

I would pretend not to be home, but she can see my car in the carport. At first, I found her entertaining, but she comes so often, I've taken a dislike to her. What should I do? No names or location, please. She has a sharp tongue and would make a better friend than an enemy.

NEEEDS HELP

DEAR NEEDS: People who open their doors to bores and tolerate their company day after day have only themselves to blame. By your failure to discourage her, you encourage her.

If I had to make a choice between having a vicious, gossipy, gutsy pest for a friend or an enemy, I'd opt for the latter.

CONFIDENTIAL TO MEL TORME: I seldom read novels, but I picked up "WYNNER" — written by you — and I couldn't put it down until I finished it. What a fascinating experience; I was truly sorry when it ended. You are a gifted writer as well as a talented musician, and your "Wynner" deserves to be a winner.

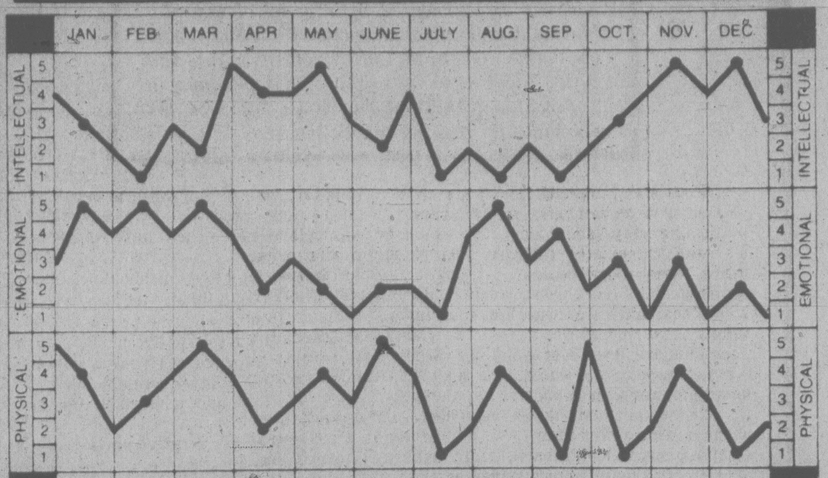
© BIODEX PRODUCTIONS 1978
Dist. by Toronto Sun Syndicate



HOW TO USE YOUR CHART:

BIO-DEX READOUT:

0-5 Negative Cycle-	If you feel haunted by a lost love, try to look forward as a wiser person.
6-10 Neutral Cycle-	The mechanics of things may give you a headache. Oil and dirt wash off, so take heart.
11-15 Positive Cycle-	Play a game with other high-cycle people. You may dazzle each other with your brilliance.

There are many opinions about the validity of biorhythms, and recent articles in Time and Reader's Digest looked at the evidence for and against. I'm always pleased to see lively interest in this fascinating subject. As a "believer" I feel that the conversation generated by these articles stimulates research and there's no doubt that we can learn a lot more about these mysterious life cycles. Maybe one day we will understand what actually causes biorhythms.

BRITAIN'S BIONIC BABE

LONDON (CP) — For the benefit of photographers, three-year-old Joanne Brennan lifted a popsicle to her mouth with her right hand.

Then the blonde-haired toddler took a two-fisted grip on a stroller and wheeled her doll across the lawn at her North London home.

Joanne, born with a right arm which ended just below the elbow, is Britain's bionic babe. At a cost of £3,000 ($6,000) she has been fitted with an artificial forearm and hand which uses electrodes to translate brain signals.

The hand was fitted in Sweden afterneighbors raised the bulk of the money, topped off with £500 ($1,000) donated by Arsenal football team from their Cup Final winnings.

Bill Brennan, the father, remembers the thrill of Joanne's return from Sweden.

"She came in carrying a plastic bag in her new hand. It was a wonderful moment."

A government health team here will begin studying the bionic babe to see whether the new techniques can be used to help others of the more than 100 babies born crippled like Joanne each year in Britain.

APATHY KILLING CANADA'S AGED

TORONTO (CP) — A 76-year-old retired union organizer says apathy is killing Canada's old people and he hopes to jolt them out of it during national Senior Citizens Week which began Sunday.

Jake Gorfinkel says he is trying to organize a senior citizens' march on Parliament buildings in Ottawa to protest rent increases in public housing and the reduction of income supplements for elderly persons who take part-time jobs.

No date has been set for the march, which, he said, will only occur if he can raise enough support.

Rising rents and food prices could be what old people need to rekindle their interest in public affairs and make them more radical, Gorfinkel said in recent interview.

"They won't stand up for their rights," he said. "Statistics show that 50 per cent of the elderly in Canada are poor. But it's even worse for the 30 per cent who aren't classed as poor, but who are struggling to survive on their small savings with no income supplements."

The government should provide a guaranteed minimum income and incentives for old people to work instead of giving supplements based on an arbitrary poverty line, said Gorfinkel, a former organizer for the United Auto Workers who now is active in community volunteer work.

"It's demoralizing the way things are now—people retired after years of active life, with no money and nothing to do.

The Clinic Story Marks 25 Years

I've been reading an interesting booklet titled The Clinic Story.

Written by Margaret McClung, to mark the 25th anniversary of the Cerebral Palsy Association of Lower Vancouver Island (operators of the G. R. Pearkes Clinic for Handicapped Children), it tells, in easy reading form, of the development of the clinic and the program that goes with it.

Mrs. McClung started work with the Cerebral Palsy Association in 1953, as a volunteer medical stenographer, taking notes for doctors who examined the first few children at the Saturday morning clinics.

Shortly afterward she became secretary-manager as well as medical stenographer, a position she held until retirement in 1974.

"The clinic did not appear by accident." she writes.

"It is the result of 25 years of real effort by many dedicated people in the community determined that handicapped children should have the opportunity to develop to their full potential and take their rightful place in society."

Then she goes on to say how it started back in the early 1950s.

At that time local lodges of the Knights of Pythias and the Pythian Sisters were sending contributions to the Vancouver Cerebral Palsy Group.

In one letter of thanks received from Vancouver, it was suggested that perhaps the Victoria Pythians might investigate to find out if there was a need here for services to cerebral palsy children.

The local lodges immediately took the suggestion up. A committee was formed with Horace Whiteoak the chairman.

Here my interest was increased one hundred per cent when I read that Mrs. Pat Dufour, now a senior reporter with this newspaper, was named secretary of the committee.

At that time, the booklet tells us "out-patient services for children were non-existent."

So the committee set out to discover from local medical people and all other sources, how many children would benefit from treatment.

The parents were invited "to meet together to discuss needs and problems, hopes and fears."

From those meetings a decision was made to form a Cerebral Palsy Association "with a broad community base to provide therapy at an out-patient clinic."

The association was incorporated in October, 1952 and Whiteoak was elected the first president.

Dr. J. L. Murray Anderson, then medical director at Royal Jubilee Hospital was appointed medical director and pediatricians and orthopaedic surgeons in the city undertook to assess and prescribe for the children, on a rotation basis.

Mrs. Dufour was elected secretary-manager and through her efforts service clubs and many other organizations gave support.

She also managed to secure the use of two small rooms in an annex on the east side of the Jubilee Hospital, rent free, to house the clinic, and to enlist the help of the Jaycettes to provide colorful drapes to brighten up those rooms.

Parents and interested volunteers constructed furniture and equipment for the two rooms. Finally, in February, 1953, the first seven children were seen and assessed, among them John McFadden, now married and with three children of his own.

A speech therapist and a physio-therapist, Marie Cricknay and Molly Houston commenced work on a part-time basis.

City and Oak Bay firemen volunteered to drive the patients to and from the clinic, in a car provided by National Motors.

An application for a federal health grant was approved and it enabled the association to employ a full-time physio-therapist, Helen Beattie.

About the same time Mrs. Dufour moved to ottawa where husband George (now retired but then with the Royal Canadian Navy) was transferred, and Mrs. McClung took over as secretary-manager.

The clinic grew very quickly as it reached out to more and more youngsters in ned of help.

A part-time school program was undertaken in 1954 (as there were no special classes for the handicapped in the regular school system), with Mrs. M. Magwood the first teacher.

A social work department was added, also a supervised nursery and kindergarten. An active auxiliary was formed that immediately took over arrangements for volunteer workers as well as making substantial contributions toward activities for the children.

By 1959 the Greater Victoria School Board had taken on the school program. Mrs. Zelma Swanson was in charge, full time, of the larger classroom — about 15 children — while Mrs. Mary Hiscock headed what was called the "little school."

Other children attended regular school and still others were in the nursery group.

In 1965 the hospital was forced to ask the clinic to vacate and it was transferred to an old converted army hut on the Lansdowne Campus of University of Victoria (now Camosun College.)

At the same time, to denote the wider range of children's problems accepted for treatment, it was renamed the Cerebral Palsy Clinic.

Four years later, when it vacated the campus location to go in to the new George Pearkes Clinic for handicapped Children on Haro Road, there were 100 chilren in care, a full staff and many, many volunteers.

Today the number of young people of all ages has increased to 308, there is a staff of 43 and 150 dedicated volunteers.

I've only been able to touch on a few of the highlights in The Clinic Story.

Margaret McClung writes of fund raising projects, volunteer work, grants received and of the building and opening of the present clinic.

And she concludes with "all the children who have attended have been greatly helped by their experience. Some are married, raising families and working in th community now.

"Others have gone on to university or college and either worked toward degrees or audited courses. Many of the younger ones have gone into the regular school system and are doing well.

"Their courage, cheerfulness and patience is a real example to us all. There are many, many success stories. The Clinic is very proud of all its graduates!"

It's worth reading!

Arthritis Can hit Youngsters, Too

I was shocked to learn that our 12-year-old boy has arthritis. No one in our family, not even the older ones, have ever had anything like it. Could this be a mistaken diagnosis? — Mrs. J.J.B.

Dear Mrs. B.:

Almost everybody associates arthritis with the process of aging. This is not true. Although arthritis, with all of its divisions and sub-divisions, occurs far more frequently in adults, it is seen occasionally in children. In fact, there are many variations of childhood rheumatoid arthritis that have captured the attention of rheumatologists.

X-ray studies of the joints, blood studies and immunoglobulin deficiency tests are made in an effort to track down the cause and to definitely establish the specific diagnosis.

I am certain that before your doctor committed himself to such a diagnosis, these and all other tests were made to definitely establish the diagnosis. I have often told readers that when any confusion exists about a diagnosis or treatment you must communicate with your doctor. Doctors are aware of the fact that when such confusion exists it can erode or destroy the relationship with their patients.

With complex problems like juvenile rheumatoid arthritis, doctors welcome the opportunity to confer with their colleagues and to seek the advice of other specialists in that field.

Whenever I take a flight of more than three or four hours and even if I cross only one time zone, my whole system goes into a state of disarray. It takes me three or four days to get back into balance and to be able to function normally again. Is there any way of controlling this? — Mr. B.H.

Dear Mr. H.:

The physical and psychological changes associatd with the "jet lag" phenomenon are technically known as "dysrhythmia." As the name implies, the time clock mechanism of all body organs is thrown out of gear and strange patterns of rhythmic behavior follow.

When the body's time clock goes off, fluctuations of body temperature, changes in respiration and in the rate of the heartbeat, and even the urinary outflow become evident. The normal flow of digestive juices and the hormone balance are also disturbed.

On your next trip, try to conform your activities to your time of departure rather than to your time of arrival in your new place. Try to gently ease yourself into the new time change by gradually adjusting your "body time clock" to the new environment.

For example, should you leave Washington at 6 p.m. to go to California, you will arrive there at about midnight, your departure time. Due to the time changes, it will be only 9 p.m. in California and the evening will still be young. There is a temptation to stay up. Don't! If you retire in terms of your departure time, your fatigue and body rhythm time will be less affected.

THE MOTHER EARTH NEWS
...it tells you how the strawberry barrel

If you love the taste of a fresh-picked strawberry but are limited in space, here's an idea that will enable you to grow dozens of the plants indoors or out.

Cut several 2-inch diameter plant holes (spaced at least six inches apart) in the sides of a wooden, 30-gallon barrel. Punch a few 1-inch drain holes in the bottom of the barrel and drop a circular section of aluminum screening into the keg to cover these lower openings.

Center a perforated (drill ½-inch holes every five inches), 4-inch diameter drain pipe vertically in the planter. Fill this watering core with small-sized gravel, and place another inch of stone around the pipe's base.

Place the strawberry barrel on a bed of larger gravel (to keep the area clean and dry) and fill it with a rich soil mixture. Keep the earth moist — but never soggy — by pouring water or a weak manure tea into the central drain pipe.

You should be able to harvest berries that will rival any grown in your area!

Some Safety Tips For Trailering

WEST LAFAYETTE, Ind. (AP) — Because hitching a trailer to your vehicle quadruples your chances of having an accident, says a Purdue University professor, drivers should take special care when towing.

"Many people are't aware that manoeuvring a car with a trailer attached is immensely different and can be more difficult for beginners," said B. E. Quinn, professor of mechanical engineering.

"Trailering can be a real joy," added Quinn, who has taken a number of trailer vacations with his family. "But a few simple precautions should be observed to guarantee peace of mind."

To begin, he recommends practising manoeuvring with the trailer before going out on the road for a trip.

"Remember, your accelerating and braking time is much longer—you're moving a lot more weight."

Since one of five trailer-related accidents results from hitch failure, the professor emphasized the importance of an appropriatehitch. A common mistake is to try using a bumper hitch to pull a heavy load.

An equalizing hitch must be installed for larger loads and the hitch weight should usually be about 15 per cent of the total trailer weight.

Quinn warned that the engine is most likely to overheat when the car is pulling a trailer up a hill. If this happens, first turn off the air-conditioning unit. If overheating persists, pull over to the roadside, put the transmission in park, and run the engine at twice its normal idling speed to circulate the air and cool off the engine.

"Don't ever exceed the load-carrying capacity of your trailer tires. These tires are often smaller in diameter, heating up faster." And, because of the added load, it's easier for a blowout to occur.

Check the trailer-wheel nuts frequently to make sure they are sufficiently tightened.

While wind can create problems for the single vehicle, it can be devastating when a trailer is added, Quinn said.

When passing another vehicle, allow lots of room. "Don't try to pass going up a hill or on a narrow, winding road when pulling a heavy trailer."

Now, the Lighter Side of the News

By AB KENT
Times Staff

"Last one to leave turns out the light."

It's still good advice despite the old wives' tale that it costs more to switch a light off and on than it does to leave it burning.

Who says so? The professional guru of lighting in North America, president-elect Will S. Fisher, of the Illuminating Engineering Society, attending the IES Pacific Northwest regional conference at The Empress.

Fisher, senior vice-president of IES and employed by General Electric in Cleveland, is making his 11th and final visit to a regional convention before assuming the international president's office July 1.

The role of lighting in an energy-conscious society is a theme of the two-day meeting which closes with a banquet this evening.

Fisher said it is a popular fallacy that more electricity is required to restart incandescent electric lights than if they are allowed to burn.

"If you are going to be out of a room for five minutes or more, turn off the lights," he said.

In this time of energy conservation it is important to use electricity and lighting efficiently, and that means considering lighting in the total energy package, including heating and cooling. For example, in a two-storey building where lighting is used through the working day it will supply some of the heat required in cooler weather, and increase the load on air conditioning in warmer weather, Fisher said.

In this part of the world, where seasonal temperature fluctuation is low, there is not a great deal of energy-saving potential in the use of lighting, he said.

Architects, industrial designers and engineers must recognize the real and psychological effects of lighting on workers as well as the esthetic qualities that go into lighting design. Fisher said lighting is a big factor in performance because it affects motivation and therefore the amount and quality of work accomplished.

When it comes to setting recommended standards of lighting to guide engineers, architects, industry and government, it is invalid to suggest the IES is subject to bias because it represents the manufacturing industry, Fisher said.

In fact, the society's standards committee — established in 1943 as the Illuminating Research Institute — is weighted 60-40 in favor of consumers, academics and architects against industry representatives, he pointed out.

Researchers are away from the commercial end of the industry without any axe to grind and have tried to be objective in their recommendations which then go for final approval to the IES board of directors, Fisher said.

An example of where less rather than more lighting may become evident in North America is in roadway illumination, he said. It has been found in Europe that more effective lighting can be obtained by luminant reflection from road surfaces than by adding to overhead illumination, and the society has recommended more research into this with the object of adopting this trend in the 1980s.

And on the same subject, he said it had been established that the use of high-pressure sodium vapor lamps instead of the long-used mercury vapor lamps is twice as efficient and therefore conserves more electrical energy, even though capital cost is somewhat higher.

Rainbow Wins Edmonton Trip

A crew from Victoria's Rainbow Royal Canadian Sea Cadet Corps will represent B.C. in the national sea cadet regatta July 7-9 on Lake Wabamun near Edmonton.

Skipper Tim Roberts and crew Ben Denslow were the winners of a B.C. region five-race sail-off, held on the weekend at HMCS Quadra, the summer training establishment at Goose Spit near Comox.

Racing in Albacores, the two Victoria cadets' score was 5.7 points.

Second were Margaret Harper and Michelle Rothwell of the Malaspina corps at Powell River with 8.7 points under reverse Olympic scoring.

Third was Bill Linterman and Kenny Murphy of Nanaimo's Amphion corps with 11 points.

All three crews will race in Edmonton.

Narrowly missing out was another crew from Rainbow. Aubrey Baird and Zigman Grzybowski had 16.7 points.

In the final and longest race of the regatta they finished second in spite of a dunking by Baird. He and Grzybowski were hiking their boat when Baird fell over the side. Scrambling back in, he and his crew completed the race, baling out water every chance they had.

A total of 10 crews took part.

MDs Switch Abortion Stand

WINNIPEG (CP) — Canadian medical doctors who refuse to perform abortions on moral grounds are no longer required to refer their patients to other doctors or agencies.

The decision, approved Monday by the Canadian Medical Association's (CMA) general council, rescinded an earlier amendment to the code of ethics which said physicians opposing abortion on moral or religious grounds, must advise patients of other sources of assistance.

The new amendment now says "when his (a physician's) morality or religious conscience alone prevents him from recommending some form of therapy, he will so acquaint the patient."

Dr. A. H. Parsons of Halifax, chairman of the committee on ethics, said Monday the issue of abortion was the main reason for the change.

The previous amendment, approved last June by the CMA, was criticized by provincial medical associations for not going far enough or for going too far to help patients seeking abortions.

The Newfoundland Medical Association, for example, withdrew its support of the amendment which asked doctors to refer their patients elsewhere, if they did not support abortions.

The Ontario College of Physicians and Surgeons expressed concern about the possibility a doctor could have his licence revoked for failing to refer a patient.

Dr. L. J. Genesove of Willowdale, Ont., told the CMA it was unfair to ask a doctor to follow through on something he firmly believed was wrong.

"Where the issue of abortion is concerned," he said, "there are doctors who feel a patient's mortal soul will perish (if he refers her elsewhere for an abortion). We can't inflict on the doctor the responsibility of having to negate his own code of ethics."

Physicians who supported abortions also criticized the previous amendment, Dr. Parsons said, because of its vague and ambiguous wording.

For example, a doctor opposing abortion could refer his patient to seek other means of assistance by referring her to other pro-life clergymen or social agencies, he said.

"The patient would be put on a merry-go-round, and be referred from one source to another until a safe abortion may have been too late and she would have had to undergo a more serious procedure, the saline induction."

While both pro-life and pro-abortion physicians are appeased by the new amendment, Dr. Parsons said, the one to suffer may still be the patient.

A woman wanting an abortion may find help if she lives in a large community and knows of other sources.

"But if she happens to live in a small community in which there are only two or three other physicians who happen to hold the same moral and religious views about abortion, then . . . she may have to have the baby."

CRASH TALKS STILL ON

OTTAWA (CP) — All parties are still talking in an attempt to reach out-of-court settlements of claims arising from a February plane crash at Cranbrook, and "we can only hope for a conclusion in the next few weeks," says W.J.A. Hobson, ministry of transport chief general counsel.

Forty-three people were killed in the Feb. 11 crash of a Pacific Western Airlines jet and a coroner's inquest later determined that a breakdown in communications between air traffic controllers, Cranbrook airport and Pacific Western Airlines was a major factor.

Transport department regulations require commercial air liners to carry insurance on the lives of all passengers and there has been pressure on the government to force the companies to pay up.

"We are trying to achieve an arrangement where a fund is established so innocent third parties can be compensated as quickly as possible without going to court," Hobson said in an interview Monday. "The government involvement is to make sure all liabilities are honored by all parties concerned."

GOV'T BLASTED ON LATERILE

WINNIPEG (CP) — The federal government was accused Monday by the Canadian Medical Association of disregarding the broadcast of erroneous medical information about an illegal drug.

Dr. John Bennett, CMA's director of professional affairs, said a Canadian Broadcasting Corp., program which favored the use of laetrile for cancer treatment was irresponsible and may have given Canadians false hopes about the use of the substance.

Governments and medical associations in Canada do not recognize laetrile as a drug or as a successful treatment for cancer.

Bennett said at least one Ottawa man spent his life savings to go to the United States for laetrile treatment. The man said he saw the CBC program about cancer treatment entitled, "Encounter with Cancer."

After appealing to both the Canadian Radio-Television and Telecommunications Commission and the federal health department, Bennett said the CMA was told the responsibility for program content lies with the producers.

"Further correspondence on the subject with the CRTC produced nothing of any value and (CMA) council gained the impression the CRTC was not very interested in the matter, preferring to place the responsibility for content on respective networks," the association's council report said.

Although the CMA contacted CBC executives, expressing concern about the biased view of unfounded cancer therapy through laetrile, the program was again broadcast in 1975, Bennett said.

He said the second broadcast was termed a mistake by the CBC.

Banker Raps 'Subsidy'

OTTAWA (CP) — Competitors of the chartered banks will be getting what amounts to a subsidy for their banking operations if the government proceeds with current plans to set up a national cheque-clearing system, a senior bank executive said Monday.

Robert Utting, executive vice-president of the Royal Bank of Canada, said at a service club meeting it would be in the public interest if planned changes to the Bank Act were not "motivated by the erroneous belief that the banks have a monopoly on banking in Canada."

The amendments to the act, introduced in May, are aimed at improving competition in the banking industry, by allowing so-called "near-banks"—trust companies, credit unions and caisses populaires—to carry on bank services.

One of the changes would set up a cheque-clearing system called the Canadian Payments Association. To participate, near-banks would not have to maintain reserve funds with the Bank of Canada as chartered banks now are compelled to do.

Utting said the chartered banks had argued strenuously that all institutions carrying on banking business should be subject to the same rules and requirements, including maintenance of reserves.

Funds Pocketed

TORONTO (CP) — A former vice-president of McNamara Corp. Ltd. told an Ontario Supreme Court jury Monday that he diverted more than $280,000 from McNamara into his own pocket during the years he rigged dredging bids on behalf of the company.

Albin Louis Quinlan, who now manages a dredging company in Sault Ste. Marie, Ont., testified that in 1965 he diverted $107,000 from McNamara into a company called McLean Dredge and Dock, of which he was part owner.

He said the money came from "scoresheet entries" or credits owed to McNamara's in return for its co-operation in rigging tender bids.

Charges Rejected

OTTAWA (CP) — Immigration Minister Bud Cullen Monday rejected charges that cases of discrimination are all too common at some Canadian airports when officials refuse entry to those from Caribbean countries.

Cullen told the Commons he has visited the airports to explain the government's policy and is satisfied that there is no discrimination.

The minister was replying to New Democrat MP Andrew Brewin (Greenwood) who said that at some airports, such as Toronto, immigration authorities practice discrimination that results in "deep resentment among members of Commonwealth and Caribbean countries."

Commons Staff Sore

OTTAWA (FP) — Dissatisfaction is growing among the people who operate the House of Commons over recent pay increases.

An overwhelming majority of the 2,500 Commons employees have voiced discontent in two separate referendums and are demanding remedial action from Speaker James Jerome.

In one vote, 91.3 per cent of secretaries and researchers in MPs' offices said they were not satisfied. And 99 per cent of other Commons support staff expressed dissatisfaction with the salary increases.

Raises announced late last month, retroactive to April 1, amounted to either 5.5 or six per cent. Some employees got no percentage boosts, but received cash lump sum payments instead.

A joint committee of House of Commons employees agreed the results of the polls make it clear the discontent is common to all groups of Commons employees.

"To satisfy his employees, the Speaker must now grant more substantial and realistic pay increases," the committee insisted.

Commons staff also indicated in the referendum a desire to have a voice in the decisions that affect their salaries and working conditions.

MP URGES PROBE

OTTAWA (CP) — Liberal MP Herb Gray Monday urged federal transport department experts to look into allegations of a U.S. consumer group that two of Chrysler Corporation's most popular models have unsafe steering.

Gray (Windsor-West) said the department should issue a statement as quickly as possible whether or not the Dodge Omni and the Plymouth Horizon meet all current federal safety standards.

Last week, Consumers Union announced that tests on the two front-wheel drive small cars found that when the front wheels were suddenly deflected at highway speeds, they did not recover adequately.

CHINA BUYS WHEAT

WINNIPEG (CP) — The Canadian wheat board Monday announced the sale of three million metric tons (110 million bushels) of wheat to China.

The board said in a news release the sale to the China National Cereals, Oils and Foodstuffs Import and Export Corp., covers a number of grade options including No. 3 Canada Western red spring, No. 1 Canada Utility and the lower protein levels of other red spring wheats.

Shipments against the sale are to start in September and run through August, 1979. All shipments will be made through Pacific ports.

Payment for part of the contract will be in cash with credit terms for the balance.

All payments are in Canadian dollars.

NDP Protests

OTTAWA (FP) — The federal government came under attack Monday for discriminating against women in senior public service appointments.

NDP Leader Ed Broadbent urged the prime minister to reverse his decision to bypass Jenniffer McQueen—the acting secretary-general of National Museums of Canada since last February—to the job on a permanent basis.

Prime Minister Trudeau announced last week that Ian Christie Clark, 48, will become museums secretary-general July 1, succeeding Bernard Ostry who was named deputy minister of communications last Feb. 1.

THE STORY OF The Go-Get-'Em Gardener

Once upon a time, there was a man who was tired of working in an office. He would gaze out of the window and wish he could be outside in the fresh air.

One day, a not-very-rich but not-very-poor uncle left him some money. The man decided to use it to go into business for himself. Since I like being outside, he thought, I will go after the business of caring for people's gardens. I will weed them, and cut grass: I will plant things and prune things, and make gardens beautiful. He ran a series of ads in the daily papers to tell people what he could do, and what he would charge.

People were glad to pay him to look after their gardens, for he did a very good job. He worked hard and he was happy. Soon, the man found he needed more tools so that he could work fast enough to keep up with all the jobs he was being offered. Soon, too, he found he needed a boy to keep them sharp, and to look after the books.

So he hired a bright young chap (who had a college education but couldn't get a job in his field). The Gardener, enthusiastic about his expanding business, eager to paint signs on his truck, and to advertise so he would get even more work, talked to the clever young man about his business.

The clever young man told him that times were tough, that the international financial picture was grim, that the domestic situation was even worse. "We have been in a period of recession for some time, and business will soon be even slower" he said assuredly.

So, knowing the young man had a good education, and assuming that he therefore knew a great deal about the economic state of the nation, the gardener decided not to paint the sign on his truck, and postponed scheduling the ads the daily newspaper had designed for him, at least 'until times got better'.

The young man was correct, of course. Within a very short time no-one was calling for garden work to be done any more. No lawns to cut. No earth to dig. No trees to prune. "You were quite right" the gardener said to the young man. "We certainly are experiencing a big cut-back in business". And he put his tools away.

That deception in the play of the cards is mandatory if one aspires to become a winner is concurred in by all players. In today's deal we have an example of deceptive play. Sitting West was Kit Woolsey, of Washington, D.C. The deal was played in this year's National Championships.

Opening lead: Three of ♠.

On West's opening spade lead dummy's jack was put up, and it captured the trick. The five of diamonds came next, East followed suit with the ten-spot, and South played the jack. With no visible hesitation, Woolsey allowed the jack to win the trick.

It should be noted that if West had won the trick with his king, declarer would now have had 10 winning tricks: three spades, six diamonds and one club. But look at the situation when South's jack of diamonds captured trick two.

When South next led his remaining diamond and West followed suit with the four-spot, there was but one diamond outstanding in the East-West hands: the king. And being unable to visualize that West had that key card and had refused to win a trick with it, South assumed that East had been dealt the doubleton K-10.

And so it came to pass that declarer, at trick three, put up the board's ace of diamonds, being certain that he would catch East's king. But when East discarded a club on the second diamond lead, South became doomed to defeat. He could establish dummy's diamonds by making a third diamond lead, but he could not re-enter dummy's hand to cash the diamonds. When play had ended, declarer had gone down a couple of tricks.

It is a moot question as to whether declarer should be criticized for his play of the diamond suit. Certainly he would have been a hero if East had been dealt the doubleton K-10 of diamonds.

"NOBODY'S GONNA TELL ME I'M GOOD FOR NOTHING... I CHARGE PLENTY!"

WORDY GURDY

BY TRICKY RICKY

Every answer is a rhyming pair of words (like FAT CAT and DOUBLE TROUBLE), and they will fit in the letter squares. The number after the definition tells you how many syllables in each word. To win $10, send your original rhymes with your definitions to this newspaper. All entries become the property of UFS, Inc.

Thanks and $10 to Kathlene Moore of Shiloh, OH for #4. Send your entry to this newspaper.

YOUR HOROSCOPE

Astrological Forecast for Wednesday, June 21
By SYDNEY OMARR

ARIES (March 21-April 19): This is your power-play day. Know it and act accordingly. One at top makes room for you. Bring priorities into sharp, clear focus. Cancer, Capricorn figure prominently. You make important advancement. You get backing from "authoritative source."

TAURUS (April 20-May 20): You finish what you start — individual who played key role in your past could reappear. Aries, Libra figure prominently. Write, correspond, open lines of communication. Chart your own course. Refuse to be backed into corner. Protect your space!

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): You gain strength. You are encouraged to be more independent in thought and action. Leo, Aquarius figure in scenario. Accent on the occult, finances affecting those close to you. Missing article is located.

CANCER (June 21-July 22): Intuition pays dividends. You're at right place at right time. Aquarian is in picture. Emphasis on partnership, legal green light — and marriage. You get reports, letters, messages regarding public reaction to your efforts.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): Light touch wins. Avoid heavy-handed methods. Leave fine points, details for another time. Accept invitation to social outing. Diversify. Display versatility, Adaptability — and humor. Gemini, Sagittarius persons figure prominently. You get a "third chance" to correct an error.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): Break through red tape — display knowledge, become thoroughly familiar with basic issues. You are able to express yourself, to touch, to feel, to love. Children are due to play key roles. Change, travel, excitement are featured. What had been a serious roadblock will be removed.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): Obtain valid hint from Virgo message. Dig deep for information. Be analytical. Find reasons for recent happenings. Member of opposite sex is drawn to you. Gemini, Virgo Sagittarius persons figure prominently. You get reassurances which aid in building emotional security.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): Home, relatives, close neighbors could dominate your personal scenario. You make important "correction" or adjustment. One who was envious, who created friction, will now become an ally. Exercise ability to win friends, to be diplomatic, to fight hard but to be gracious when it's over.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): Look inward, know that being alone is not same as being lonely. You are able to perceive what people want, what they think — and what you can do about it. Pisces, Virgo figure prominently. The number 7 could play key role.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): Be direct, confident; take initiative, make views known. You'll obtain needed support. Capricorn is in picture and so is Cancer individual. Relationship is "serious" and you make correct decision. Older individual wants to help — if you forego principles. Be warned!

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): You get what you want, but the route is circuitous. Know it and don't be discouraged by delays, misdirection. Aries, Libra figure prominently. Burden not your own in first place is removed. Erase any hint of guilt feeling. Support, prestige on the rise.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20): Flash of insight occurs. You see path leading to happiness. Light replaces gloom. Allow yourself to be pleased, fulfilled! Be original, independent, selfish in sense that you protect your rights. Leo is in scenario.

Onion, Leek Beds Differ

The onion and the leek are both in the genus Allium but their culture is not the same.

Onion bulbs grow above soil level in full sun whereas leeks are buried to eight inches below soil level in order to obtain the white stem which is the edible portion.

Onion seed is sown in a prepared seed bed outdoors, about one foot square, around the end of October. The amount of seed to sow varies according to the number of onions used by the family. It is scattered close in the middle of the seed bed and lightly covered with screened compost.

The closer the seedlings grow the less bulb is produced at the base. Those which show a slight bulb will quickly go to seed therefore are transplanted to a separate bed for use as green salad onions.

When transplanting, onion seedlings are set just deep enough for the soil to hold them upright. The soil is gradually removed as the roots obtain a good hold and the bulbs start to develop. By June the bulbs should be fully exposed, sitting on top of the soil like golf balls.

Tops are not bent over at this stage. The bending over and breaking of the leaf fibres is only done in areas of frequent summer rain or showers which causes growth to continue after the bulbs have reached their full size. Bending and breaking the leaves reduces the food supply and lessens the growth.

Onions properly grown in our dry summers do not need bending over if water is prevented from reaching the root area after the bulbs have become full size for the variety being grown. They will ripen naturally in late July to early August.

Leek seed is sown indoors during February and the seedlings gorwn on in a clay pot until eight inches in height.

The leek bed is prepared in March or early April by digging 12 inches deep and incorporating plenty of compost.

When the bed has settled, holes are made with a one-and-one-half inch wooden dibber, eight inches deep and 12 to 14 inches apart.

One seedling is dropped into each hole, and the bed is lightly watered to wash a little soil into the holes to cover the roots. The seedlings are left like this to make their growth.

Gardeners growing leeks for the first time have sown the seed in rows like beets and carrots, and are asking if the seedlings should be thinned.

These row seedlings should be transplanted when eight inches high into a bed as described above, or thinned to 12 inches apart and the soil banked up each side of the row to the top of the foilage. Banking will have to be increased as the plants elongate.

This banking of soil to get the long white edible portion is never as satisfactory as planting into deep holes. The dry soil of the bank erodes when watered, and it is not so resistant to light and air as a hole in solid soil. The result is usually a short edible portion and an unnecessary quantity of inedible leaves.

Where leeks have been sown in rows it would be best to prepare a new bed, firm it gently by light treading, make the eight inch holes and transplant the thinnings immediately.

The spaced plants in the rows can be left and banked with soil and a comparison made in the size of the plants that are produced by each method of growing.

HOW TO WRITE

A GOOD

CLASSIFIED ACTION AD

1—IT'S BEST to start your ad with the name of the article or service you have to offer. If you have an apartment, room etc., for rent, or property for sale: start your ad with the location.

2—BE CLEAR. Readers respond more quickly and favorably when given complete, definite information. Always include the price in your adveertisement.

3—MAKE IT EASY for the reader-prospect to reach you. Always give your telephone number or your name and address. If you do not have regular hours, state a preferred time for the prospect to get in touch with you.

4—PLAY SAFE. You get the greatest reader attention by using consecutive insertions. A six-day order is best and costs less, and you can, of course, stop your ad as soon as you get the results you want. You pay only for the days your ad appeared. Lower yearly rates are available to those who wish to keep their services or products before the public.

5—PLACE YOURSELF in the reader's position and ask yourself what you want to know about your offer. The answer you give will make a good Want Ad.

6—GIVE YOUR PROSPECT every inducement you can with good copy. Classified action ad readers have the money and are already interested in buying the merchandise or service you have to offer; the details and information you give are the most important.

7—TO PLACE YOUR AD, call 386-2121, your direct line number to fast Want Ad action. A courteous, efficient advisor will be glad to help you word and place your order. And remember Classified Action Ads afford you the most complete coverage. Telephones are open 8:00 a.m. to 6:00 p.m. for you daily, Monday through Friday; 8:00 a.m. to 5:30 p.m. Saturday. Don't allow the reader to speculate.

Egypt Fires Ambassador

CAIRO (AP) — Egypt's ambassador to Portugal has been fired and ordered home after publicly accusing President Anwar Sadat of destroying democracy in Egypt, letting the armed forces run down and pursuing a peace policy that has made Israel "more intransigent than ever."

Egypt's official Middle East news agency said Foreign Minister Mohamed Ibrahim Kamel fired Ambassador Saad el Shazli and ordered him home "immediately" because he "gravely violated his duties."

The agency said Shazli, 56, will be tried under "the diplomatic laws" when he returned to Cairo. But the ambassador said earlier in Lisbon that whether he went home would depend on Sadat's reaction to his criticism.

The semi-official newspaper Al Ahram launched a campaign of vilification against Shazli, military chief-of-staff during the 1973 war with Israel. It accused him of collaborating with Libyan leader Moammar Khadafy, Sadat's arch foe in the Arab world, and said Sadat replaced him in 1973 because he was unable to prevent Israeli troops crossing the Suez canal.

Shazli made his condemnation of Egypt's president in a three-page handwritten letter delivered to news agencies in Lisbon Monday and in an interview with the Portuguese news agency ANOP.

"Under the ambiguous phrases of national unity and social peace, Sadat is driving now all his political opponents to the prison," he wrote.

He said Sadat's "autocratic regime" is hiding "behind a facade of powerless democratic institutions."

"I say what millions of Egyptians would like to say but cannot," he told the news agency. "The wrong that Sadat has done in the last three or four years is irreparable."

FDA Rule Burns Bands

WASHINGTON (UPI) — A rock n' roll band has run afoul of the Food and Drug Administration with an unusual problem FDA officials say may be widespread in the music business.

The problem is laser used for light shows during concerts. In this case, FDA radiation experts measured the lasers used by a band called the "Blue Oyster Cult" during a performance earlier this year in Atlanta. And officials told the band to clean up its act.

The FDA's Bureau of Radiological Health, which enforces laws dealing with radiation exposure, told the band what it would have to do to its laser system to prevent possible burn injuries to concert-goers.

"Many entertainment people are pretty far removed from food and drug laws and radiation hazards," a spokesman said Monday. "They don't really associate lasers with radiation, least of all with the FDA.

"But lasers do produce potentially hazardous light radiation. Like any other light there is a potential burn hazard," he added. "It's like holding a magnifying glass to the sunlight."

Namibia Talks Set

OTTAWA (CP) — Talks are expected to resume within two weeks on a Canadian-supported plan for transition to black majority rule in Namibia, but obstacles to agreement still seem great.

Pete Manning, a white representative of the black South-West Africa People's Organization (SWAPO), said Monday there are several major sticking points including the status of the important deepwater port, Walvis Bay.

But an external affairs spokesman indicated Canada and the four other Western powers behind the peace plan to not intend to change the proposals. There might be changes in detail but the Western plan would remain basically untouched.

South Africa has already accepted the Western package and External Affairs Minister Don Jamieson is reluctant to reopen the whole discussion.

One promising sign is that SWAPO sought the new talks and Manning repeated that his organization would like a negotiated settlement. Discussions were postponed a month ago after South African troops raided a SWAPO camp deep inside Angola.

Namibia, or South-West Africa, has been under South African control since 1920 but the United Nations revoked the mandate in 1966. The UN has said South Africa rules Namibia illegally.

South Africa announced plans to give the territory independance early last year but SWAPO rejected the proposals.

80 Loggers To Stay Out

CAMPBELL RIVER (CP) — About 80 loggers at MacMillan Bloedel Ltd.'s Eve River camp say they have decided to stay off the job for the week following two-day suspensions that were handed out Monday.

The suspensions came after the loggers arrived late for work following a union meeting Monday morning which was held to discuss the 10-day suspension of camp union co-chairman Al Miller and the five-day suspension of another worker Friday.

Logger Bjorn Asdal, speaking for the other members of the International Woodworkers of America at the camp, said the men wanted to give the company "a week to reflect on their actions."

"We're more or less fed up with the way suspensions and firings have been coming down one after the other," he said.

Camp personnel officer Bill Ohs said the initial suspensions were given because the company felt the two men were not putting in a full day's work.

Union co-chairman Dennis Garneau said some workers fired or suspended must wait up to a year before their arbitration hearings. The numerous suspensions along with recent firings at Eve River amount to harassment, he said.

Neither the IWA nor the company would comment on the siuation.

Cabinet Assassin Threat?

An Aldergrove man said Monday a group of radical protesters has threatened the lives of B.C. cabinet ministers and will blow up the legislature unless all herbicides and defoliants are banned within a month.

Anders Skantz, 28, said he was contacted by a member of an organization called the Weather Underground and told to relay the message to newspapers. Skantz did so, but he also informed the speaker of the legislature and the RCMP, who he said have promised him protection.

He said he was chosen to give the warning because he had been the B.C. co-ordinator of the Earth Day Movement in 1970, affiliated with the National Survival Base Institute of Hamilton, Ont., to promote information and action on ecological matters.

Skantz said he does not know the identities of people in the Weather Underground, which he said is connected with the Weathermen, a U.S. group of radicals. But he recognized the person who handed him the warning message as one of the Weather group in 1970.

Indian Quote Not Policy

The government does not have a policy to send native Indians residing in urban centres back to their reserves, Premier Bill Bennett said Monday.

Bennett was responding to a question by Rosemary Brown (NDP—Vancouver-Burrard), who sought more detail on comments made last week by Human Resources Minister Bill Vander Zalm, who was absent from the legislature.

During question period Monday, she asked Bennett if he was announcing government policy through Vander Zalm, who in effect suggested last week that Indians go back to their reserves.

"I'm not sure that's the statement that was made, but the answer is no," Bennett said.

Bennett said he was unsure of Vander Zalm's exact words but that published accounts of his statements do not indicate government policy.

Vander Zalm said Friday he feels native Indians would be better off on their reserves where they wouldn't be as much a burden on the social welfare system of the province.

Ms. Brown asked Labor Minister Allan Williams, who is responsible for the human rights commission and for native Indian affairs, whether Vander Zalm had consulted with him prior to making his statements. Williams did not respond.

$1 Billion Authority

Legislation introduced Monday will increase the B.C. Development Corporation's investment authority from $100 million to $1 billion.

Economic Development Minister Don Phillips said the large single increase will end the necessity to make amendments every year, making the BCDC Act good until the mid-1980s, he said.

The Crown-owned corporation was set up under the NDP to provide loans or land to encourage the development of industry in the province.

Relics Unearthed

TOKYO (AP) — Chinese archeologists on the offshore island of Hainan have dug up stone spades and axes, iron swords, pottery jars and funeral urns, some of which date back 4,000 years.

Blenkinsop Probe Rejected

A motion asking the provincial government to investigate over-expenditures on the Blenkinsop Creek drainage project was rejected by Saanich council Monday night, with only Ald. John Mika and Ald. Bob Cameron supporting the call for an inquiry.

It was Mayor Mel Couvelier who first raised the issue during last year's election campaign, when he claimed there had been a project over-run of $160,000.

Former aldermanic candidate Jack Fry, 1083 Lodge, developed the theme and persistently pressed for detailed figures on the project, which were finally released a few weeks ago although Couvelier himself said he was now satisfied there had been no questionable practices involved.

On Monday night, Fry returned to the attack with a five-page brief demanding a full and independent inquiry to determine the real cost of the drainage work.

He said the figures quoted to date range from less than $67,000 to $200,000.

"This project leaves many vital questions unanswered," he said. "There are too many conflicting cost figures. There appears to have been some highly irregular actions."

An accompanying memorandum to council from municipal engineer Cliff Warren and controller-treasurer Roy Broughton said although there had been an over-expenditure on the enclosure of the creek and a weir installation, the total amount authorized by council in its 1976 drainage budget was not overspent.

Mika told council he was not satisfied that all the questions raised by Fry had been answered by officials.

Cameron felt that an inquiry should not be restricted to the officials.

"It could have something to do with the politicians," he added.

Public works committee chairman Ald. Howard Sturrock said although past practices in some areas of municipal administration had been lax, he could not support an inquiry.

BRIDGE HONORS FOR CITY TRIO

Three Victoria bridge players have been named life masters, the highest rank in the American Contract Bridge League.

Mrs. Margaret Cristie, of 205-964 Heywood, Mrs. Maggoe Warren of 967 Carolwood, and Mrs. Betty Barnard of 955 Carolwood received the awards following a six-day bridge tournament at Penticton.

The three were among about 20 members of the Victoria Bridge Club who took part in the tournament that ended on Sunday.

Mrs. Warren is vice-president of the Victoria unit of the ACBL and her neighbor, Mrs. Barnard, is treasurer.

Few Students Shifting

Few students and none of the teachers involved in an oral communications program at Bank Street elementary school will make a school board-ordered move to Margaret Jenkins.

So far, only 10 of the program's 67 students have indicated they will accompany the program to its new location.

Two of the program instructors, including head teacher Bridget Flynn, have resigned. The other two teachers had temporary contracts.

In a shuffle meant to combat low enrolment, the school board decided in April to relocate the Bank Street program at Margaret Jenkins.

Sundance, an overcrowded alternate school on Quadra, will move into the Bank Street facilities.

According to Bank Street parents' association president Glenna McNaught, the parents with children enrolled in the oral communications program feel it can never be the same anywhere else.

Oral communications is a special program which concentrates on verbal and listening skills. Emphasis on this area in turn will help students improve in other academic areas, according to research by former University of Victoria education dean Fred Tyler.

Margaret Jenkins principal Andy McMorland has said he will continue the oral communications program and eventually expand it.

CALIFORNIA TAX CUT TOO HEAVY - POLL

NEW YORK (UPI) — A U.S.-wide poll shows a great majority of Americans favor drastic cuts in local property taxes, but even more people oppose such a measure if it means a big cut in services.

The ABC News-Lou Harris poll surveyed 1,500 adults across the country June 14-17 to gauge the national appetite for a spread of the California tax revolt with voter approval of the Jarvis-Gann Proposition 13, which cuts property taxes by 57 per cent.

The poll found a 62-28 per cent majority favors enactment in their state of a similar measure. But asked how they feel about such a tax cut if it meant a 35 per cent reduction in services, those surveyed opposed the measure by varying margins, depending on the services to be cut.

ABC said the poll clearly points up the reaction that the tax cut in California was too heavy.

The poll also showed the two most hated taxes in the U.S. are the local property taxes (64 per cent feel they are too high) and federal income taxes (70 per cent feel they are too high).

Salmon Licences Extended

VANCOUVER (CP) - The licences of 103 salmon fishing boats in British Columbia will be extended by five years, federal Fisheries Minister Romeo LeBlanc said Monday.

The B licences were due to expire at the end of this year.

The vessels involved have all been owned and licensed by the original licencees since the Salmon Vessel Licence Control Program was put into effect in 1969.

The program, which set a limit of 10 years on B licences, was aimed at improving economic conditions in the West Coast salmon fishing industry.

LeBlanc said in a news release that the other 400 B licences in B.C. will expire at the end of 1978 or at the conclusion of their 10-year life span.

He said the extension was being granted to the original B licence holders because they had no choice in the matter when the program was introduced in 1969.

Girl, 6, Saves Classmates

LANGLEY (CP) — School officials credit six-year-old Lori Viani with preventing a tragedy Monday when fire destroyed the West Langley Elementary School in this Fraser Valley community.

The girl saw flames in an empty classroom and rushed to tell her teacher. As the blaze quickly spread through the timber-framed building, the 160 pupils and 10 staff members escaped to safety.

The main part of the school was destroyed. No damage estimate has been made.

Fire officials said arson is suspected.

"It was a miracle no one was injured," said Dr. Len Sampson, district schools superintendent.

"Lori spotted the flames and didn't waste a second telling her teacher. We owe a lot to this little girl.

"There could easily have been a tragedy, but the children and staff were very orderly and the entire school was evacuated in seconds," said Sampson.

Lori Viani and charred remains of her school

"It was a real blaze and it spread very fast. If the children hadn't got out when they did they could easily have been trapped.

"Fire drills are carried out in school everywhere — and this time it really paid off," he said. "Everything went as it should."

Pupils at the school were given the rest of the day off and can expect their summer vacation to start early.

"It's highly unlikely we will disrupt other schools and ask them to take these children at this late stage of the term," Sampson said.

Lori's mother, Jill Viani, said she's proud of her daughter because "it was quite remarkable for a girl of six to grasp what was happening."

"She tells me that she was on her way to the school library from her own classroom when she saw a fire in an empty classroom," said Mrs. Viani.

Forced Off Course, Cadiz Skipper Says

LONDON (AP) — The skipper of the Amoco Cadiz, a supertanker that broke up and dumped 220,000 tons of oil into the sea off Brittany last March, testified Monday that another ship forced his vessel off course.

Captain Pasquale Bardari, 36, Italian master of the U.S.-owned tanker, said that shortly before the Amoco Cadiz's rudder failed he had to change course because a small tanker was heading toward him in violation of rules. The rules were set up to avoid collisions in the exceptionally busy shipping lanes of the English Channel.

Bardari said he is unable to get the name of the offending ship, but such violations by small vessels are common.

"I would have been 1.1 miles farther at sea had I not had to alter course for that ship," the captain said.

Before he could make the necessary turns, he said, the supertanker's rudder failed and the ship wallowed in rough seas that broke its back and sent its cargo toward the beaches of Brittany in the world's worst oil spill.

The Amoco Cadiz, owned by a subsidiary of the American Oil Co., was registered in Liberia. Bardari testified at the Liberian government inquiry being conducted in London. It opened last month.

Chairman of the five-man inquiry board is Sir Gordon Willmer, a former lord justice of appeal and member of the London Maritime Arbitration Association.

Last month the inquiry was told the four-year old, 263,000-ton Amoco Cadiz had a highly trained 40-man Italian crew and modern computer equipment well beyond the requirements of international law.

Lebanon Threat Growing

BEIRUT (Reuter) — United Nations troops in southern Lebanon faced a growing threat today from right-wing gunmen who said they have seized Lebanese army barracks and heavy weapons in the area.

The 700-member rightist militias, who have threatened to shoot any UN soldiers trying to take over their strongholds, said they took control of the army depots in a bloodless revolt during the weekend.

A militia leader told a Reuters news agency correspondent in the south Monday that they have also arrested two army officers who had been co-operating with the UN Interim Force in Lebanon (UNIFIL).

The army units under their command have been confined to their homes or to their barracks, he said.

The mainly Christian irregular forces now are in control of a 10-kilometre-deep belt of territory extending along the border from the Mediterranean to the foothills of Mount Hermon.

The militias' insurrection came after the Lebanese officers accepted government orders not to interfere with the UNIFIL deployment.

PEAK SNOWFALL

ZERMATT, Switzerland (Reuter) — Helicopters flew hay to hungry cattle in Alpine meadows and tourists donned their winter jerseys as temperatures across Switzerland dipped sharply. Meteorologists said it is the first recorded snowfall in the Jura mountains to have occurred so late in the year since they started keeping records in 1860.

Air Can. Strike Talks Set

MONTREAL (CP) — Labor department officials called Air Canada executives to Ottawa today to discuss plans by the airline's 1,500 pilots to strike next Monday.

William Kelly, assistant deputy labor minister, said the session was arranged before Labor Minister John Munro received a telegram from Air Canada president Claude Taylor to intervene in the conflict.

"Following these talks we might well have the pilots in," Kelly said in a telephone interview.

Munro issued a statement saying the meeting in Ottawa didn't constitute formal intervention in the dispute. He said labor department officials would assess the issues before deciding on a course of action.

"I'm obviously concerned about the effect of a possible strike, especially at this time," said Munro. "My main aim is to assist in finding a solution and to keep the planes flying."

Taylor's request for government assistance was contained in a telegram to Munro delivered today, an airline spokesman said.

Results of a strike vote by the Air Canada contingent of the Canadian Air Line Pilots Association (CALPA) were released Monday and showed 92 per cent in favor of a walkout.

The pilots, if they go ahead with their threat, will walk out at 3 a.m. Monday.

The strike, which would be the first ever for CALPA over a contract, would coincide with the end of Quebec's St. Jean-Baptiste holiday weekend and the peak travel

Racquet Club To Pay

By PAUL MOSS
Times Staff

The Racquet Club of Victoria will have to pay full property taxes after all, a B.C. Supreme Court judge ruled Monday.

Judge Alan Macfarlane allowed an appeal by the B.C. Assessment Authority and Saanich municipality against an earlier assessment cut granted by the provincial assessment appeal board, which reduced the assessment on the club's buildings from $462,000 to $100.

Victoria lawyer Alan Emery, who represented the club in the recent Supreme Court hearing, said today he still has not received a written copy of the judgment.

But he said he understands Macfarlane found that at the time the assessment level was cut back an assessment freeze was in effect, and there were no circumstances under law which would allow him to lift that freeze.

"Therefore the freeze applies and, regardless of the merits of the club's case, they are stuck with the freeze which means they are stuck with the old assessment," Emery said.

Slot-Machine Loto 'Death to Charities'

By AL FORREST
Times Staff

Loto Canada is starting a slot-machine type instant lottery in B.C. in November that could put the Provincial and the Express out of business, Provincial Secretary Grace McCarthy said today in an interview.

"They are going to flood the market with these machines and there is no way we can compete," she told the Times.

"The 275 non-profit organizations in B.C. with a total of 800,000 members are going to lose a vital source of financing."

The Loto machines provide instant prizes. The player pays an attendant $1 and then types six numbers into the machine. The numbers range from zero to 99.

A receipt comes out saying thank you for the dollar — or announcing a prize.

The player can type in as many numbers as he can afford to pay for at $1 each.

Loto Canada is already in B.C. looking for sites for the machines and making arrangements for the necessary telephone cables.

Prizes would be similar to the Express except the winning numbers would change every week. Top prize would be $500,000. But if the top prize is not won during the week, the prize would grow by $250,000 weekly until it was frozen at a top level of $1.5 million.

The receipt would indicate the amount won (if anything) and players could cash their receipts any time they wished, up to one year.

McCarthy said the federal government is forcing a slot machine atmosphere on the people of B.C. without consultation and in violation of agreements made between Ottawa and the provinces.

"There are serious moral questions about the instant lottery. This is like having a slot machine on every corner."

Several hundred telegrams and letters of protest have already gone to Ottawa and thousands more are expected. Protest rallies will be organized across B.C. in July.

Mrs. McCarthy said the Olympic deficit, the original reason for Loto Canada, will be paid in full by the end of 1979 and after that Ottawa will be in the lottery business simply as a form of taxation at the expense of thousands of charitible organizations across Canada.

Nine of the ten provinces, including Quebec, are opposed to the lottery machines for moral and financial reasons, Mrs. McCarthy said, with Nova Scotia the only province that wants them.

"In 1976 the federal government promised it would not continue the lottery after Dec. 31, 1979 without consulting the provinces. They consulted, we said 'no' and they are still going ahead with this."

Mrs. McCarthy said she has heard of reports from the United States, where the machines have been consumer-tested, of players planning to buy just one ticket and ending up spending as much as $38.

Loto Canada began as the Olympic Lottery in 1976 to pay for the Olympic Games. After the Games, Loto Canada was formed to pay for the deficit. Loto Canada has no relationship to the Quebec

BIG DOGS NO PETS FOR CHILDREN: MDS

WINNIPEG (CP) — Large dogs, especially German shepherds, should not be kept as family pets, the Canadian Medical Association said Monday.

The CMA's general council also recommended that because of the increase in bite injuries small children never be left alone with large dogs.

Dr. W. J. Corbett, chairman of the CMA's community health council, said the public must be warned of the dangers of leaving small children alone with large dogs.

"We are not suggesting these magnificent animals be destroyed," he said.

But too many surgeons have had to repair the faces of small children who have inadvertently tangled with the family's pet dog, he added.

Incidence of reported dog bites in both the United States and Canada, the council said, is about 700 for every 100,000 people.

Dr. B. M. Cochrane, an Ottawa physician, said a recent study conducted in New Brunswick showed German shepherds were responsibile for one-third of 30 dog-bite cases reported.

Aide's Fees Queried

Premier Bill Bennett's $36,000-a-year communications adviser appears to have collected more expense money than entitled when he first came on the government payroll in 1976.

During questioning at the Public Accounts Committee meeting today, it was revealed Dave Brown claimed a $25 per diem expense fee for 84 days over a three-month period when he actually only worked 63 days in the fall of 1976.

And while a memo from Bennett to the comptroller-general said Brown was not to claim any expenses after Oct. 31, Brown claimed 22 days expense money in the month of November.

Brown said today he has no immediate explanation for the charges and said if he is in error he will have to compensate the government.

Brown was questioned by Lorne Nicolson (NDP — Nelson-Creston) who pointed to the fact that Brown, a public

FISH TALKS SNAG

OTTAWA (CP) — Talks to settle the Canada-U.S. fisheries dispute resumed Monday and immediately hit a snag—the United States hoped to have a suspended fishing agreement re-instated while Canada wanted to work towards a final settlement.

The prospect for a settlement this year should become clearer today when special negotiators tell reporters what progress they've made toward settling disputed maritime boundaries and reaching agreement on a resumption of reciprocal fishing between the two countries.

It will be the first news conference for the negotiators since they were appointed last summer by Washington and Ottawa to seek agreement on four overlapping maritime boundaries arising from the 200-mile fishing limits.

U.S. negotiator Lloyd Cutler said at the start of the talks Monday "the earliest feasible resumption of such reciprocal fishing will improve the prospect for reaching the kind of long-term agreement we seek."

But Canadian negotiator Marcel Cadieux and Fisheries Minister Romeo LeBlanc said Canada considered a comprehensive settlement the main priority. Some reciprocal fishing deals might be worked out.

Cadieux told a briefing the talks are "not for re-establishing or restoring the interim agreement."

In Europe, the dollar also declined against most of the major European currencies, but only slightly.

More Feds On Payroll

OTTAWA (FP) — The federal government's payroll and manpower strength continues to climb despite restraint measures.

New Statistics Canada figures reveal the government and its enterprises, including the armed forces, had 583,567 employees as of March, 1978. That's an increase of 21,460 from the previous March.

The gross payroll (including overtime and retroactive payments) for the first quarter of 1978 was $2,406.6 million, an increase of $390.7 million over the same period in 1977.

Statistics Canada noted that the major reason for the increase in the number of public servants between March, 1977, and March, 1978, was the addition of new government enterprises—mainly Betro Canada, de Havilland Aircraft, Canadair and Connaught Laboratories.

Meat Plants Close Down

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

A strike begun Monday by about 2,000 employees of Swift Canadian Co. at five plants will affect about 4,000 employees of Canada Packers Ltd., who will be locked out later this week in the cities where both companies have plants.

Murray Stewart, public relations manager for Canada Packers Ltd., said that company will lock out its workers in Toronto, Winnipeg, Edmonton and Lethbridge, Alta., at 12:01 a.m. local times Thursday and at its Vancouver-area plant at 12:01 a.m. Friday.

Members of the Canadian Food and Allied Workers union, which represents workers in both companies' meat-packing plants, are on strike at Swift Canadian Co. plants in those five cities seeking better wages and pensions.

Stewart said the lockouts were necessary because any settlement reached between the union and Swift would also be binding on Canada Packers Ltd.

He said the union began bargaining with Swift after breaking off negotiations with Canada Packers.

"We feel we should be part of the negotiating process and settlement."

John Dampsy, another Canada Packers spokesman, said he doubts that the shutdown of plants will cause meat prices to rise at the supermarket level.

"What we are talking about is two companies at five locations," he said. "There are many other companies and we would expect they would probably step into the breach next week."

Workers at the Swift Canadian Co. plants voted 81 per cent in favor of strike action last Wednesday.

Twister Wipes Out Manitoba Community

AUBIGNY, Man. (CP) — This small community about 30 kilometes south of Winnipeg was nearly destroyed Monday evening by tornados that swept through the region, killing one person and injuring numerous others.

Dead is David Waller of Portage la Prairie. RCMP said he was in a Canadian National Railways bunk car on a siding near Ste. Anne when the car was lifted from the tracks and thrown back down. One other person was injured in the derailment.

The train was sitting beside a fertilizer plant that was destroyed.

Most of the 14 reported injuries were minor, many of them cuts from flying glass. However, two people injured when their car was thrown out of control by the tornado on Highway 75 are in guarded condition.

But in Aubigny, all is in ruins. The predominantly French-speaking community bore the brunt of the tornado which destroyed nearly 75 per cent of the community of about 300 people.

Jack Murray, the mayor of Morris, about 10 kilometres to the west, was one of many people who went to the community Monday evening to try to help. He said the damage was "horrendous" and only the hand of God prevented any Aubigny residents from being killed. Nine were injured.

"The village had services, a store, post office, credit union, caisse populaire," said Murray. "But that's all gone now. The only thing left of the caisse populaire is the safe."

The actual number of tornado touchdowns has not been confirmed but houses, stores and other buildings were flattened; trees, hydro and telephone poles and automobiles were thrown through the air like leaves. A church steeple was toppled. One bus was carried more than 60 metres before it was dumped less than three metres from the side of a house.

Many residents escaped injury by hiding in basements as the houses above them were destroyed.

"I'd say, there's thousands and thousands of dollars of damage there," he said. "There were machines, sheds, a barn 200-300 feet long, just flattened. There was a house with a television beside it. The house was gone, I don't even know where it was."

The reeve of Morris, Alvin Remple, said the residents of Aubigny could possibility rebuild many of the homes.

Grounded Ship Plundered

Armed Panamanians pillaged the grounded schooner Freelance while her crew stood by helplessly after the 100-foot vessel went aground on a reef off the San Blas Islands Tuesday.

A co-operative effort will be made Wednesday to refloat the tall ship purchased by the provincial government for a youth sail training program.

The U.S. army will assist a private tug company in righting the vessel.

Panamanian authorities meanwhile advised the seven-man Vancouver Island crew not to interfere with the natives who have looted almost every portable item from the ship including sails and navigation equipment.

The crew has set up a camp on a nearby island and although they have suffered hardships, none has been injured, Recreation and Conservation Minister Sam Bawlf said Monday.

Details of the grounding are still sketchy but Bawlf said the vessel rammed the reef at night during torrential rains.

The reef is off the east coast of Panama in the Caribbean about 70 miles from the port of Cristobal, the ship's destination the night of the accident.

The iron hull has not been pierced, but the ship took on a lot of water through the top hatches and has listed dangerously to starboard.

Two U.S. army landing craft will straddle the Freelance and try to swing her onto a safe axis.

It is feared that the Freelance will capsize when pulled off the reef if enough water can't be pumped out.

Panamanian authorities have managed to get some of the loot back including the radio. Negotiations are under way to recover other stolen goods.

The vessel was purchased in Antigua for $58,000 U.S. but it would cost a million dollars today to build one like her from scratch, he said.

The ministry and the Quest Star Society which arranged purchase and delivery and would likely operate her in B.C. are keeping their fingers crossed that she can be refloated and refitted, Bawlf said.

Negatory! Too Many Good Buddies

By DEREK SIDENIUS
Times Staff

The Happy Wanderer's looking glum.

"Danged thing," he says twirling the dial of his Citizen Band radio.

"Used to be I could switch on and talk to anybody I wanted. But not now."

Static-laden voices swirl from the speaker in his car.

"The other day I picked up a couple of guys talking from somewhere down in Texas. Texas! And I can't even get a break to modulate with that trucker who just passed us."

He's incredulous. He's sad. But the Happy Wanderer is not alone.

Waits of half hour to an hour are not uncommon. And after 3 p.m. when schools are out, forget it!

Little wonder it's reached this stage.

For three years the sales of CB sets were nothing short of spectacular.

It reached fever pitch late last summer when the Canadian government announced that after Jan. 1 it would no longer approve licences for mass-produced 23-channel sets that failed to meet new standards. The deadline was later extended to this July.

Prices plummeted as dealers scurried to unload their stocks. Sets were sold at cost, and even below, in supermarkets, department stores and service stations.

Everyone had a bargain — except the manufacturers. They ended up bankrupt.

Since February sales have dwindled inexorably.

A year ago CB sales accounted for 40 per cent of his business. This year he'll count himself lucky if the figure reaches 15 per cent.

Larry Reid, district manager of Communications Canada in Vancouver, believes the decline is due partly to a saturated market, and partly to a general tightening up of money and the sluggish economic situation.

There's also the hard fact 40-channel CB sets which now are replacing the 23-channel models cost a great deal more — about $150 compared with $40 to $50.

It's impossible to tell how many sets are in use.

Reid says there are about 40,000 CB licence holders in the Vancouver area and 22,000 more on Vancouver Island, in both cases more than triple the number of only two years ago.

Add to that the illegal unlicenced users. Reid estimates they could account for another 15 to 20 per cent.

There's little argument about the effect of the CB-buying frenzy — monumental congestion.

The problem is aggravated by skip-jumping, a phenomenon that occurs when the CBs sky wave signal bounces off the ionosphere and returns to earth 1,000 to 1,500 miles from its point of origin.

The radiation from the sun causes increased ionization of the ionosphere which acts as a reflecting plate for the radio waves.

This explains how it is possible for CB sets in Victoria to pick up signals originating in southern United States and Mexico.

It's against the law to "talk skip" or communicate over the sky waves, but of course it happens, all the time.

"I get a lot of complaints about the congestion," says Hodgson.

He says some CBers have simply switched off their sets, waiting for better days. Others are trading in for 40-channel sets, with which it's still possible to find an open channel.

Still others, less scrupulous, are overcoming the problems by attaching amplifiers which boost the ground signal by as much as 15 times the set's accredited 30-mile range. The ampliers obliterate all other signals and cause serious disruption to normal radio and TV reception. They're illegal, and persons caught with them face a maximum $1,000 fine.

To combat the boosters, the federal communications department is purchasing tracers, at $15,000 a crack, to locate amplifier-equipped sets. One is expected to go into operation in the Vancouver area before the end of the year.

The CB congestion has probably hit boaters harder than anyone else. At first, the CB was seen as the answer to cheap ship-to-shore communications. But now an increasing number of boaters are painfully realizing the old adage you only get what you pay for.

Ken Chatfield, manager of Ball & Shemilt Electonrics here, says there's a swing towards VHF (very high frequency) equipment. Even though VHF sets are considerably more expensive ($500 and up), he says, they offer a much higher degree of safety. They operate on more channels — 55 — and are the only radio frequencies monitored and used by the coast guards.

"No one fools around on VHF," he says. "But CBs, that's another story. There's too much playing and not enough control to ensure if you're in trouble you'll get help."

Chatfield feels, however, CBs have their place and their popularity, as evidenced by the massive buying spree in recent years, will return.

OTTAWA LENDS $6 MILLION

160 Jobs Predicted At New Plane Plant

The federal government will loan Trident Aircraft Ltd. $6 million to operate an aircraft-assembling plant at Pat Bay airport, creating 160 new jobs.

The announcement was made Monday by federal Trade and Commerce Minister Jack Horner and follows more than one year of negotiations with Trident president Dave Hazelwood.

In a separate interview, Hazelwood said the company will begin work Aug. 1 in an existing hangar at Pat Bay airport with 20 employees and this will quickly rise to 160 workers before year's end.

The B.C. Development Corporation will construct a building of about 85,000 square feet and lease it to Trident, Hazelwood said.

The company will assemble the amphibious Trigull 320, a small plane selling at about $105,000.

Trident has firm orders for 43 planes and reservations for 25 more.

Ottawa one year ago indicated it would support the project but waited 12 months to see if Trident could get orders for the planes before agreeing to provide advance financing.

BCDC has provided $700,000 to help with the venture.

Plane parts will be constructed in various centres, including Vancouver, and the planes assembled at Pat Bay.

"The Sidney area is ideal for us," Hazelwood said, "because we can test the planes right there on land and water."

The BCDC is negotiating now with the ministry of transport to obtain land for the permanent Trident building.

If land can't be found on federal property inside the airport, a site will be obtained just outside the property line, Hazelwood said.

"There is some urgency in this because construction of our permanent building will have to be under way before the end of the year."

He said the work force might eventually rise to the range of 200 within two or three years, depending upon the number of sales.

He said a figure of 200 immediate jobs referred to by Horner in his announcement included about 40 jobs in the Vancouver area with subcontractors for Trident.

Sales for the planes are to U.S. markets but overseas customers are hoped for in the near future, Hazelwood said.

A U.S. firm, Grumman Aircraft Corporation, is providing financing and technical assistance.

Trident started up at Pat Bay one year ago with a staff of 28 but had to let 22 go because the expected federal loan did not materialize. The remaining six were sent out to get orders for the plane to demonstrate to Ottawa the project was viable.

In Victoria, Municipal Affairs Minister Hugh Curtis said he has urged various cabinet ministers to consider the plane when they are making future purchases. For example, it might be suitable for the ministry of health as an air ambulance.

Curtis said federal and provincial funding authorities had suggested Hazelwood consider a Vancouver site for his plant but Curtis said both he and Hazelwood campaigned for the Pat Bay site.

Transit HQ Coming Here

Victoria has been selected as the site of the Urban Transit Authority's head office, Municipal Affairs Minister Hugh Curtis announced Monday.

The authority, which will supervise municipal bus operations across the province, will employ between 50 and 60 at head office, Curtis said.

"This means a net gain of about 40 jobs for Victoria."

The remaining employees are already in the city.

Under B.C. Hydro, the head office for transportation was in Vancouver.

Curtis said no construction will be necessary for the Victoria office because the city already has a good supply of spare office space.

The new transit authority will plan and coordinate activities of transportation services, which become the responsibility of municipalities next year.

Curtis said Victoria was selected as the headquarters site because the authority should be as close as possible to the various ministries involved in transportation.

The head office will handle planning and administration and will be the core of the province-wide network of transportation services.

North Saanich Backs Region Appointments

North Saanich council has come out narrowly in support of legislation that would see regional board members appointed by councils rather than elected by voters.

The bill was tabled in the legislature earlier this month

Mayor George Westwood and Ald. Eric Sherwood voted against it while Ald. Lawrence Fast abstained.

Westwood, in an interview today, said he is unhappy with the result and noted three of the four aldermen who approved the new legislation were defeated at the polls in last November's election of Capital Regional Board directors.

Westwood, who represents North Saanich on the board, said he feels Curtis acted prematurely in proposing the change as a special committee formed to review the functions of the CRD has not yet completed its report.

"It casts some doubt on what the minister feels about the value of regional boards," Westwood said.

He said appointees to the board should be elected by the people because they deal with a considerable amount of taxpayers money and should be answerable.

FRAUD FALLOUT

'Pyramid' Auction

More than $30,000 worth of goods seized in connection with a million dollar pyramid sales and fraud scheme in Greater Victoria last year will be auctioned June 27.

The auction will begin at Lunds, 926 Fort, at 7 p.m.

The goods were seized by Victoria Sheriff Bill Lee following the conviction last December of 31-year-old Lauren Gail Phillips on 19 counts of fraud.

At the time of her arrest, Phillips had orders for $4.5 million worth of merchandise and had received $750,000 from persons who thought they were buying goods at cut-rate prices through estate sales.

Among the items up for auction are several pieces of oak furniture, appliances, stereo equipment, golf clubs, paintings, 10 lots of reference books on antiques and 30 lots of stamps.

The money derived from the auction will be turned over to claimants in the case on a pro rata basis.

Phillips was sentenced to two years less a day in jail in January and based on parole guidelines could be released as early as December.

Camosun Contract

The architectural firm that designed the University Centre at the University of Victoria has been awarded a contract by Camosun College.

The Wade Williams Partnership will be involved in a college project to renovate extensively its Lansdowne campus and to add a new multi-purpose complex.

Marina Meet

A public meeting of the North Saanich Advisory Planing Commission won't be held tonight as reported in the Times Monday, but next Tuesday, June 27.

The meeting, called to review an application for a housing and marina development at Tsehum or Shoal Harbor, will be held at Parklands Secondary School.

The Happy Politician

That being the case, Saanich Mayor Mel Couvelier should be happier than most.

On May 9 Couvelier told reporters from the Times and Colonist he'd been disturbed by the "low-slung" dress Trisha MaryMoon, a representative for the Victoria Rape Relief Centre, had worn to an intermunicipal committee meeting.

A month later, however, the mayor had a different story to tell.

Couvelier had first indicated his disapproval of MaryMoon's blouse during the meeting, and when the reporters asked him to clarify his position he forged ahead without hesitation.

"Did you see her blouse for God's sake! The thing was down to here," he said pointing to his midriff.

The mayor went on to say he didn't like the idea of any woman appearing before school boys lecturing about rape when she was dressed in such a manner. (Rape Relief workers lecture in Victoria schools when requested to do so.)

But today Couvelier's recollection of those remarks has all but faded away. What he can remember is foggy indeed, as evidenced by a recent letter he sent to Victoria Labor Council secretary-treasurer Larry Ryan. (Ryan has been critical of the mayor's "uncalled-for" comments.)

Couvelier told Ryan his remarks were made in a whispered aside to Victoria Mayor Mike Young. He made no mention of the fact he talked to reporters about it.

Not so. MaryMoon wore the same dress, the same "low-slung" blouse for the press photographer that she'd worn for the intermunicipal committee.

If politicians with short memories do indeed lead happy lives then Couvelier must have been laughing when he wrote that letter . . . the reporters who'd been at the committee meeting certainly laughed when they read it.

About That Gold . . .

Last week the Times carried an article about a prospector, Bev Hopton, who claimed to have discovered gold in downtown Victoria.

It now appears he was by no means the first.

According to old clippings in our library, a certain William Miles of Port Alberni became similarly excited back in 1897 when he noticed flecks of yellow in rock outcroppings beside the road at the Government-Courtney intersection.

Miles promptly staked his claims and tried to obtain permission from city council to begin excavations . . . for a shaft underneath the new Post Office!

Unfortunately for him, the officials ruled that the gold was not nearly as valuable as the surrounding real estate.

Charles and Bertha Holt came here from Toronto to live eight years ago and during those years Mrs. Holt has been writing their six grandchildren in Toronto and Thunder Bay, telling them about life in Victoria.

A writer, Mrs. Holt has put a collection of the letters in a book called Grandmother's Stories to Grandchildren, that is now available at several city stores.

In her 70s, Mrs. Holt says her book has provided employment for six local people.

The book was illustrated by Dale Hitchcock and published by Robinson Press.

One observer of the Japanese Tall ships sail training exercise was a bit puzzled.

How come hundreds of Victorians with Japanese cameras are photographing a Japanese ship to celebrate Capt. Cook? he asked.

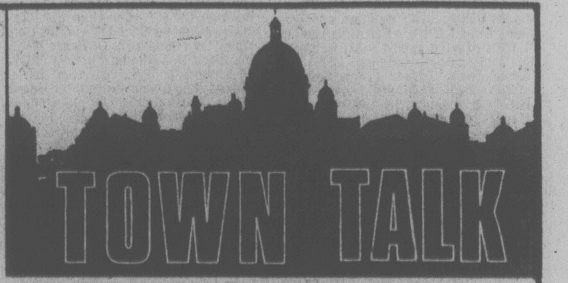
Is the way to a politician's vote through his stomach? Some people think so.

The representative for a developer recently called up Victoria Ald. Bill McElroy and offered to take him out to lunch. He wanted to explain to McElroy just what his client's position was on a proposed major new development.

But McElroy declined the invitation, explaining that it's been his policy since the day he was elected not to accept free lunches or to hold private conversations with developers over land-use matters.



Monday, however, McElroy said he's been giving some thought to changing that policy slightly.

"I'm so poor these days I should start taking more of those free lunches, but I think maybe I'll just start asking for food hampers instead," he said.

McElroy is a full-time alderman, having quit his regular job last year when he won his seat. An alderman is paid about $8,000 a year in salary.

Still with signs at the Victoria Law Courts: The building got new front steps amid all the renovations when two floors were added. The old ones were getting chipped.

The steps look great. Except when it rains. Then the unwary (and it has happened) can take a tumble.

Someone realized something should be done, so on the door is posted a small sign saying "stairs very slippery when wet."

Just great — except the sign can't be read by anyone coming in, only going out. Why not fix the steps before a broken leg and lawsuit occur?

DOUBLE TROUBLE for Northwest Baseball League rivals is what Victoria Mussels hope will be provided by brothers Frank (left) and Vito Lucarelli. Mussels make league debut tonight in Bellingham and bring professional baseball back to Victoria Wednesday night at Royal Athletic Park in another clash with Bellingham. Frank is expected be starting pitcher Wednesday and Vito may see action as catcher.

Mussels-Builders Face Inaugural League Test

Whoever said winning isn't everything obviously never played pro sports. When the money goes on the line, pal, you win or clear out.

That's the bottom line this summer for Victoria Mussels' braintrust, Lynn and Jim Chapman and Don Rogelstad. They're gambling a budgeted $100,000 they can make a go of professional baseball here after a 24-year absence. And you can bet they're not letting the bankroll ride on a bunch of humpty-dumpties.

They've had only seven weeks to put a team together and they'll get an inkling if they've done the job tonight when the Mussels open their 72-game schedule against manager Bob Didier's defending champion Bellingham Mariners in Bellingham. The two clubs return to Athletic Park for the start of a two-game series tomorrow evening at 7.

Operating without benefit of a major league affiliation, Rogelstad and the Chapmans took the obvious tack — go for experience. Accordingly, three of Mussels' four starting pitchers have played professionally.

Rogelstad, the club's 29-year-old pitching coach who came out of the New York Yankee farm system, isn't taking chances. He's named himself to start tonight's game, which will be broadcast on CJVI (900) starting at 7:30.

And he's picked his second-oldest pitcher, Dave Cheadle, 26, to start tomorrow night in the home opener, which will be preceeded by a short ceremony beginning at 6:30. Cheadle, the lone lefty among the four starters, begins his seventh year in organized baseball.

The only rookie in Rogelstad's starting rotation is Frank Lucarelli, 21, who was 11-3 with Western Washington University the last two seasons. He gets the nod here Thursday night against the Mariners, who have former Yankee mound great Mel Stottlemyer as a pitching coach.

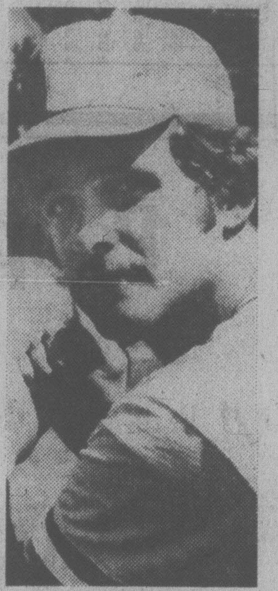
Another experienced pro, Bobby Watkins, 22, completes the starting cast and will pitch Friday when the Mussels' and Mariners return to Bellingham. They clash there again Saturday and complete their six-game series back at Athletic Park Sunday.

Watkins, another righty, hails from San Diego and was drafted three years ago by Montreal Expos. He pitched with Lethbridge in the rookie class A Pioneer League and Jamestown in the New York-Penn League (class A) before being released this spring by Memphis of the Southern League (AA), where Victoria's Mike Finlayson is playing.

Rogelstad and shortstop-manager Jim Chapman are making sure they don't short-change themselves on the mound. There are nine pitchers on the 21-man roster.

The bullpen is made up entirely of first-year pros, including long reliever Roy Moretti, a 22-year-old fireballing righthander from Victoria. Other long relievers are lefty Mike Carey, 23, from the University of Washington and righty Dale Mahorcic, 21, from Cleveland, Ohio, State. Carey also hits well and will bat in the designated hitter's slot tonight.

Short relievers are Brian Peterson, 23, a righthander from the University of Oregon, and Scott Harding, 21, a southpaw from Hayward State College in California.



MIKE CAREY
. . . designated hitter

The plate power should come from Carey, catcher Vito Lucarelli, first baseman Mark Hildebrand and third baseman Dan Gans. Hildebrand, 24, a high school teacher and baseball coach in the off-season at Stendel, Ind., whacked 14 home runs for Salem Senators in the Northwest League last year. Gans is a switch-hitter with power from Carlbad, Calif.

Dead Heat at Sandown

Sharky The Great and Afton Exhibitor finished in a dead heat for first place during the third race Monday at Sandown Park to set up a pair of the sweeter exactor payoffs of the harness-racing meet.

The exactor paid $85.40 on the Sharky-Afton combination and $114.40 on Afton-Sharky.

It was the second dead heat in the first 10 days of the 57-day meeting.

There was a much larger payoff in the fifth race after Wee General Fuzz came flying at the finish to beat Michaels Derby to the wire and set up a $253.80 exactor.

Joe Hudson, who represented Canada in the 1978 world driving championship, is currently tied for the driving lead with Dave Jungquist.

Both have nine victories to their credit.

But big Jim Mohorich, who finds the comparitively-long stretch at Sandown to his liking, is moving up to challenge the leaders.

In typical fashion, Mohorich came on fast in the stretch to score twice, guiding Senga Logan to victory in the sixth and Nechako Prince in the seventh.

Mohorich now has seven wins to his credit and is tied for fourth spot with Don Bell, one behind Willie Urquhart.

Results and entries are on page 15.

Canuck Eyes on Dallas

VANCOUVER (CP) — Jake Milford, general manager of Vancouver Canucks of the National Hockey League, said Monday he is attempting to arrange a meeting in Dallas, Tex., with multi-millionaire Lamar Hunt regarding the purchase of a franchise in the Central Hockey League.

Milford said he hopes to meet with Hunt next week about the availability of the Dallas franchise and the possibility of stocking the CHL team with players supplied by the Canucks.

Toronto Maple Leafs and Chicago Black Hawks of the NHL, who combined to stock the Dallas team with players last season, have expressed interest in moving their development team to Moncton, N.B., for the 1978-79 season.

Milford said the Canucks, who shared a CHL working agreement the last two years in Tulsa with the NHL Atlanta Flames, are pulling out of Tulsa because the Tulsa building was not always available for practices.

"Young players need all the practice time they can get," said Milford, "and last season the Tulsa building wasn't always available because of basketball games.

Earlier Monday, the Canucks completed the first phase of their rebuilding program by confirming the signing of high-scoring junior centre Bill Derlago to a four-year contract.

Derlago, 19, is the third centre acquired by the Canucks since the end of the 1977-78 season.

Milford has signed four Swedish players, including free agent centre Roland Eriksson of Minnesota North Stars, and now has seven new players under contract, plus two more draft choices apparently ready to sign.

"We've made a lot of changes and now we have some players who will be available for trades," Milford said. "We knew that we had to change the personnel around and we should make even more changes now that we've got a surplus of players."

Eriksson and Thomas Gradin of Sweden join Derlago as the Canucks' new centres. Swedish defenceman Lars Lindgren and Lars Zetterstroem also have signed in an attempt to upgrade the defence.

Randy Holt, a defenceman with a tough-guy reputation, was added last week in the NHL dispersal draft after the merger of Cleveland Barons and the North Stars.

Goaltender Gary Bromley, who helped Winnipeg Jets to the World Hockey Association title, was signed to an NHL contract last month by Milford.

The Canucks have unloaded only four players from last season's team. Goaltender Cesare Maniago retired, forward Mike Walton was traded to St. Louis Blues for a draft choice, defenceman Claire Alexander signed with the WHA Edmonton Oilers and forward Gerry O'Flaherty was released and signed with Minnesota.

"We considered Derlago the top goal scorer in junior hockey last season and we expect him to continue to have that reputation in Vancouver," said Milford. "Derlago and the other additions will give us much more competition for jobs at training camp.

"I think the veterans are getting the message: show up to camp in shape and expect a fight for your job."

Poles Ask Switch

BUENOS AIRES (AP) — The Polish soccer team wants Argentina to play its World Cup game Wednesday in the afternoon instead of at night.

Up to now the national team has played its matches at night, unlike the other competing squads, to enable the nation to view the match on television without closing down shops and factories.

While Argentina's games are in progress, the streets of Buenos Aires are empty. You don't see a car, or anyone on the sidewalks. People are at home in front of their screens.

After the game the city goes mad. Thousands turn out of their homes and march down the main avenues banging drums and blowing trumpets, shouting and singing, carrying girls on their shoulders, waving Argentina's blue and white colors.

There is some logic behind the Polish protest, which has been sent to the International Soccer Federation (FIFA). Argentina and Brazil are racing neck and neck for top place in Group B, and Wednesday's games will decide which team wins the group and gets a place in the final.

Brazil is set to play Poland Wednesday afternoon, and Argentina faces Peru in the evening. If Brazil and Argentina are still even on points, the team with the better goals record goes into the final.

The argument is that Argentina will go on the field knowing the result of Brazil's game and knowing exactly how many goals it must score.

Brazil thought of filing a protest but dropped the idea after consulting an FIFA official. The Poles decided to go ahead.

Wednesday's games in Group A, involving all European teams, both start in the early afternoon. The main clash is at Buenos Aires' River Plate Stadium between Holland and Italy, joint leaders with three points each.

Holland, which has a much better goals record than its rivals, needs only a draw to reach the final.

West Germany, the defending champion, has two points and plays Austria. The Germans could still get to the final, but they would need to beat the Austrians by five goals or more and it would be necessary for Holland and Italy to tie.

Boomer's Thwarted Bat Finally Breaks Through

By Canadian Press

You can fool all of the sluggers some of the time, but not all of the sluggers all of the time.

George Scott, for instance.

Boston Red Sox first baseman had gone down on strikes his first three times up against New York Yankee pitching Monday night. Then came the eighth inning.

"When you strike out three times in a row," said Scott, "the law of averages is in your favor. Sooner or later, you're going to make contact."

The "Boomer" finally lived up to his nickname, smashing a tie-breaking single that triggered a six-run rally and started the Red Sox to a 10-4 victory.

The meeting was the first of the 1978 season for the rivals of the American League East Division.

In other American League games, Oakland A's edged Texas Rangers 2-1; Kansas City Royals nipped Cleveland Indians 6-5 and Seattle Mariners beat Chicago White Sox, 7-4. In the only National League game, Chicago Cubs trimmed Pittsburgh Pirates 6-4 in 10 innings.

Carlton Fisk, who keyed a three-run fourth inning with a single, started Boston's game-breaking eighth with a double off the wall against reliever Rick Gossage. Fred Lynn was walked intentionally to bring up Scott. The big slugger fouled off a bunt attempt and then singled to centre, scoring Fisk to snap a 4-4 tie.

Dwight Evans sacrificed and Butch Hobson walked, filling the bases. Rick Burleson singled, scoring Lynn, with Scott also coming around as right fielder Reggie Jackson bobbled the ball for an error. Remy knocked in Burleson with a double and Jim Rice, the AL RBI leader, brought in Remy with the sixth run of the inning with a single.

"'We have 90-odd games to go so we can't be overconfident," said Burleson, who had a double and a single, scored two runs and drove in one. "Last year we beat them a lot here and they still won the world championship."

Yankee manager Billy Martin said: "We had hoped to take three straight but now we're going to have to try to win two of three. But even if they win all three here, it's a long season. Its a long way to go."

Steve Renko and two relievers combined on a three-hitter and Jeff Newman hit a tie-breaking homer in the eighth to lead Oakland over Texas and end the A's 11-game losing streak. The blast broke up a pitching duel between Renko and Texas' Jon Matlack.

Renko went seven innings before yielding to Bob Lacey, who required relief help in the ninth from Elias Sosa. Sosa recorded his 10th save of the season after pitching out of a bases-loaded jam in the ninth.

Macs Would Like A Quicker Start

Game time is 8 p.m.

The Bakers were slow getting untracked Monday night and dropped a 20-17 decision to Salmonbellies in New Westminster.

New Westminster opened up a 9-3 lead by the end of the first period. Victoria narrowed the margin to 13-10 going into the final 20 minutes but couldn't catch up despite scoring a season-high of eight power-play goals.

Rob Dalziel set the pace for Salmonbellies with five goals and seven assists. Ross Angelucci and Dan McIsaac added three each and double tallies were contributed by Dean Malcolm and Bill Husband. Singles came from Brian Cowie, Terry Miller, Dan Richardson, Shawn Cahill and Bruce Turris.

Ron McIsaac stopped 49 shots for New Westminster while Mike Duch blocked 58 attempts for Victoria.

New Westminster took 11 of 17 minor penalties and the game's only major.

Botham Sets Test Record

LONDON (Reuter) — Ian Botham bowled England to victory in its second cricket test against Pakistan Monday with a remarkable spell of seven wickets for 14 runs in 13.4 overs at Lords.

The winning margin was an innings and 120 runs—even more one-sided than in the first test—and gave England a winning 2-0 lead in the three-match series.

Botham, 22-year-old all-rounder from Somerset, took eight wickets for 34 runs and became the first man to score a century and take eight wickets in the same test.

Botham scored his century on Friday when England amassed a first-innnings total of 364. After a first-innings total of 105, Pakistan was forced to follow on with its second innings.

Playing without five stars who have signed for Australian professional cricket promoter Kerry Packer, the Pakistanis began the day at 96 needing another 163 runs to force England to bat again.

Botham's eight for 34 was the best haul for an England team since Jim Laker took 10 for 53 in the second innings against Australia at Manchester in 1956.

Onion, Leek Beds Differ

The onion and the leek are both in the genus Allium but their culture is not the same.

Onion bulbs grow above soil level in full sun whereas leeks are buried to eight inches below soil level in order to obtain the white stem which is the edible portion.

Onion seed is sown in a prepared seed bed outdoors, about one foot square, around the end of October. The amount of seed to sow varies according to the number of onions used by the family. It is scattered close in the middle of the seed bed and lightly covered with screened compost.

The closer the seedlings grow the less bulb is produced at the base. Those which show a slight bulb will quickly go to seed therefore are transplanted to a separate bed for use as green salad onions.

When transplanting, onion seedlings are set just dee enough for the soil to hold them upright. The soil is gradually removed as the roots obtain a good hold and the bulbs start to develop. By June the bulbs should be fully exposed, sitting on top of the soil like golf balls.

Tops are not bent over at this stage. The bending over and breaking of the leaf fibres is only done in areas of frequent summer rain or showers which causes growth to continue after the bulbs have reached their full size. Bending and breaking the leaves reduces the food supply and lessens the growth.

Onions properly grown in our dry summers do not need bending over if water is prevented from reaching the root area after the bulbs have become full size for the variety being grown. They will ripen naturally in late July to early August.

Leek seed is sown indoors during February and the seedlings gorwn on in a clay pot until eight inches in height.

The leek bed is prepared in March or early April by digging 12 inches deep and incorporating plenty of compost.

When the bed has settled, holes are made with a one-and-one-half inch wooden dibber, eight inches deep and 12 to 14 inches apart.

One seedling is dropped into each hole, and the bed is lightly watered to wash a little soil into the holes to cover the roots. The seedlings are left like this to make their growth.

Gardeners growing leeks for the first time have sown the seed in rows like beets and carrots, and are asking if the seedlings should be thinned.

These row seedlings should be transplanted when eight inches high into a bed as described above, or thinned to 12 inches apart and the soil banked up each side of the row to the top of the foilage. Banking will have to be increased as the plants elongate.

This banking of soil to get the long white edible portion is never as satisfactory as planting into deep holes. The dry soil of the bank erodes when watered, and it is not so resistant to light and air as a hole in solid soil. The result is usually a short edible portion and an unnecessary quantity of inedible leaves.

Where leeks have been sown in rows it would be best to prepare a new bed, firm it gently by light treading, make the eight inch holes and transplant the thinnings immediately.

The spaced plants in the rows can be left and banked with soil and a comparison made in the size of the plants that are produced by each method of growing.

CALIFORNIA TAX CUT TOO HEAVY - POLL

NEW YORK (UPI) — A U.S.-wide poll shows a great majority of Americans favor drastic cuts in local property taxes, but even more people oppose such a measure if it means a big cut in services.

The ABC News-Lou Harris poll surveyed 1,500 adults across the country June 14-17 to gauge the national appetite for a spread of the California tax revolt with voter approval of the Jarvis-Gann Proposition 13, which cuts property taxes by 57 per cent.

The poll found a 62-28 per cent majority favors enactment in their state of a similar measure. But asked how they feel about such a tax cut if it meant a 35 per cent reduction in services, those surveyed opposed the measure by varying margins, depending on the services to be cut.

ABC said the poll clearly points up the reaction that the tax cut in California was too heavy.

The poll also showed the two most hated taxes in the U.S. are the local property taxes (64 per cent feel they are too high) and federal income taxes (70 per cent feel they are too high).

Forced Off Course, Cadiz Skipper Says

LONDON (AP) — The skipper of the Amoco Cadiz, a supertanker that broke up and dumped 220,000 tons of oil into the sea off Brittany last March, testified Monday that another ship forced his vessel off course.

Captain Pasquale Bardari, 36, Italian master of the U.S.-owned tanker, said that shortly before the Amoco Cadiz's rudder failed he had to change course because a small tanker was heading toward him in violation of rules. The rules were set up to avoid collisions in the exceptionally busy shipping lanes of the English Channel.

Bardari said he is unable to get the name of the offending ship, but such violations by small vessels are common.

"I would have been 1.1 miles farther at sea had I not had to alter course for that ship," the captain said.

Before he could make the necessary turns, he said, the supertanker's rudder failed and the ship wallowed in rough seas that broke its back and sent its cargo toward the beaches of Brittany in the world's worst oil spill.

The Amoco Cadiz, owned by a subsidiary of the American Oil Co., was registered in Liberia. Bardari testified at the Liberian government inquiry being conducted in London. It opened last month.

Chairman of the five-man inquiry board is Sir Gordon Willmer, a former lord justice of appeal and member of the London Maritime Arbitration Association.

Last month the inquiry was told the four-year old, 263,000-ton Amoco Cadiz had a highly trained 40-man Italian crew and modern computer equipment well beyond the requirements of international law.

Salmon Licenses Extended

VANCOUVER (CP) - The licences of 103 salmon fishing boats in British Columbia will be extended by five years, federal Fisheries Minister Romeo LeBlanc said Monday.

The B licences were due to expire at the end of this year.

The vessels involved have all been owned and licensed by the original licencees since the Salmon Vessel Licence Control Program was put into effect in 1969.

The program, which set a limit of 10 years on B licences, was aimed at improving economic conditions in the West Coast salmon fishing industry.

LeBlanc said in a news release that the other 400 B licences in B.C. will expire at the end of 1978 or at the conclusion of their 10-year life span.

He said the extension was being granted to the original B licence holders because they had no choice in the matter when the program was introduced in 1969.

Girl, 6, Saves Classmates

LANGLEY (CP) — School officials credit six-year-old Lori Viani with preventing a tragedy Monday when fire destroyed the West Langley Elementary School in this Fraser Valley community.

The girl saw flames in an empty classroom and rushed to tell her teacher. As the blaze quickly spread through the timber-framed building, the 160 pupils and 10 staff members escaped to safety.

The main part of the school was destroyed. No damage estimate has been made.

Fire officials said arson is suspected.

"It was a miracle no one was injured," said Dr. Len Sampson, district schools superintendent.

"Lori spotted the flames and didn't waste a second telling her teacher. We owe a lot to this little girl.

"There could easily have been a tragedy, but the children and staff were very orderly and the entire school was evacuated in seconds," said Sampson.

"It was a real blaze and it spread very fast. If the children hadn't got out when they did they could easily have been trapped.

"Fire drills are carried out in school everywhere — and this time it really paid off," he said. "Everything went as it should."

Pupils at the school were given the rest of the day off and can expect their summer vacation to start early.

"It's highly unlikely we will disrupt other schools and ask them to take these children at this late stage of the term," Sampson said.

Lori's mother, Jill Viani, said she's proud of her daughter because "it was quite remarkable for a girl of six to grasp what was happening."

"She tells me that she was on her way to the school library from her own classroom when she saw a fire in an empty classroom," said Mrs. Viani.

Lebanon Threat Growing

BEIRUT (Reuter) — United Nations troops in southern Lebanon faced a growing threat today from right-wing gunmen who said they have seized Lebanese army barracks and heavy weapons in the area.

The 700-member rightist militias, who have threatened to shoot any UN soldiers trying to take over their strongholds, said they took control of the army depots in a bloodless revolt during the weekend.

A militia leader told a Reuters news agency correspondent in the south Monday that they have also arrested two army officers who had been co-operating with the UN Interim Force in Lebanon (UNIFIL).

The army units under their command have been confined to their homes or to their barracks, he said.

The mainly Christian irregular forces now are in control of a 10-kilometre-deep belt of territory extending along the border from the Mediterranean to the foothills of Mount Hermon.

The militias' insurrection came after the Lebanese officers accepted government orders not to interfere with the UNIFIL deployment.

PEAK SNOWFALL

ZERMATT, Switzerland (Reuter) — Helicopters flew hay to hungry cattle in Alpine meadows and tourists donned their winter jerseys as temperatures across Switzerland dipped sharply. Meteorologists said it is the first recorded snowfall in the Jura mountains to have occurred so late in the year since they started keeping records in 1860.

today's markets

Toronto

TORONTO (CP) — The Toronto stock market was fractionally lower in active trading at mid-afternoon.

Among other industrials, Hudson's Bay Co. fell ⅛ to $21½, Bow Valley Industry ¼ to $29, Canadian Pacific ⅛ to 19, Ashland Oil ¼ to $22¼ and Bell Canada ¼ to $56¾.

New York

NEW YORK (AP) — The stock market lost ground, as traders expressed concern over interest rates, inflation and the value of the U.S. dollar.

Analysts said trades, who in recent months had been indifferent to higher interest rates, now appeared concerned. The Federal Reserve met in Washington Tuesday, and most experts believed the board would tighten credit in an attempt to rein the growth of money supply.

Although the board rarely announces its decision, money-market specialists usually can spot changes of policy within a day or two.

Montreal

MONTREAL (CP) — Prices were mixed in moderate afternoon trading on the Montreal Stock Exchange.

Volume at 2:30 p.m. EDT was 455,200 shares traded, compared with 556,800 shares traded up to the same time Monday.

London

LONDON (Reuter) — Prices eased in light trading as the market continued to react to inflation worries and the possibility of a general election, dealers said.

The Financial Times index of 30 industrials closed at 463.4, down 3.6.

However, government bonds reduced initial falls to show net losses of up to ¼ on the day, while falls among equities were pared following some higher than expected results, dealers added.
